Daddy Is A Dandy

LONDON (AP) — Even Carnaby Street was taken aback today by Lord Snowdon's latest fashion fancy—a vivid, striped suit that made him look like a regency dandy with accents from the era of Bonnie and Clyde.

For every designer who said "smashing," there was one to mutter "shocking."

•

One called the suit a nightmare, but kinder souls said Snowdon certainly was a snappy dresser.

Princess Margaret's 37-year-old husband was turned out in his symphony in stripes at Heathrow Airport Friday when the royal couple flew out for a vacation on the Caribbean isle of Barbados.

•

The outfit consisted of a tight-waisted, knee-length brown frock coat with broad gangster-style white stripes running up through a "highwayman's collar." Trousers, of course, matched. And under the coat was a green and orange striped shirt.

•

"Wham," said London's Daily Sketch. "The outfit hit passengers straight between the eyes."

Fashion writer Hardy Clarke called it "the most daring outfit Lord Snowdon has ever worn in public."

WAR INTENSIFIED IN 3 NATIONS

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — North Vietnamese troops and Communist guerrillas were reported today to have stepped up fighting in Laos, Cambodia and Burma.

In Vientiane, Gen. Udone Shananikone, Laotian armed forces chief of staff, reported North Vietnamese forces used Soviet-made rockets against a government post for the first time.

Cambodian government officials in Phnom Penh said today that at least five provinces have been placed on "war footing" because of the threat from roving bands of Communist guerrillas.

Burma's Gen. Ne Win in Rangoon disclosed an upsurge in fighting between government troops and insurgents who take sanctuary across the border in China.

Thailand also has reported increased Communist guerrilla activities recently along its Mekong River border with Laos.

RING TIGHTENS

Reds Tunnel To Khe Sanh

Times News Services

SAIGON — North Vietnamese troops today were tightening the ring around the key U.S. Marine bastion of Khe Sanh despite Friday's abortive raid in a bid to cut through the barbed wire perimeter.

North Viet troops have built zig-zag trenches and tunnels within 100 yards of the wire fences as a base to launch new ground attacks.

The U.S. is responding with air power.

In the area of one of the battles, in which South Vietnamese rangers at Khe Sanh reported killing 70 North Vietnamese Friday, U.S. B-52 bombers and smaller fighter-bombers kept up what has become the biggest air campaign of the war.

The B-52s aimed 750 tons of bombs in 10 raids Friday and today at North Vietnamese troops tunnelling toward the Khe Sanh combat base.

CLASH CLAIMS 203

In a clash on the Can Viet River, government forces reported killing 203 and said eight South Vietnamese were killed and 25 wounded.

A U.S. marine force, that came ashore from boats in the South China Sea more than a month ago for its operation in the Viet Cong stronghold area, ran into heavy fire Friday. Spokesmen said 36 guerrillas and 22 marines were killed in the day-long battle.

Just to the west of the Cau Viet Delta, U.S. marines reported killing 21 guerrillas with artillery after a Communist force of unknown size was spotted moving in the open two miles north of Con Thien.

In air raids on North Vietnam, navy Intruders attacked one of four vital highway bridges in the key port city of Haiphong and a cargo transfer and storage complex on the Red River, two miles southeast of the centre of Hanoi.

The Haiphong bridge attacked Friday is only one mile west of the centre of the city. Earlier this week, the Intruders attacked a yard in Haiphong, just west of the bridge.

Pilots followed radar to their targets in Friday's raids. They reported their bombs were on target but that darkness and overcast skies prevented a damage assessment.

Snoopers To Check Sleepers

TORONTO (CP) — A housing standards enforcement bylaw that would enable inspectors to check on who is sleeping in whose bedroom, was passed without argument Friday night by Toronto city council.

It allows city inspectors to check homes for long grass, torn linoleum flooring and a variety of required repairs.

One clause prohibits two unmarried persons of different sexes who are more than 10 years of age from sleeping in the same room.

June Rowlands, vice-president of the Association of Women Electors, who has urged the city for nine years to enforce housing standards, said common sense is essential to the bylaw's application.

She said the bylaw is designed to prevent overcrowding in low income homes and to force "slum landlords" to keep their properties neat.

"I think it is just about right," she said. "I'm sure the bylaw won't result in invasions of privacy."

Alderman Helen Johnston, who arrived at the meeting too late to vote on the bylaw, said in an interview that "it goes absolutely too far."

Taking particular exception to the bedroom clause, Mrs. Johnston said the bylaw was "unnecessary" and some of its provisions were "ridiculous."

The penalty for contravening any section of the new law can result in a $500 fine.

Harbor Board Won't Run Port: Bennett

'Ottawa Welcome As a Partner'

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

The Roberts Bank super-port will be an all-B.C. effort if Ottawa doesn't want to share it, Premier Bennett said Friday.

"I want to make it clear we are going to develop and run the port," the premier said in reaction to an Ottawa report that Transport Minister Hellyer had proposed the federal government do the job.

"We'll be glad to have them in as a partner," said Mr. Bennett. "And that includes the railroad into the port and everything."

The Ottawa report said Mr. Hellyer had proposed in a letter to the B.C. government that the National Harbors Board finance and operate the proposed port which is needed by 1970 to fufil a $650,000,000 coal contract with Japanese interests.

Mr. Bennett wouldn't say he had received such a letter but said he had been in correspondence with a number of federal ministers.

"As far as we're concerned the provincial government is going to develop Roberts Bank Port either on its own or preferably with the federal government as a partner," the premier said.

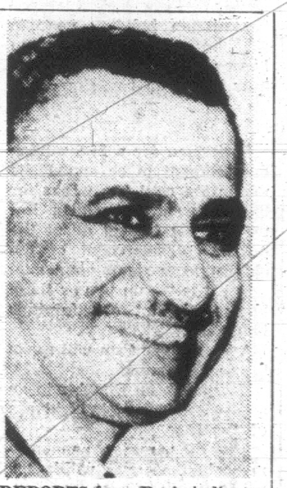
Act Not Yet Proclaimed

An act establishing a provincial harbor authority with power to borrow $25,000,000 was passed by the legislature last year but has not been proclaimed.

Mr. Bennett said Mr. Hellyer has shown interest in the port project where the previous transport minister Jack Pickersgill, did not.

The premier has said the province is willing to put $5,000,000 into a joint federal-provincial fund to get the port project started.

The coal deal was recently signed between Kaiser Steel Corporation and Japanese interests. Kaiser has taken over Crows Nest Industries Ltd. of Fernie, B.C., from where the coal will would be shipped to Japanese steel plants.



REPORTS from Paris indicate that Egyptian President Nasser is ready to negotiate with Israel, indirectly through a UN representative, in a bid to get talks rolling following the Middle East war.

COLLINGWOOD, Ont. (CP)—Nancy Greene, Canada's Olympic gold and silver medallist, came from behind today to win the women's giant slalom in the Canadian ski championships.

Ice Breakup Threat

BARROW, Alaska (AP) — A four-man British trans-Arctic expedition was reported in difficulty Friday on Arctic Ocean ice, which is breaking up about 60 miles northeast of this northern Alaska community.

Executions Are Murder, Britain Warns Rhodesia

LONDON (CP) — Britain warned Rhodesia in effect today that executioners of African prisoners will be regarded as murderers.

The Commonwealth office delivered the warnings in the light of a judicial ruling in Rhodesia that Ian Smith's minority government may hang more than 100 persons now under sentence of death in Rhodesian prisons.

Because of legal uncertainties there have been no executions in Rhodesia since the colony declared its independence from Britain in November, 1965, rather than give majority rule to the Negroes.

Three Rhodesian appeal judges Friday rejected an application by three Negroes, condemned to death for murder, to postpone their execution for four months, while they appealed to the Privy Council in London.

They were convicted in 1965, before Rhodesia broke away, for a gasoline bomb attack on a car in which a white farmer was killed.

DROP MANY A-BOMBS —OR NONE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A leading nuclear expert said today any use of battlefield atomic weapons at Khe Sanh in South Vietnam would be ineffective unless employed in large numbers.

"Legislators and retired military officers who advocate the use of tactical nuclear weapons to save Khe Sanh are apparently unaware of the limited utility of these weapons in the Khe Sanh situation," said Dr. Ralph E. Lapp, former Manhattan Project scientist who now is a consultant in Washington.

BLAIBERG STILL MAKES PROGRESS

CAPE TOWN (Reuters) — Dentist Philip Blaiberg was still making good progress in Groota Schuur Hospital today, two months after his historic heart transplant operation.

"Phil's full of beans," his wife Eileen said today. "We are just waiting for the day when he can come home."

A decision whether Blaiberg can leave the hospital probably will be given soon after heart surgeon Professor Chris Barnard returns later this month from his present world tour.

Romanians to Cut Red Ties If Soviet Attacks Pressed

BUDAPEST (CP) — Romanian sources warned today that if the Soviet Union and its followers continue criticizing Romania and China, Bucharest may refuse to co-operate with some Communist nations altogether.

The Romanian Communist party's central committee linked the walkout of the Romanian delegates from the world Communist meeting in the Hungarian capital Thursday to a threat that Romania might boycott a Soviet-bloc summit meeting in Sofia, Bulgaria, next week.

However, the sources suggested that if Romania attended the meeting it would again tell Communist leaders that it could brook no more internal criticism.

Zoltan Komocsin, chief of the host Hungarian delegation, apparently ignored the Romanian warning. He assailed both China and Romania in a speech today by charging that they are deviating from the policy of "proletarian internationalism."

He said this was the main reason "for the crumbling of unity" in the world Communist movement.

Komoscin, in turning to Roumania, called it unacceptable for a Communist party "to present its anti-Soviet attitude as a piece of evidence for its own independence."

An editorial in the official Hungarian Communist party newspaper today said "the interests of unity . . . require that the Romanian party revise its attitude and return to the joint work."

Romanian delegate Paul Niculescu-Mizil stalked out of the Budapest meeting charging that Soviet party ideologist Mikhail A. Suslov was trying to force the Kremlin's views on other delegates.

Niculescu-Mizil and other Romanians also were incensed by the meeting's refusal to disavow the Syrian Communist party's charge that Romania was pro-Israel, and by attacks on China.

Endorsing the walkout of its delegates, the Romanian party said that "continued participation in the consultative meeting would have meant accepting the promotion of practices and methods of condemning other parties, or imposing the will of some parties on other parties."

LOLLIPOPS COME IN THE MAIL

MPs Get Licking for Playing Hookey

(See story Page 39.)

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — A wrapped lollipop accompanied each letter to 262 members of Parliament, chiding MPs for their conduct during the defeat of the government tax bill on Feb. 19 and this week's vote of confidence in the Pearson administration.

Peter Wilhelmson, head of the history department at St. Catharines Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, said Friday night he edited the letter, composed by Grade 13 students and took out some strong words.

But he said he felt the students should have a chance to express themselves.

The mimeographed letter read:

"We are writing as concerned young Canadians. The events beginning Feb. 19, 1968, clearly show that the behavior of many MPs leaves much to be desired.

"In a country where politics are generally viewed with contempt by youth, the latest activities of many of our elected representatives offer very few alternatives.

"We are disappointed in the extent of unwarranted absenteeism, the placing of party loyalties ahead of loyalty to the people of Canada and a general lack of responsible conduct leading to a misinterpretation of the mood of the Canadian people.

"We are worried about the great number of personal attacks that have unfortunately been too much a part of the latest crisis.

"We hope in our way that our little gift will help to overcome this situation which we realize often occurs out of emotion or party loyalty."

Randy Olling, a student, said 30 pupils drafted the letter. The idea to send it to MPs occurred during a history class. Stuart Beckett started the letter and other students voiced their opinions.

It cost $2 for envelopes and $2.20 for paper. Letters mailed to MPs are postage free.

INSIDE CITY HALL

'Kite' Is Attached To Lot of Facts

By JIM HUME
Times City Hall Reporter

One of the more interesting accusations of the past week was that The Times was "flying a kite" when it published on Thursday the interesting future of the Wharf Street-waterfront area.

Hume

In that story we stated one of the major recommendations to be put forward by a team of economists conducting a land-use feasibility survey would be a strong suggestion that high-density residential use would be the best answer.

"Kite-flying" or fact?

Well, let's take a look at a report which, after this is written, will be tucked away safely in a filing cabinet.

It states, and this is a direct quote: "The waterfront land between Whart Street and the sea should be developed privately for hotels, apartments or offices, but it would be desirable to obtain a relatively narrow easement of say 15 feet for pedestrian access along the waterfront."

●

The report goes on to spell out that great care must be taken in the over-all design to ensure not concrete canyons but spacious, vital development.

Quote number two: The entire Inner Harbor area—that's from Johnson Street to the Legislative Buildings—should be "oriented to tourism, commerce, apartments and public use."

This is the underlying theme for the major recommendation of the economists and planners when they present their first proposing report, that the area bounded by Johnson, Government, Wharf and the Causeway, be an area in which private capital is encouraged to locate high-density residential apartments.

It's a good recommendation, too, which will bring people back into the heart of the city to live and halt the trend which has seen a steady dwindling of the resident populace over the past 20 years.

The high-density residences—and no one is suggesting that this will be a lone recommendation—will be linked with widened streets to handle vehicular traffic and a series of pedestrian malls which will duck in and out of buildings, underneath buildings and across landscaped areas to provide one of the most attractive high-rise apartment areas in North America.

That run-down area of the city is going modern while retaining all the charm of the past. And it can't come soon enough.

Somewhere in that more than 50-acre complex will be a new parking facility, probably down at the Causeway end; a new hotel on the waterfront proper and possibly a modern service station tied in with some specialty stores.

Now for two more items just to make your weekend and to advise you that while the provincial government may find it essential to slash the school construction budget, private developers appear anxious to prove Mayor Hugh Stephen an accurate forecaster.

You will recall that early this year the mayor said that while Victoria had a record $21 million building year in 1967 he anticipated an even higher total of building permits before 1968 was out.

●

Look then for a $1.6 million development to be announced within the next two weeks for the south end of Douglas. No, we are not talking about the possible development of the old Empress steam-plant site.

But it is within two or three blocks of that once-familiar landmark.

A Vancouver firm will make the announcement.

Now north on Douglas to an area within a couple of blocks of The Bay.

Look for major announcement in that area within the next month or so, an announcement which will see a one-block length of Douglas get a face-lift long overdue.

There are two other development deals in the wind for the immediate downtown area, but we have to sit on those for a few weeks until all the loose ends are tied up.

●

Let's just say this for the present: Mayor Stephen was right when he said 1968-69 would be good years for the city.

And a good weekend to Bill Long, secretary-treasurer of the Regional District, who thinks one of the municipal engineers tipped the Times off to the secret-ballot selection of Ker, Priestman and Graeme as sewerage system consultants.

And to the municipal engineers who think Bill Long fed the information this way.

To tell the truth my young son Jonathan was down at the butchers buying these sausages for supper and he heard . . . but what the heck, nobody's going to believe me anyway.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

Thanks to the News of The North, a Yellowknife, N.W.T. tabloid, we can answer the question "what ever happened to Bernard Gillie?" The popular former principal at S. J. Willis has been appointed to head a new territorial department of education after a stint as superintendent of education for Mackenzie District.

He will start recruiting teachers next year.

The same issue shows a picture of a N.W.T. commissioner presenting a medal to the mother of the first baby born there in 1968 (who will wear the name Artica Nind). The commissioner is Stu Hodgson, a former IWA official well known on the coast.

★ ★ ★

We had a story the other day about Leap Year babies who celebrate only one birthday in four. Now we hear about Leading Seaman Ronald G. Lambert of 3020 Glen Lake Road who will have two birthdays this year.

He's a cook in HMCS Columbia, a destroyer now cruising the south seas. Columbia is scheduled to cross the international date line Monday bound from Fiji to Pago Pago. Crossing the date line the ship loses a day and the next day is also March 4. And that's Leading Seaman Lambert's birthday.

The gentleman in the motorized wheelchair pulled to the curb by the Douglas Building and waited. Along came a young fellow with a brief case and he was hailed and asked to place a couple of packages in the nearby post box. It took two trips because the passerby wouldn't relinquish his brief case. The man in the wheelchair nodded his thanks. And he went on his way aware that all men are brothers . . . but unaware that his good Samaritan was Mines Minister Don Brothers.

No names, no pack drill, but you could recognize the old soldiers in the line-up at the Motor Vehicles Branch Wednesday. When the Commissionaire with the regimental sergeant major style, waxed tips moustache shouted to the doorman, "Give me another six" you could see the old vets tremble.

Some of them shuffled through the line-up at attention all the way, eyes to the front, chins in and thumbs along their trouser seams. Nobody dared switch to a shorter line once he'd placed them. Several checked their buttons. One man was eating what looked like his cigarette. If he'd told us to dress the line "You 'orrible shower" we'd have broken ranks and run, licence plates or not.

Les Parkinson, manager of the Empress, says that contrary to what some people might expect, the hotel is looking forward to hearing the bells peal out when the new Belleville Street carillon begins concerts March 9 at 4:30 p.m.

He says the installation, a gift from the Netherlands community of B.C. will probably prove to be a wonderful addition to Victoria's tourist attractions.

Our "small world" department again involves church-cum-movie editor Norm Cribbens who was in Hollywood last week. He was chatting with Big Bill Tucker, a character who stands outside Grauman's Chinese Theatre wearing a Buffalo Bill suit and a long white beard.

Well actually, Big Bill was demonstrating his bird calls and who did he attract but a winter migrant who normally nests here—former alderman and former MLA, J. Donald Smith.

Mr. Smith said he was enjoying a "brief vacation" and would be returning to Victoria soon.

Unpaid Bill Costly

George Coghill, of no fixed address, pleaded guilty in central court Friday on three charges of false pretences.

Court was told he gave cheques for $41, $10 and $15 to pay for groceries at a Colwood store when there was no money in his bank account, Dec. 14, 15 and 16.

He was remanded to March 6 for sentencing.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

A weakening Pacific disturbance was moving across the eastern interior this morning and a high pressure area is building over B.C. behind it. While skies are clearing over most of the southern interior, showers have persisted over the south coast and central area.

Another Pacific storm will hit the north coast today with rain and southeasterly gales. It will weaken and work its way southeastward across the province Sunday.

Fraud Admitted

A Saskatchewan man was fined $75 in central court Friday after pleading guilty to taking lodgings by fraud.

Colin Crone, 34, said he had left his room at a Belleville St. motel to go to a job in Duncan. He planned to pay the bill when he completed his contract there, he said.

The bill totalled $133.45 when he checked out.

MOVIE BLAMED

Suspects Arrested In Killings

LA PORTE, Ind. (UPI) — A 20-year-old man and his 13-year-old girl friend — who said they were inspired by the movie Bonnie and Clyde — were captured today as suspects in the gun slayings of two Michigan service station attendants.

The man, identified as Charles Martin, Grand Rapids, Mich., was immediately charged with murder.

Police identified his girl friend as Sandra Goache, also of Grand Rapids.

The bullet-riddled bodies of the attendants, Gerald Gort, 53, and Jack McRoy, 17, Grand Rapids, were found today by a motorist who stopped to buy gasoline at the station in Walker City, a suburb of Grand Rapids.

Several hours later Martin and Goache were caught at a roadblock on the northern Indiana toll road and taken to the La Porte county jail at La Porte.

QUESTIONS ON THE VIET WAR

Why the Bombing? How the Survival?

North Vietnam, about as big as Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island put together and with population of 19,000,000, has undergone three full years of U.S. bombing. It has been at war to some degree for the better part of a quarter-century. The following article, using material from many sources, assesses the impact of the bombing and examines a question often raised: How has North Vietnam survived?

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Q. How much bomb tonnage has been dropped on North Vietnam by American planes and how does this compare with what they dropped on Europe in the Second World War and in the 1950-1953 Korean conflict?

A. It is nearly as much as U.S. forces dropped in Europe and double the amount in Korea. Pentagon sources say that as of mid-November, 1,630,500 tons were dropped on targets in North and South Vietnam. Of this, probably about 1,200,000 tons hit North Vietnamese targets. By now the latter figure may even surpass the 1,544,000 tons dropped on enemy targets in the European theatre by the Americans in the Second World War. In the Korean War, Americans dropped 635,000 tons of bombs.

Q. How, then, does North Vietnam survive this punishment?

A. North Vietnam is an agrarian nation. Its economy was at a low level even before the bombing. More than half its industrial output is from handcrafts. North Vietnam is mostly highland country, much less prosperous than South Vietnam. Its people are accustomed to austerity and rural poverty. Even severe bombing was unlikely to reduce very far an economy already at so low a level. Stated U.S. policy has been to bomb selected military targets and avoid wherever possible hitting population centres.

Q. What is the purpose of bombing North Vietnam?

A. U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara said in August: "The bombing of North Vietnam has always been considered a supplement to and not a substitute for an effective counter-insurgency campaign in South Vietnam." He said the objectives were: 1—to reduce the flow and increase the cost of infiltrating men and supplies into South Vietnam; 2—to make it clear to the North Vietnamese they must pay the price for supporting the Viet Cong war in the South, and 3—to raise the morale of the South Vietnamese.

Q. What did North Vietnam do to counter the effects of the bombing?

A. The North Vietnamese newspaper Nhan Dan has published a general public mobilization order. It demanded concentration of all possible forces to keep communications lines open, make rapid repairs, develop new land and water lines and new communications between city and rural areas. Populations have been dispersed, along with key industries and important agricultural enterprises.

The nation stresses "semi-mechanical transport." It has, for example, tens of thousands of bicycles available, many donated by Communist East Germany. Each bicycle can carry up to 600 pounds of supplies. Gen. Harold K. Johnson, U.S. Army chief of staff, has reported that these bicycles carry "a fairly substantial quantity of supplies" southward to insurgent forces. McNamara said the transport southward of only 100 tons of arms and ammunition daily could sustain the sort of fight they have been waging. The North Vietnamese also have been relying heavily on small watercraft to carry cargo where bridges have been bombed out.

In addition, what one U.S. officer called the "astounding recoverability" of the North from bomb damage probably is due in part to coolie labor. Authoritative sources with contacts in Hanoi say about 250,000 coolies are in North Vietnam to help with repairs, apart from Chinese military advisers and weapons technicians.

Q. To what extent have North Vietnamese military installations been attacked?

A. U.S. airmen have carried out hundreds of thousands of sorties since 1965. U.S. officials have reported destroying thousands of vehicles, rolling stock and water craft and hitting dozens of bridges, along with oil installations, power plants, storage tanks, troop barracks and other fixed targets. The government had authorized strikes against all but 57 of 359 targets recommended by the Joint Chiefs of Staff up to the middle of last year, and since then several dozen others have been added.

Many targets were hit repeatedly: More than 50 troop barracks, more than 50 bridges, more than 50 surface-to-air missile sites, scores of military supply depots, a dozen oil plants and a dozen power plants, in addition to ports, air fields, rail yards, munitions plants, iron and steel factories, cement plants, naval bases, communications installations, radar sites. Repeated assaults are considered necessary because of North Vietnamese ability to repair the damage.

Q. What about food supplies in North Vietnam?

A. Rice, meat, wheat, sugar and cotton are rationed. The bombing has led to increased commodity prices and shorter rations, particularly in the southern areas of North Vietnam. Work in rice paddies often must be done in darkness because of the bombing, reducing efficiency.

The meat ration has been halved since 1966. Rice is often rationed on the basis of occupation, so that a heavy laborer gets about 45 pounds a month; children and elderly, 15. Often if a family is not engaged in producing a rationed commodity, it cannot get any of it. Sugar is an example. This tends to encourage black marketing.

Q. Then, despite three years of bombing, does it seem now that North Vietnam will carry on indefinitely?

A. The signs are that Hanoi wants to hold out. Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, the top military leader, says that the war now has reached a "strategic and tactical stalemate." He says this means inevitable defeat of the Americans. He claims major problems of feeding the population and supplying the troops have been solved, despite the U.S. bombing. A slogan recently published in Hanoi put it this way: "Our people have iron feet and copper shoulders."

AGAINST MISSILE ATTACK

'U.S. Must Defend Canada'

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (CP) — An "enormous politically complex" problem is poised by what U.S. cities to defend with nuclear-tipped rockets, Democratic Representative Cornelius Gallagher of New Jersey said Friday. He said Canada faces the same situation.

Gallagher and editor Christopher Young of the Ottawa Citizen spoke on North American defence to the Canada-U.S. section of the International Press Institute.

Gallagher said he sensed "drift" in what the two countries feel are common continental defence needs and warned that a continued Soviet bomber threat requires Canada's continued presence in the 10-year-old North American Air Defence Command.

Young, substituting for Senator Grattan O'Leary, president of the Ottawa Journal, and other Canadians said there is no massive feeling in Canada to withdraw from NORAD. Young said, however, the move toward missile defences against intercontinental missiles is far out of Canada's reach.

PACT EXPIRES MAY 12

Canada and the U.S. are holding discussions about extending the NORAD agreement expiring May 12. Canada has said it will not join in the $5,000,000,000 start on a "thin" missile defence being launched by the U.S. to meet what it believes will be a Chinese threat by the mid-1970s.

Young suggested Canada's role should still be peacekeeping operations against "brushfire" wars. But Canada neither politically nor "in conscience" could deny the U.S. any bases that were needed for continental defence, even if outside NORAD.

Gallagher, chairman of the U.S. section of the joint interparliamentary conference, said the U.S. is bound geographically to defend Canada "from external aggression almost to the exclusion of whether Canada wants to be defended by us."

"She is our northernmost land mass and the most likely entry point for foreign missiles and planes from the Soviet Union and/or China," he said. He contended NORAD has given Canada "a voice in planning that is really disproportionate to her contribution" of Bomarc missiles, interceptor aircraft and real estate for radar detection.

$800 Paid Back; Sentence Suspended

A youth who had stolen $800 and spent it all was given a suspended sentence in central court Friday on a charge of breaking, entering and theft.

James Russell, 20, of 646 Admirals Road, was put on probation for 18 months by Magistrate William Ostler.

Russell had been convicted Feb. 23 of stealing the money from 497 Island Highway Feb. 3 and made restitution of the full amount this week.

Character witnesses testified he was basically honest and has been in the navy for three years.

UBC Confers Honors On Two Victorians

The University of British Columbia will honor two prominent Victorians at the spring congregation May 29 to 31.

Former Mayor Richard B. Wilson and scientist Sir Charles Wright will receive honorary degrees.

Mr. Wilson, chancellor of the University of Victoria, is past president of the Community Chest. He was chairman of the university building fund for Victoria College and chairman of the university development board.

Sir Charles was a member of the 1910 Antarctic expedition under Captain Robert Scott and in 1913 was the leader of the expedition which discovered the last camp of Scott and his companions.

In the First World War he developed the "trench wireless" system of communication used by the British in France.

In the Second World War he headed an establishment of 600 scientists developing new techniques seeking to counter German weapons.

He recently retired as a physicist with the Defence Research Establishment (Pacific).

Degrees will also go to: Governor-General Roland Michener; Dr. Hugh McLennan, Dr. Adelaide Sinclair; P. A. Woodward; Dr. A. W. Matthews, Dr. Blythe Eagles and Dr. Walter Gropius.

The annual meeting of the Victoria YM-YWCA will be held on Thursday, March 7, at 8:00 p.m. in the "Y" auditorium at 880 Courtney Street.

Cuban Ship Hijack Bid Said Thwarted by U.S.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Exiles sailing from Florida in two boats tried to hijack the Cuban cattle ship 26 de Julio but the attempt apparently was prevented by U.S. government agents, a militant exile leader said Friday.

Dr. Orlando Bosch said one of two boats was intercepted by American authorities and her four passengers jailed at Miami.

Bosch said he didn't know if the other boat made contact with the Cuban ship, but had received word that the 26 de Julio arrived at Havana Thursday night. It had sailed from Quebec.

The same ship rammed one of its own lifeboats off the Virginia coast Tuesday when three men tried to escape to political asylum in the United States.

Havana radio has made no mention of any attack on the 26 de Julio but has complained that U.S. Coast Guard vessels made "a warlike manoeuvre" as the ship rammed its lifeboat. The coast guard did not intervene.

Cuts or Taxes or Both

IT IS IRONIC THAT THE FEDeral cabinet should now be giving urgent thought to retrenchment in expenditures as a means of balancing at least part of the $475 millions lost when the tax bill was defeated a few days ago. Similar concern earlier might have spared the government its recent crisis. Drastic cuts in spending have been widely urged across the country as one effective method of balancing the budget and some reductions have indeed been made. But the size of the nation's annual budget leaves a strong public suspicion that much more could be done to curb expenses. The extra taxes proposed would, of course, have had an anti-inflationary purpose as well as a revenue-raising one, but parliamentary opposition to further levies appears to be even stronger now than when the bill was defeated.

In addition, a section of the cabinet is reportedly in favor of expense cuts rather than tax increases. This measure would provide a much better background for aspirants to the prime ministership, and for the general election which it is now generally conceded must come within the next few months. There still remains the possibility of another government defeat if the opposition stands united against a tax bill, and it may be taken for granted that the cabinet will probe every possibility of avoiding this by proposing a retrenchment.

The catch, of course, is that retrenchments are, in their application, no more popular than tax increases. Cabinet members fight doggedly to avoid cuts in their departments, backbenchers become alarmed at suggestions for cutbacks which would affect their constituencies, and the public at large, while urging economies in principle for everyone, tends to protest loudly when the economizing comes too close to home. Government economies are for other people, or other areas, or other times—not for us, here, now.

In any case, whether by taxation or economies or a combination of both, it is essential that a better foundation be available to the government to meet its responsibilities in balancing its accounts and supporting the Canadian dollar. Much more than party political fortunes are at stake, for any further wavering of foreign confidence in our currency could quite possibly precipitate a devaluation, with all its incalculable results.

Shackled by Racism

IN AN INTERVIEW WHICH INdicates the contents of the President's Civil Disorders Commission report, Illinois Governor Otto Kerner, chairman, declares racism to be the root cause of riots of recent times in the big cities of the United States. This is the basic source of the trouble, not poverty or cynicism, he says. But poverty obviously plays a significant part, and poverty, in the chairman's view, is an outgrowth of racism.

Urban problems stem from the exodus of wealthier whites away from the core of the big city into the suburbs. "They take with them the tax base and leave those who need services by local government — and with no tax base from which these services can be paid."

"The Negro," says the governor, "can't move out of the core area, and he can't enter job opportunities" because he is too poor to move and because, apart from needing education for work, he faces the difficulties of filling occupations open to him in service industries where prejudice exists against allowing Negro repairmen into a white home.

Governor Kerner points to an escape route: federal funding which could provide the services needed in the ghettoes. And elimination of some of the economic blocks which hold Negroes from adequate housing, adequate education and adequate employment opportunities no doubt could ease the horrors of continuing "long, hot summers." Still to be determined is a treatment for the emotionalism that sets the Negro apart. The Civil Disorders Commission was not instructed to offer specific solutions to the widely ramified problems. Its job was to study and report causes.

It has, however, presented recommendations calculated to avert the division of the United States into "two societies, one black, one white—separate and unequal", a sort of garrison state, and a threat to "the future of every American." This can be avoided if Americans will generate the new will "to tax ourselves to the extent necessary to meet the vital needs of the nation." That tax bill, by some estimates, could equal the costs of carrying on the war in Viet Nam.

The prospective financial burden is startling, the alternative, as the commission sees it, infinitely more dismaying—nothing less than the destructive division of a great nation into mutually hostile and dangerous parts.

Little Interest, No Fair

THE LUXTON FAIR COMMITtee has faced reality and decided to abandon this familiar agricultural show. The community which had sponsored the event is no longer primarily an agricultural community and most of the people are no longer interested enough to work for retention of the fair, says the committee chairman. This is a reasonable reflection of the changes which have been occurring increasingly on the lower Island and elsewhere in Canada. A multitude of other attractions have assumed priority in the public mind over displays of agricultural produce and the many crafts of the rural home.

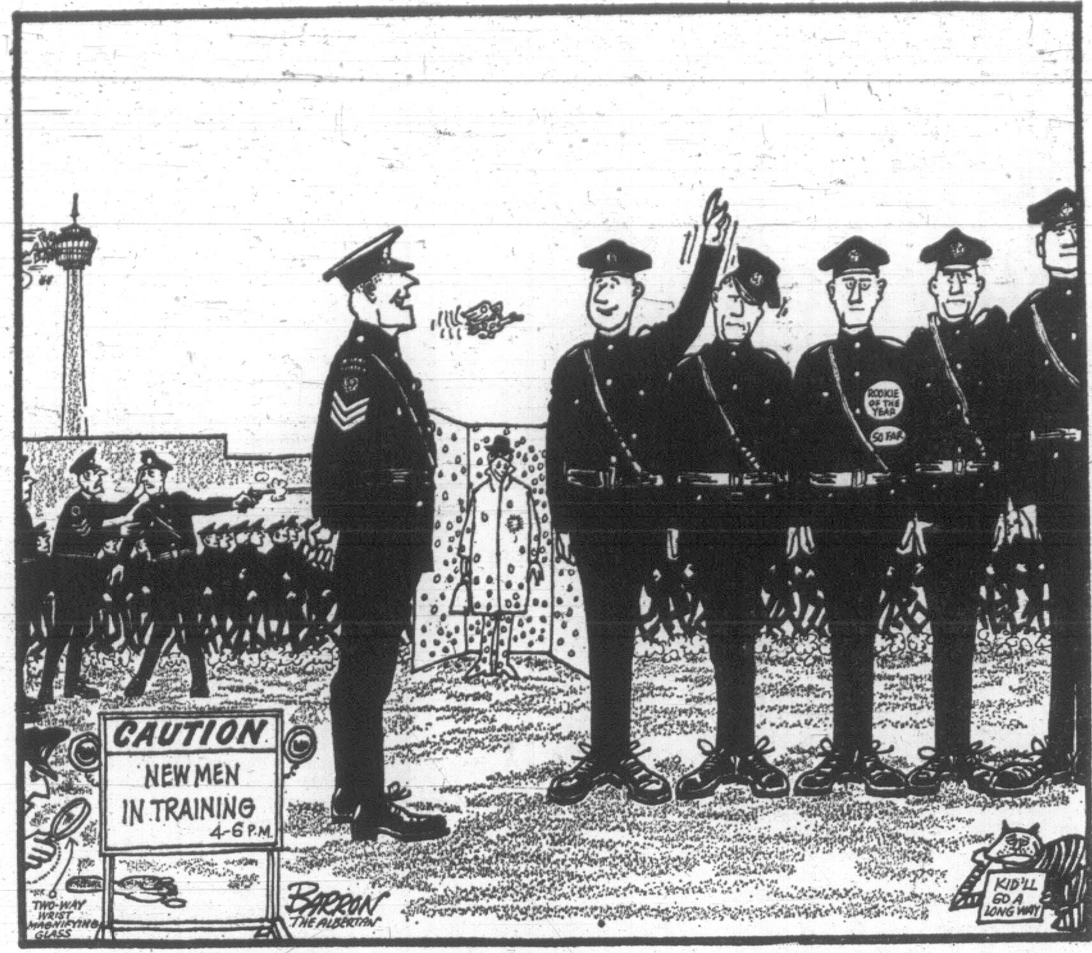
The migration to urban centres is general in this country. An adult generation today may recall the farm as part of normal living for a large number of our people. Their children or grandchildren will have no such memories. Without such a background they can be expected to pay less and less attention to community fairs and, presumably, concentrate more and more on expositions related more directly to their current way of living. An era wanes, a new one takes its place, but the demise of the country fair does not occur without some sentimental regrets.

Political Slalom

THE CANADIAN PRESS SAYS that Mrs. Margaret Rideout, parliamentary secretary to the minister of national health and welfare, was so impressed by Canada's alpine queen, Nancy Greene, at their meeting in Ottawa this week that she suggested the Olympic grand slalom gold medalist go into politics.

Nancy, the report adds, grinned diplomatically.

The grin, like the Mona Lisa's smile, may have been enigmatic. Was the world champion from Rossland, conscious of the political events in Ottawa today, thinking there are some long, slippery slopes where even she would prefer not to travel?



"... no, I'm sorry, Haroldson ... and with all due respect to your mother's teaching ... 'to err is human, to forgive divine' has no REAL meaning in police work ..."

Outlaw Strikes

With reference to Bill 33 introduced in the current session of the B.C. legislature, it is encouraging to find one government in Canada with the intestinal fortitude to take some action to reduce the effects of the blackmail being practised by labor unions. But it should go further and impose compulsory arbitration in all labor management disputes and outlaw strikes.

This would eliminate the continual erosion of the purchasing power of the dollar which is assuming alarming proportions.

Labor complains of rising prices. Who causes prices to rise? Each time labor demands and obtains, by a strike or threatened strike, an increase in wages and fringe benefits without a comensurate increase in productivity industry is forced to raise prices, if possible, to compensate for this increase in costs.

In the case of the pulp and newsprint companies, competition from similar industries outside of Canada prevents any increase in prices. Consequently, to satisfy the demands of the labor leaders, dividends must be decreased. In simple terms, those who supply the money to keep industry operating thereby giving employment to labor, receive less for the use of that money so that labor can get an unjustified share of the profits.—

India's Revolt Could Blast the Non-Nuclear Plan

INDIA put it on the record this past week at the Geneva disarmament conference: she is in revolt against the proposed nuclear non-proliferation treaty (NPT). She all but refuses to sign away her option to build atomic weapons. This Indian stand is reflected, with only slightly less emphasis, by many of the other potential members of the atomic club. The confrontation between "nukes" (nuclear-weapon states) and "non-nukes," so widely feared when Washington and Moscow were hammering out the draft treaty, has now come to pass.

Frye

Because it is not a surprise, the revolt of the "non-nukes" has failed to make headlines. It is, nonetheless, one of the profoundly significant developments of our time.

It is not an overstatement to say that if the non-proliferation treaty—barring nuclear "haves" from giving the bomb and "have-nots" from taking it—does collapse in failure, the shape of the world in the 1970's will be almost as different from our present world as our present world is different from the pre-atomic era.

With at least a dozen, and perhaps a score, of small countries in possession of the bomb, every small war—such as the Arab-Israel war of June, 1967—will have the potential of nuclear holocaust.

When the danger of a revolt against the NPT first came to light, Soviet and American disarmament negotiators pooh-poohed it. "Oh, they'll come around" was the confident prediction. How could they hold out if the Soviet Union and the United States agreed?

But they have not come around; and unless Washington and Moscow do a major selling job in the UN General Assembly this spring—when the issue is due for a showdown—there is no sign they ever will come around.

Bonn Wants Escape

This fact affects a wide range of other events. Pressure on West Germany to sign the treaty is being greatly eased. Bonn bowed to the pressure with much reluctance, and obviously would leap at an opportunity to escape.

In such a case, the Soviet Union would have failed to achieve the principal objective she has sought from the treaty, namely curbs on West Germany's nuclear potential. The United States would have absorbed the anger of Bonn and other West European allies for nothing.

Prospects for a European-security settlement, including incipient reunification of Germany, would have been dealt a severe blow—prospects which had begun to seem a bit brighter in recent months, in part as a result of the prospective non-proliferation treaty, and in part because of direct overtures from Bonn to the East.

India, the leader of the NPT revolt, has what seem to her excellent reasons for the stand. She fears Red China, and is not satisfied with alternative provisions for her security in the event of nuclear challenge.

The Sino-Soviet split has not reached the point where Moscow is willing to give India an open guarantee of protection from China; and India does not want such a guarantee from the United States alone.

Instead of guaranteeing India, the Soviet Union has risked affronting her by warning that countries which fail to accept NPT restraints will be at a disadvantage when it comes to receiving peaceful atomic assistance. Russia has a considerable atoms-for-peace program in at least seven countries, five of them non-Communist.

Can Twist Arms

Washington, too, can apply meaningful pressure in several parts of the world, including India, by threatening to withhold atoms-for-peace aid and persuading friends such as Canada to follow suit. The American delegate at Geneva has hinted at such a course.

Whether pressures of this kind are likely to take effect will become apparent in the UN Assembly this spring, where a climactic chapter of the NPT story may be written.

The tip-off will be the size of the majority the United States and the Soviet Union are able to muster for the treaty in the face of resistance from such smaller powers as India, Sweden, Egypt, Brazil and perhaps even Italy.

It will be the first time in the UN's 23-year history that Washington and Moscow have been on the same side of a major contentious issue, working together against active small-power opposition.

Dragging Their Heels

Even some Communist countries may be among the heel-draggers. Romania has said at Geneva, that if the great powers want smaller countries to accept inspection, they themselves should be subjected to it as well—something Russia has shown no sign of willingness to do.

Large elements of pride are involved for the "non-nukes." Despite elaborate efforts to persuade them it is not so, possession of nuclear weapons is still widely equated with first-class international stature.

A UN proclamation glorifying nuclear self-denial could help make the sacrifice seem noble and high-principled. But to be persuasive, the great powers may well have to accept meaningful restraints on their own nuclear arsenals.

Whether Russia will pay this price to obtain nuclear curbs on West Germany is a major unanswered question.

FROM WASHINGTON

By RICHARD PURSER

Piling Faggots Around the Stake

AS though the United States didn't have enough troubles, Congress is about to be subjected to the strongest push in nearly two decades for passage of legislation sweepingly restricting the civil liberties of citizens. A lengthy and remarkable bill, drastically affecting such traditional American rights as freedom of speech, advocacy and travel, and further extending the "Big Brother" function of the state, was quietly slipped into the Senate hopper by Senator James O. Eastland (Democrat—Mississippi).

Purser

For the better part of two weeks it has lain virtually unnoticed by those who might most be expected to raise a howl at its contents. It will not remain unnoticed for long. Senator Eastland plans to open hearings next week before his notorious Internal Security Subcommittee on the proposed bill "to strengthen the internal security of the United States." He hopes it will clear the subcommittee's parent Senate Judiciary Committee, of which he is also chairman, within a month and be passed by Congress before it adjourns for the election campaign.

Mood of the Times

Why does the toughest legislation since the 1950s to counteract alleged "subversion" appear now, in 1968? Its proponents believe that the popular mood against manifestations of "disloyalty" is the strongest it has been since the days of the late Senator Joseph McCarthy, when cold war tensions led to a national search for scapegoats.

They cite the U.S. failure to win the Vietnam war, strident domestic agitation against the war, rise of the "new left" and — possibly above all — fear of growing racial disorder. The sponsors, who number 20 senators, or one-fifth of the total membership, which is a good start, bank on the reticence of liberal members to vote against at least parts of the bill in view of the querulous national mood of this election year.

The most blatant measure of the many in Sen. Eastland's bill seeks to define what might be called "peacetime treason." This is an attempt to get around the two provisions of the U.S. constitution which declare (1) that treason against the United States "'shall consist only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort," and (2) that only Congress has the power to declare war and in effect to create a legal "enemy" of the U.S.

Congress has never declared war against North Vietnam, and aid to that country by a U.S. citizen is therefore not legal treason. The Eastland bill would establish the new concept of "adversary," meaning "any foreign nation or armed group which is engaged in open hostilities against the United States or with which the armed forces of the United States are engaged in open hostilities." Giving "aid or comfort" to an "adversary" would become punishable by a $10,000 fine or 10 years of imprisonment, or both.

Other provisions would prohibit members of allegedly Communist-backed organizations from holding jobs in any public educational institution, or membership in any labor union; deny passports to any U.S. citizen, even a citizen by birth, who refuses to specifically swear his allegiance to the U.S. when applying; making it a crime punishable by a fine of $5,000 or imprisonment for five years, or both, to refuse to surrender a passport to a U.S. official on demand; and providing similar penalties for anyone who travels to any country against the wish of the secretary of state.

Another measure encourages insubordination by government employees against their departmental superiors when testifying before congressional committees, and would prevent punishment of such behavior. This extraordinary provision stems from the ire of some Senate investigators at the state department's demotion of one of its officers who provided the probers with confidential information against the department's orders.)

The bill even goes so far at this point as to provide a $5,000 fine or five years in prison, or both, for any government official who causes any lesser official "to be demoted, suspended, dismissed, retired, or otherwise disciplined" on account of what inside data he spills to a committee. (The bill's drafters were thinking chiefly of protecting informers who might reveal "subversive activity" inside government departments or agencies.)

Sen. Eastland would further set up still another arm of the bureaucracy, a "Security Administration for Executive Departments," headed by an administrator appointed by the president (with the Senate's approval) for a ten-year term. The administrator, backed by a "Deputy Administrator for Investigations" and a "Deputy Administrator for Evaluations," would ferret out subversive aspects of government personnel security cases and refer them to the FBI.

Idle But Highly Paid

The administrator shall also be able to refer cases to the Subversive Activities Control Board, which should be gratifying to the latter's members. They have been drawing high salaries for years while not handling a single case, owing to the lack of subversive activities to control. The administrator is presumably expected to be better able to find some.

All these are "security" programs, which are quite separate from the government's "loyalty" programs. The two sets of programs are, however, to be better co-ordinated. With the help of the administrator, of course.

There is much more in the bill. Penalties for promoting riots or advocating overthrow of the government will no doubt attract much attention in the forthcoming hearings, but most noteworthy is a measure attempting to weaken the Supreme Court's ability to counter the bill's provisions.

The whole bill is really an attempt to restore to law a number of statutes earlier ruled unconstitutional by the court. It will so rule again if the Eastland bill becomes law, possibly the bill's backers really want to see.
provoking the all-out confrontation between the court and the Congress which the bill's backers realy want to see.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

Go for a hike around the Centennial Trail at Francis Park to see the changes that are taking place.

Along the southern slope the Indian plum is now in leaf, while the Oregon grape shows the yellow buds almost in bloom.

The ground is covered with the leaves of the shooting star and in many places the erythronium leaves have appeared.

As you drop down into the deep shade, look for the old stump and see how busy the termites have been. Examine the workings of these interesting little animals.

As you work up the slope by the jumble of glacier pluckings perhaps you will see the squirrels that live among the rocks. They have survived the winter and are now very active.

Wander along the northern slope where the mosses are like a deep carpet. See how the tiny leaf of the sea blush is showing, and along the way watch for the giant slug. This slug is the largest of its species.

Along the margins of the ponds the osier dogwood branches and twigs are turning a bright red, giving a very pleasing effect to the scene, while on the water the duckweed is forming.

As you come around to the higher ground stop and look at the tall, clean trunks of the Douglas firs and the scattered underbrush where one can find peace and quietness.

Along the way there are a number of "flower-pots" which nature has made from old stumps, each one a little different in the flora growing from it and each a little different in formation.

There are several old snags nearby showing holes made by the woodpeckers. If we think a little we see how these old dead tree trunks are a part of the ecology of the forest. They provide food and shelter for many creatures.

Liberal Leadership Drive Turns on Generation Split

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA—With five weeks left to run, the Liberal leadership race seems at last to be taking on some discernible patterns.

Instead of the expected left-right ideological split, the contenders seem to be divided along generational lines, with Pierre Trudeau personifying the thrust of the young, and epitomizing Paul Martin the tenacity of the old. Though Martin is only 18 years Trudeau's senior, their difference in manner, perception and attitude could be measured in light-years. John Turner Allan MacEachen, Joe Greene, and Eric Kierans (who happens to be the second oldest candidate) belong to the new generation of Liberal leaders; Robert Winters and Paul Hellyer (who happens to be the second youngest candidate) belong to the older group. Mitchell Sharp remains a kind of transitional figure, acceptable as a possible compromise candidate to both camps.

Newman

What makes this contest exciting and unique is that the leadership of the party is not about to be transferred by the kind of osmosis that has characterized most previous Liberal successions. This time, the process will consist of a most un-Liberal-like power struggle.

Party Changed

In the process of waging this struggle, the various candidates are discovering that the Liberal party they are wooing has changed. The power brokers of yesterday can no longer "deliver" their areas. Power has been dispersed as the Liberal party has progressively been democratized during the Pearson stewardship.

The changes in Canadian society and the influence of the communications media have irrevocably altered the party structure, so that power centres are constantly shifting and the "ward-boss" mentality is gradually disappearing.

Viewing in this context, the Liberal leadership race has become a fascinating study in democracy at work. Although Pierre Trudeau appears to be ahead at the moment, he has probably gone as far as he can without the aid of an organization behind him. (Just as Paul Hellyer has probably gone as far as he can, on the strength of his superb organization.)

The candidates are all discovering that they are, in effect, running miniature general election campaigns, and that to win, they will have to appeal to the many diverse economic, religious, regional and racial groups that make up this country.

It's difficult to judge how the candidates are doing across the country, but in Toronto, where the most constituency delegate-nominating meetings have been held, Paul Hellyer was clearly ahead up to the end of last week. Out of 96 delegates chosen, he had 24 commitments, Sharp had 13, Trudeau 11, Turner five, MacEachen four and Winters four, with the other 35 undecided or uncommitted.

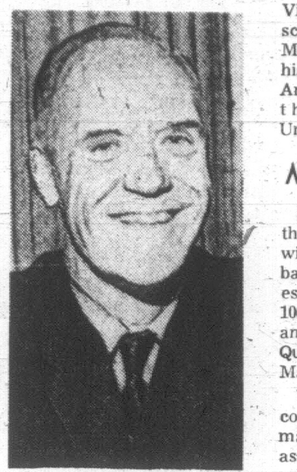
The main effect of last week's parliamentary crisis will be to turn the leadership contest into something of a non-campaign. Because their presence will be required in the Commons over the two or three weeks, the contenders will only be able to campaign on weekends and during the week before the actual convention.

Sharp Hurt

Th two candidates who will be helped most by this shortage of time are likely to be Trudeau and Martin. Martin, because he knows most people in the party anyway, and Trudeau, because he won't have to go out too much to test his charisma. He will, instead, be able to use the media to imprint his image on the party.

The man whose campaign has been most affected by the defeat of the budget bill is, of course, Mitchell Sharp. He will have to stick close to Ottawa during the balance of the month to steer through his new legislation and it may be that he will end up billing himself in the race as the stout defender of Canada's dollar.

His handlers believe that the economic issues have now moved to centre stage, and that their candidate can be presented as the potential prime minister most capable of dealing with them.



MITCHELL SHARP

. . . some new policies

Although he has kept fairly quiet up to now, Sharp has some exciting policy suggestions to make. His campaign staff has been augmented by the full-time presence of Neil Morrison, the astute former secretary of the B and B commission.

A dozen leading Canadian academics have supplied Sharp with important position papers. They include: Prof. Murray Donnelly, head of the political science department, University of Manitoba; Peyton Lyon, head of the political science department at Carleton University; Prof. Donald Vince, professor of political science at Loyola College in Montreal; Donald Rickert, a historian at York University; Archibald McIntyre, head of the sociology department, University of Guelph.

Main Problem

Sharp's main problem is that he goes into the fight without any regional power base. His campaign managers estimate he will get at least 100 delegates out of the West, another 150 out of Ontario and Quebec, and about 75 from the Maritimes.

What gives them encouragement is that Sharp may have a chance to emerge as the compromise winner on some of the late ballots at the convention. Their calculation is based on the hope that the splitting of other candidates' support will favor their man, because Trudeau would not likely inherit any of Hellyer's or Greene's support and Martin will probably not collect any Turner or Kierans delegates.

Even though the Liberal convention will lack the poignancy that John Diefenbaker's downfall brought to his party's leadership race, it promises to be no less dramatic — and no more certain in its outcome.

Serena Broke the Spell And Frog Turned Into . . .

By RICHARD NEEDHAM
The Globe and Mail

We saw yesterday how a young lady named Serena Dipity lost a gold earring in High Park; and how a frog found it for her; and how he revealed that he had been a handsome young prince till one of those wicked fairies cast an evil spell on him.

Needham

He told Serena that she could break the spell by letting him sleep in her bed, eat from her plate and go to work with her each day, to which she agreed.

Serena took the frog home, and made a little pair of pajamas for him, and let him sleep in her bed.

It seemed a bit spooky at first, but he talked pleasantly to her, saying, "It is sad, the way human beings look down upon us frogs, when in fact we have contributed much to them. Aristophanes wrote a very amusing play about us. Aesop and Ovid have paid attention to us; so did Mark Twain, who won fame with his Jumping Frog of Calaveras County; and every child has heard about the great lover, Anthony Rowley, known to his friends as Heigh-ho. We played an essential role in the witches' brew of Macbeth, our hind legs have made a noteworthy contribution to French cuisine, and everyone knows the English proverb that it's better to be a big frog in a small muddle than a small frog in a big muddle."

Serena said, "I had not expected such wit and culture in a frog, but then of course you are actually a prince, which explains it," and she went to sleep dreaming of castles and moats and drawbridges, while the frog snored softly beside her. The next morning, she let him share her coffee and grapefruit, and then put him into her purse and took him to work with her on the subway.

Going to her desk at the Great Waste of Life Insurance Company, Serena put the frog on it and settled down to her typing.

Disgusted

The other girls were disgusted and stayed well away from her, but several of the men in the office came over and chatted with the frog, who told them funny stories about the frogs in Newfoundland; and gave them tips on the mining market, pointing out, "After all, I do keep my ear pretty close to the ground"; and said of the Liberal leadership contest, "It seems to me a close race between Mackenzie Sharp, Mackenzie Turner and Mackenzie Trudeau, but I'm sure any one of them can stand up to Mackenzie Stanfield and Mackenzie Douglas."

Indeed, the men in the office were quite impressed by the frog, and took him out for curried meat balls.

One man said, "It is certainly better to have lunch with a clean, intelligent frog than with a dirty, smelly, ignorant, immoral woman," at which the rest of the men applauded and looked soulfully into each other's eyes.

Broke Spell

With all this attention, the frog started puffing himself up and had a suit tailored for him and joined the Chamber of Commerce and started making speeches which the newspapers reported under headlines like Problems Ahead, Says Frog, and Frog Calls Housing Crisis Critical. Pretty soon, he was paying little attention to Serena, who got so furious at him that one day she picked him up and threw him against the wall.

That broke the spell. It was no longer a frog that stood before her, but a young man with a beard that hung down to his eight-inch belt and a mop of long hair that looked as if it might wander off any moment on its own power and a button which said, Underthrow the Overground. He told Serena:

Again The Prince

"I was once and now am again the Prince of Yorkville, Kitsilano, Hashbury and points south. Writing poetry is my trade, and I have composed the following lines in your honor—'The gearshift moon ambivalently gesticulates in lemon-grey supermarkets, while my electronic heartbeat questions the validity of bingo.' I have also composed a poem regarding the condition of the Metis in Northern Saskatchewan—'Hey, Big Daddy; hey, Big Daddy up there in the chromium-plated sky; of one thing we can be certain, Big Daddy, the future will not be like the past'," and thus he chanted away while Serena stole weeping off toward the nearest bar.

Rocks Pegged Through Windows Don't Build Much of Anything

By ART STOTT

Our educational system took another kicking around this week, and it seems to me time the critics became a great deal better.

A few smart phrases, original or quoted, and the application of the needle, sharp or blunt, scarcely create a base from which to build something of value. And when quotes are used, it might be advisable for critics to find some directly applicable to the Canadian scene. Similar as education may be in this country and in the United States, there are differences.

Stott

Perhaps critics might begin by giving very serious thought to what the schools and the teachers should be trying to do. If they spare time for that exercise, they'll recognize certain obvious facts. They should be impressed by the time factor. Children in elementary school attend class five hours a day five days a week for something less than 10 months a year. A child's waking day runs to 14 hours or more. The calendar week contains seven days and the year extends over 12 months. A healthy child, it seems to me, absorbs impressions, possibly learns, during all his waking hours. So the school and the teacher, vastly important as their influences are, are not the only elements in the educative process.

The home and the community exercise a profound effect on the child's development. So, just possibly, it might be wise to decide what are the responsibilities of the school and the teacher to the child and what are the areas of influence that should be occupied by the home and the community.

I protest that I am not a cynic. I agree that our society has serious faults. And I am not starry-eyed enough to believe that humanity, with its strengths and weaknesses, its splendor and its squalidness, is ever going to attain perfection. But in a general sort of way I've found living, even with all society's imperfections, reasonably enjoyable, and I wish that it could be equally so for everyone else.

It seems to me that we, and those who follow us, will have to face the fact that society is going to fall somewhat short of Elysium, whatever the schools and teachers do in their association with children five hours, a day, five days a week, less than 10 months a year. They can't create Utopia.

I believe that was the point Frank Beinder, the president of the B.C. School Trustees Association, was trying to make in partial rebuttal of the criticism launched at the educational system. I did not take from his words the meaning that schools and teachers had to train children for specific jobs in business and industry, as some interpreted his remarks. He wanted to help equip them to cope with problems of living in a society which exists.

I derived the impression from the critics, and my impression could be quite wrong, that if the schools and the teachers did what they should be doing, society would be revolutionized, perfection would be near and the war in Vietnam would be over with the "good guys" emerging victorious. Well, a lot of people used to believe in the magic of the Philosopher's Stone and the fountain of youth sought by Ponce de Leon.

We in the audience listened at one point to the familiar current justification for "hippies"—those among the young, we are told, who reject the frauds of our society, withdraw from it and establish their own genre of flower people.

"I would rather have a society of flower children," said one speaker, "than some of these people who float around under the guise of businessmen." I don't know any flower children well, but I have had occasion to bump into some pretty miserable crooks who operated as businessmen. On the other hand, I've known some pretty decent and generous businessmen too. That probably prompted the vague question that floated through my mind over the ability of flower children to support the head of a university faculty in the style to which university faculty heads become accustomed.

Two other points impressed me as I left the meeting. How, I wondered, did a number of teachers I know—men and women who recognize flaws in the educational system—react to the attitude of critics preaching the futility of their honest labors? And how much of this kind of talk will it take to convince taxpayers that they're wasting money on schools and teachers' salaries and could find a better use for the money by going hippie themselves?

We've been informed, once again and not too convincingly to me, of some of the things our schools are doing which they should not do. When are we going to be enlightened on the specifics that should be done to effect changes that will make the educational system far superior to what it is today?

Pegging rocks through windows never struck me as a very effective way of creating a better, more sublime edifice.

Czechs Getting Ready to Dump Old-Line Communist Novotny

By VICTOR ZORZA

LONDON — The pressure is mounting in Czechoslovakia for the dismissal of President Antonin Novotny, who recently lost his post as party secretary, in order to finish off altogether the conservative opposition which is putting up a strong fight against the liberal policies of the new leadership.

Novotny, who remains a member of the politburo — praesidium, continues to try to drum up popular support by representing himself as a champion of the workers against the intellectuals and white collar workers, who have been the main force in favor of political reform.

Even when he shared the platform with Alexander Dubcek, the new party leader, during last week's anniversary celebrations in honor of the 1948 Communist coup, there was a perceptible difference of emphasis in their speeches, with Dubcek going out of his way to reassure the intelligentsia that its sufferings under the Stalinist regime of the past are over.

Press Alarmed

There are the makings of a real class conflict here, and the Czechoslovak press is showing signs of alarm at this — but only in the sense that it is accusing the conservatives of fostering friction between the classes. The liberals themselves, however, are not blameless, for it serves their purpose to represent the conservatives as the culprits.

Monday, for instance, "Rude Pravo" put its full editorial authority as the chief party paper behind the report of a speech in which a factory manager threatened the "conservative forces" in general, and Novotny, by implication with dire consequences if they did not cease their resistance.

The "habits of the past," it said, which constituted potential support for the conservative forces, were most difficult to overcome. These forces often pretended to adulate the working class, "stressed its role at the expense of other social groups," as if those others were not interested in the building of a socialist society, and fostered "an attitude of suspicion towards the intelligentsia."

Then came the warning: "Comrades who are unable to understand new principles must sooner or later depart from office, however painful it may be to them, because a politician who is behind the times is only a burden."

Thus it is the liberals who are on the offensive. But the conservative political gospel is being spread by word of mouth, especially in the industrial districts, by low-level party officials who see their positions threatened by the liberal wave, and are hoping to mobilize public opinion against it.

The workers are being told that Novotny had always stood up for their interests. The press is full of complaints about the "errors" of the past, but Novotny is said to have replied to it at a workers' meeting thus: "If it was an error on my part to ensure that your living standards should not be allowed to fall, then I'm proud of it."

The conservative opposition to the economic reform — which was the spearhead of the liberals' political movement — was based on the claim that the increased role of the profit motive would cause unemployment and keep earnings down.

The reformers argued that without the profit motive the economy would remain stagnant, and that the workers would in the end have to pay for the policy of their champions who put obstacles in the way of economic efficiency.

The issues, and the arguments, are familiar from other political contexts. But the methods of conducting the argument are less familiar, because the Communists have not yet found a way of allowing each side to have its say — so each has to accuse the other of engaging in class struggle, because that it how Marx saw politics a hundred years ago.

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK

Reviewed by Peter Murray, Times Wire News Editor

Delegates from 66 Communist parties around the world gathered in Hungary this week, and the going was anything but smooth for the dominant group from the Soviet Union.

Purpose of the Budapest meeting was to lay the groundwork for a Communist summit conference later in the year in Moscow.

The Russians have been pressing for a summit for some time and succeeded in getting their way at Budapest despite some open, bitter opposition which once was unheard of in the international communist movement.

China boycotted the Budapest meeting, as she is expected to do the summit, and the fight against the Soviet power-play was led by Romania.

The Romanian delegation objected particularly to harsh attacks by Soviet members on Chinese policy and finally walked out in protest. It was the most serious split in the Soviet bloc since President Tito of Yugoslavia rebelled against Joseph Stalin 20 years ago.

The Russians maintain the summit is needed to restore unity to the world Communist movement, while the Romanians insist the open split with China will fracture Communism more than ever. They also fear the Soviet Union wants the summit to impose its will on the smaller satellite nations—by means of a showdown with China.

Nevertheless, the Russians adopted a tough, uncompromising stand at Budapest and pushed ahead with plans for the summit. They had enough support among the other smaller parties to get their way.

●

On top of all her economic troubles, Britain was wracked this week by a problem of conscience.

Strong feelings were aroused in the country by a government bill which will curb a sudden influx of Asians from East Africa, principally Kenya.

The Asians, mostly of Indian or Pakistani origin, are being driven out by new nationalistic legislation in Kenya which discriminates against non-Africans seeking employment.

Most of those affected are second-generation Asians who have broken all ties with their homelands and are seeking instead a haven in Britain.

The new British immigration bill, which will bar thousands from entering the country, is the result of pressure from city-dwellers who fear the competition for houses and jobs in an already tight economy.

Britain has been somewhat less than successful in assimilating a large influx of West Indians in the last two decades and the new legislation has strong racial overtones. Despite the opposition of churches and other groups, the bill was supported by both Laborites and Conservatives in the Commons and was passed by a margin of 372 to 62. Almost 200 MPs abstained, however.

Canada's Parliament got back to business after nine days of acrimonious but indecisive debate following the government's defeat on third reading of a bill to increase personal income taxes by five per cent.

A motion affirming that the 84-82 negative vote did not represent non-confidence in the Liberal minority government was passed 138 to 119 with only one MP absent from the Chamber because of illness. Three others abstained. The 129 Liberals voting were enough to carry the day but the government was supported by the eight Creditiste members.

●

The first declared candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, Governor George Romney of Michigan, dropped out of the race two weeks before the initial primary in New Hampshire where polls show Richard Nixon far in front.

After stating his lack of interest a month ago in the Liberal leadership contest to replace Prime Minister Pearson, Trade Minister Robert Winters changed his mind and entered. He will leave the cabinet immediately to give himself more freedom between now and April 6 when the vote takes place.

Two of the world's smallest nations held elections of sorts this week and the incumbents, Presidents Makarios of Cyprus and Leopold Senghor of Senegal. went back in with majorities of approximately 95 per cent.

Heroic Defiance of Le Chef in Strike Recalled

CHARBONNEAU & LE CHEF, by John Thomas McDonough. McClelland and Stewart Ltd. 1968. $5.50 cloth; $2.50 paperback.

Reviewed by Ann Saddlemyer

Eighteen years ago Father Joseph Charbonneau (who died in 1959) arrived in Victoria to take up his duties as Confessor to the Sisters of Saint Anne and Chaplain to the sick at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Few would recognize in the former Archbishop of Montreal a defender not only of the faith but of the working man against the late Quebec premier, Maurice Duplessis.

Monseigneur Charbonneau won the power struggle in that the workers involved in the famous Asbestos Strike of 1949 were granted a fair wage and the rights of collective bargaining. But Father Joe lost not only his archbishopric but the confidence of Rome itself.

Hounded on the one hand by the angry Duplessis, on the other by the conservative leaders within his church, he was forced to leave his beloved Montreal and spend the rest of his life an exile, a reject.

Charbonneau & Le Chef is a dramatization of this conflict.

Father McDonough calls this play a tragic allegory, not an historical document.

Yet, like an earlier polemicist, Rolf Hochhuth, author of The Deputy, he neither pulls his punches nor disguises his own bias.

Police State Brutality

Duplessis' political machine is depicted in all its police-state brutality; Le Chef himself is convicted out of his own mouth. Pope Pius XII is condemned by implication; the church establishment in Quebec is criticized for its intractability and subservience to governmental big business.

Towering heroically above Duplessisism and clerical conservatism stands the figure of the Archbishop, physically, intellectually, spiritually strong but politically naive.

Beside him stands on his right his friend the Dominican Professor of Social Philosophy, representing the enlightened intellectuals, on his left the radical trade union organizer Rene La Roche, representing the Asbestos miners and their miserable working conditions in particular, and Quebec laborers, "the Negroes of Canada," in general.

The climax of Act One, The Conflict, occurs in the Archbishop's courageous Mother's Day servmon when he openly denounces the "conspiracy, on the part of the government and foreign-owned industry, to crush the workingman into a state of economic slavery."

The climax of Act II, The Conspiracy, comes in the months after the strike was won, when church and state work together to punish Charbonneau for his role as workingman's and intellectual's archbishop.

Act III, The Condemnation, briefly covers his dismissal, without a hearing, by the Vatican.

Yet still not content, the author adds an Epilogue, Duplessis' campaign speech two years later to the townsfolk of Asbestos, where the strike began.

The play closes on the cheers of miners and clergy as Le Grand Chef is once more elected Premier of Quebec.

Charbonneau & Le Chef has many faults as a play.

Story Has Sense of Urgency

Like its model, The Deputy, the action is too frequently dissipated in many little scenes connected only by the narrator's relation of facts and findings.

Yet the vignettes themselves are powerful both in dialogue and characterization.

There is a sense of urgency throughout, and the play would adapt readily to television.

Father McDonough, himself a Dominican professor, seems likely to achieve what he set out to do: "To awaken the Canadian conscience to its own poetry and drama."

THE ENGLISH NOVEL

S. African Writing Dominated by Race

By FRED MAYNE

The position of the English-speaking people in South Africa has been unfavorable to the development of a national literature.

In number only just over a million, they have remained the most English of all the major colonial peoples.

Caught between black aspirations and an Afrikaner (Boer) nationalism which has successfully asserted the unenviable claim to be the cultural torchbearer of white civilization in South Africa, the English South African has never acquired even the somewhat precarious national identity of the Canadian. He does not believe in himself any more.

And as most serious writers have been liberal in their outlook on race questions, their feeling of alienation and isolation has been increased.

For if one is a serious South African writer, it is almost impossible not only not to write about race but also to avoid taking up a standpoint on race.

The critic is in a similar position.

In a country where discrimination is written into the law of the land, where violence and brutality are not incidental but organic, it is difficult to remain detached and judge a work on its literary merits. Is this book guilty of a sentimental blurring of focus and wilful myopia? Or is that book guilty of two-dimensional distortion and propagandist insistence? Even in countries where issues are less sharply defined, indentity of belief is always lurking in the wings waiting to prompt the critic who is uncertain of his lines, particularly when he is writing about modern literature.

For instance, is Alan Paton's vision of South Africa in Cry the Beloved Country authentic? With its Christian appeal for a change of heart, it is regarded by many Nationalists as negrophile propaganda and by many liberals as a piece of sentimental evasion.

My own view is that it paints an authentic picture of black misery, but that when he comes to deal with the whites Paton seems so anxious to avoid imputations of neo-Marxist melodrama that he concentrates on white humanity rather than white inhumanity.

There is hardly a heartless or stupid white man in sight.

Perhaps Paton, in wanting to show that white South Africans are no worse than other people would be in the same circumstances, makes them better.

It is not his view of white South Africans only but his view of humanity that is in question. If that is suspect then his vision of South Africa is suspect.

Unfortunately for the critic's attempts at detachment, however, his own view of humanity may be as suspect as Paton's. But whatever the verdict, Cry the Beloved Country is a good novel.

PATON
. . . remarkable works

The style, with its fusion of Zulu and Biblical elements, is quite a remarkable tour de force.

The same author's Too Late the Phalarope seems, however, to be a greater literary achievement, despite the uncertain handling of the eye-witness form of narrative.

The charge of sentimental evasion cannot easily be brought as events are seen through Afrikaner spectacles and because the book is not really about conditions in South Africa.

The story concerns a policeman who is sent to prison for contravening the Immorality Act by having sexual intercourse with a black girl.

But the justice or wisdom of the Immorality Act is not in question.

The focus is not on the politically and socially reprehensible love of white for black, as in Nadine Gordimer's Occasion for Loving, but on the depraved or irregular sexual appetite of a man who is held in great respect and honor by the community.

The reasons for this deviation are convincingly presented, even if not fully developed.

But although for Canadians Alan Paton is perhaps the most interesting South African novelist, one feels that he is an arriviste rather than an adept.

His impulse is more social than literary. Both Nadine Gordimer and Dan Jacobson are greater novelists.

In Nadine Gordimer South Africa is realized as a place; it is not merely a backdrop or a social and political set-up.

Johannesburg in particular is drawn with sureness and immediacy. Her short stories in The Soft Voices of the Serpent, Six Feet of the Country, and Friday's Footprint are justly world famous, and many of them first appeared in distinguished American journals.

Symbolic incidents are developed with an artistry which has been compared with that of Katherine Mansfield and Elizabeth Bowen.

Her novels may not be so good as her short stories.

Her impressionistic flair is not so fully at home in the more discursive and referential form of the novel. Nevertheless her lyrical attributes do not often go soggy or generalized.

Her first novel, The Lying Days, sometimes lapses into the fine writing which betrays a too self-conscious sensibility; but genuine sensibility is there in abundance, and an extraordinarily accurate and detailed perception is also there. A World of Strangers and Occasion for Loving deal effectively with the frontier, erotic and social, between white and black.

Occasion for Loving enjoys the advantage of having been banned in South Africa because "it undermines the traditional race policy of the Republic."

Dan Jacobson is an expatriate South African living in England.

In his novels the issues are sharply etched and judgments are more explicit. In The Trap he shows how human relations between white farmers and black laborers are distorted by white supremacy and black hostility. A Dance in the Sun presents a horrifyingly degenerate white family who are still talking about white civilization.

The Price of Diamonds may be less interesting to Canadians who want to know more about the South African scene, but it is a penetrating study of the relations between two Jewish business partners.

Dan Jacobson is a Jew, and much of his writing concerns the large Jewish community in South Africa.

In The Beginners he deals with a problem of growing importance for South African liberals, the problem of exile.

This is also the theme for his short story Fresh Field in the collection Beggar My Neighbour. Another collection of short stories is A Long Way from London.

Is prison the place for a white man in love with a black girl?

Pre-war novels of merit are thinly scattered. Olive Schreiner can be looked upon as the progenitor of South African English novelists, writing as she does of the impact of the country on people infected with what the Nationalists now call "sickly humanism." The Story of an African Farm (1883) does not, however, deal with racial problems.

Like many archetypes it has been greatly overpraised, but sections do stand up rather flinchingly to the rigors of modern criticism. But Man to Man and Trooper Peter Halket of Mashonaland are more interesting as polemic.

The almost allegorical Peter Halket attacks the imperialism of Cecil Rhodes. Both books abound in protracted dialogues and digressions, evidence of structural naivety and undigested theme.

Like many prolific writers, another mainly pre-war novelist, Sarah Gertrude Millin, may have been underrated.

SUFFERING of colored and mixed blood citizens forms a background for most major novels situated in South Africa. See study of the English novel at left.

She can tell a story which demands compulsive attention. For Canadians, God's Stepchildren and The Herr Witch Doctor are particularly recommended.

One of the reasons why South Africans are preoccupied with color is that so many so-called whites have black blood.

These two novels deal with the tragedy of the coloreds (mulattos) who have darker relatives or are themselves just too dark to pass for white—stepchildren who belong nowhere.

The outlook for the future? Well, the lights are going out one by one.

The Publications and Entertainments Act of 1963 declares with splendid impartiality that a publication is deemed "undesirable" if it or any part of it is "indecent or obscene or is offensive or harmful to public morals; is blasphemous or offensive to the religious convictions or feelings of any section of the inhabitants of the Republic; brings any section of the inhabitants into ridicule or contempt; is harmful to the relations between any sections of the inhabitants; is prejudicial to the safety of the State, the general welfare of the peace and good order."

The "indecent" and the "obscene" include not only "human" but also "social deviation or degeneracy."

As the interpretation of this act is in the hands of the Publications Control Board appointed by the apartheid Minister of the Interior, there is no need to comment on the impartiality with which the act is applied, particularly as the Board works in the shadow of the General Law Amendment Act of 1962, which says that it may be considered a crime "to further or encourage the achievement of any political aim, including the bringing about of any social or economic change in the Republic"—a comprehensive indictment which could land many Canadian politicians in gaol if applied in this country.

It is under this act that about fifteen journalists and creative writers have been banned, that it, prevented from publishing anything at all.

Indeed, one successful method of driving liberal periodicals off the market has been by banning their staffs.

Alan Paton, incidentally, has been deprived of his passport.

And naturally all black South Africans who write are particularly prone to say things which are "harmful to the relations between sections of the inhabitants" and their books — published overseas, of course — are to be found on the banned list.

If you want to find out what black South Africans are thinking, read the autobiographies of Peter Abrahams and Alfred Hutchinson, Ezekiel Mphahlele's literary essays and his novel Down Second Avenue.

Fred Mayne spent many years writing in South Africa and now instructs in the English department of the University of Victoria.

And as it is becoming more and more necessary to scan the list of forbidden books to find out who is worth reading, I will conclude by calling attention to the work of Daphne Rooke (Mittee, A Lover for Estelle, The Greyling, Ratoons), Peter Abrahams (Song of a City, Mine Boy), Hans Hofmeyer (Fly Away Paul, The Skin is Deep), Harry Bloom (Transvaal Episode), and John Peter (Along that Coast), all of whom have in recent years had books banned in the land of the setting sun.

Adzooks! Those Bears, Said She

THE STORY OF THE THREE BEARS, by Eleanor Mure; Toronto, Oxford University Press, 1967; $4.50.

Children as well as antiquarian bookmen should be charmed by this earliest written version (1831) of the nursery tale, reproduced from the Toronto Public Library's Osborne Collection of Early Children's Books.

The meddlesome old woman who exclaims "Adzooks! What impertinent bears," when they won't receive her call, ends up chucked aloft on St. Paul's churchyard steeple.

The halting but lively verse, carefully hand-printed, and the water-colored illustrations, crude but well-detailed, contribute to the vigor of this small book.

A scholarly afterword traces different versions of the tale, and gives author background. A splendid piece of bookmaking, and an interesting addition to the collector's or child's bookshelf.

What Is Man's Purpose He Thought Amid Ice

FROZEN SHIPS, by L. H. Neatsby. Macmillan of Canada, $6.50.

Reviewed by David Cox

Frozen Ships is the diary account of Johann Miertsching's experiences in the ship Investigator which was part of the English expedition commissioned in 1850 to find the Franklin party, unreported since 1845.

When the expedition was rescued and the Investigator abandoned in Mercy Bay, Miertsching and his companions had spent four years in the Arctic.

Translation from the German is by Dr. L. H. Neatby, head of the classics department at Acadia University in Nova Scotia, who published In Quest of the Northwest Passage in 1958 and Conquest of the Last Frontier in 1966. He has travelled twice in the Arctic on board the ice-breaker Labrador.

The diary is a detailed and perceptive account of the physical environment in the Arctic.

Although Miertsching ascribes the ship's narrow escape from the ice to Divine Providence, his religious vision did not obscure his naturalist's perception which is almost as acute as that of Darwin.

Sensitive

The general impression often narrows to a very sensitive perception of the colors, spaces and textures of the topography, so that the reader is left with a very palpable impression of Arctic terrain as the man on foot experiences it.

What usually follows these observations is a philosophical speculation into the nature of man's existence as it is seen from a particularly remote (at that time) part of the world.

Miertsching bewails how "these poor Eskimos" have been without the Christian Message for so long. Tentatively, sometimes he asks God "Why?" At one point he says "what a rich harvest-ground for a missionary."

As a missionary, Miertsching lacks the adventurous character of his English peer, Livingstone, and insists that he is an explorer by compulsion. Evidently his brotherhood took advantage of the occasion of the expedition to send him among the Eskimos.

When he describes the times of greatest hardship, understandably with a little romaticism, he shows the most unshakeable and austere form of morality which he manages to impart to some of the crew.

Towards the end of the diary he refers constantly to the kindness and geniality of his companions so we can suppose that either they submitted to his exhortations for the sake of peace or that some had become converts.

The latter case would seem to be true, for when he parts company with them in London there are tears all round.

One notable character who remained immune to Miertsching's teaching and thus outside his friendship was Alexander Armstrong, the ship's surgeon.

Neatby judges from Armstrong's journal that the doctor was "shrewd, observant and much the best informed man on board and endowed with a gift for making those qualities unpalatable to his associates."

Miertsching refers to him only very casually and refuses to recognize the remarkable job that the doctor accomplished: only four men out of 66 died over a four-year period of privatory conditions.

Captain McClure of the Investigator emerges from the diary in a very sketchy manner.

Miertsching is more concerned with saving his soul than exploring character details, so that it is the captain's wandering soul with which we are confronted most of the time.

McClure has never had the fame of his contemporaries because his harsh discipline of crews, Admiralty censure of his parting company from Captain Collinson of the Enterprise, second ship of the expedition, and the subsequent revelation of Franklin's priority as discoverer of the Northwest Passage have left him almost ignored by historians.

The diary then shows us a man very sensitive to the physical environment and a semi-recluse in the field of human relations. It is factual, at times amusing, but above all is revealing in its portrait of a sensitive man and a zealously faithful Christian confronted with the powerful and indifferent forces of the Arctic climate.

The Sounding Board

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

There was a time not long past, when to any discussion of plans, some people would append "D.V." — abbreviation of Latin words meaning God willing.

Like many things connected with old-time religion, those propitiatory initials are out-of-date now, for it is recognized by all realists that not God, but Mammon, is the deity to be propitiated.

Ideas, imagination, the urge to create have been man's greatest contribution to his environment throughout history.

But we in this country, and particularly in this province, are living in an age when dollars wait far less upon ideas than they do upon what is politically expedient or what is the currently accepted status thing.

So we have learned to say "F.P."—finances permitting—regarding any project. And let's face it, mostly they don't.

Examples of ideas that have found the finances to permit their development and that have benefitted a great number of people are the Stratford Shakespearean Festival, Jeunesses Musicales, the Manitoba Theatre Centre, National Youth Orchestra, the Vancouver Opera Association.

The Stratford Festival started as an idea fermented by the imagination of one man—Tom Patterson.

In 15 years it has brought Canada world-wide fame; it has given employment to hundreds of fine artists and craftsmen who would otherwise have been lost to this country.

And now, as the National Arts Centre in Ottawa nears its final stages, the Stratford Festival company is to receive a new name and rank—The Stratford National Theatre of Canada.

Under this title it will play in winter seasons at the Ottawa centre and will tour Canada annually.

The National Youth Orchestra had its conception in the mind of Walter Susskind; in Winnipeg the Manitoba Theatre Centre owes its being to an idea originated by two university students John Hirsch and Tom Hendry.

Music School Growth Steady

Victoria's School of Music started with ideas bandied about by Victoria Symphony's Jack Barraclough and former conductor Hans Grubet.

Finances finally permitted and the school has been growing steadily for its three years of operation and may, quite easily—F.P.—bring considerable distinction to this city in time. To say nothing of the thousands of youngsters it will have benefitted.

Another man with a big idea was the internationally known artist, Alan Edwards.

His vision of a productive arts centre for Victoria was based on wide experience and observation. He is one of the most successful of Canadian artists and interior designers but he has defected to Vancouver and points south and east, because no one would buy his dream in this city.

It's not possible to tell about these things for sure, but there's a reasonably good gamble that his proposition would have paid dividends of more than one kind.

His idea was crystalized in the plans he prepared and the brief he spearheaded for use of the Bastion Square courthouse building.

The plans, as everybody knows, met with sudden death at the hands of authorities.

In saying this I am repeating what has already been said here a couple of weeeks ago.

Museum Buffs Were Indignant

Reaction to those comments of mine on museums brought a spate of "letters to the editor" — protests certainly not unexpected.

There are times however when, even though one risks offending good friends and respected acquaintences, it is necessary to speak one's mind.

The letters expressed indignation, disappointment, even contempt for my views on museums and the Maritime Museum in particular. They made some good points but they overlooked or misunderstood many of mine.

And as you can see, they have not materially altered my viewpoint.

I am perfectly aware of the value of museums as "poor men's universities" and of the fact that a maritime museum in a seabound province like British Columbia, has a special significance.

As something of a perennial student and a writer I have had occasion to use museums in research and have been most grateful for their presence.

And when it comes to the arts—which one of the letter-writers tends to belittle—it can be said that artists are among the groups who make most use of museums of every description.

The museum's director, Col. J. W. D. Symons, says that the proposal submitted for the present use of the courthouse building was accepted by city council as the more realistic and workable among those offered.

Well, subsequent events have proved that a wrong conclusion, have they not?

He asks if I do not realize that basic operation costs amount to something like $12,000 a year for taxes, light, water and maintenance alone.

And I ask, would it not have been much more practicable, therefore, barring a substantial annual money grant being made to the museum, to have had the building occupied by a number of organizations and individuals sharing these costs?

The nub of my argument is still space and opportunity for ideas to develop, for active creativity to expand.

The Maritime Museum is an excellent thing and I hope—F. P.—that it has a long life. But not in the old courthouse which I also hope—F.P.—may yet come to a more ideal fulfilment.

DIAMOND IN THE GROOVE

He's at His Best Playing Polonaises

By BERYL PROUDMAN

Malcuzynski: 6 Polonaises, Chopin, Angel S35728. Concerto No. 1 in D Minor, Brahms Seraphim, S60055.

About 14 years ago a hardy handful of people picked their way through the dark snow-slushed streets of an English town to a bleak drill hall and there, on hard stacking chairs under naked-bulb lights heard Poushinoff play an All-Chopin program.

Next week in warm, comfortable theatres Victorians will be able to hear Malcuzynski, a Chopin specialist of like stature, both in recital and in concert with the Victoria Symphony.

Renowned for the intensity of his powerful restraint in playing Chopin, Malcuzynski is at his best in playing the Polonaises, the most Polish of all Chopin's works.

GREAT DEMANDS

These heroic tragic patriotic outbursts, technically make great demands of the performer. No. 5 in F Sharp Minor, the most challenging of them all is only attempted by virtuoso performers; and yet it is not the most difficult to bring off.

Just as "To be or not to be" is the most difficult speech an actor can attempt because it is so familiar, so, I feel, the 3rd and 6th of these Polonaises because they too are so familiar, take the measure of the performer more accurately.

The 6th Polonaise alone make this record worth buying. A lilting, trippingly emphatic rhythm retains the nature of the original dance, delicately ornamented passages add the charm of a more complex composition and, while there is a surging excitement in the playing, restraint always exercises control.

Malcuzynski never uses the full reserves of his power, never over-extends himself and so he avoids the overblown exuberance of exaggerated expression which the fastidious Chopin detested in the unrestrained vulgarity of composers involved in the Romantic Movement of his time.

Because an All-Chopin program tends to leave an audience delighted but limp, and because he does not wish to be limited or type-cast as a Chopin specialist, Malcuzyinski is playing works by several other composers when he visits Victoria.

One of the ways of prejudging him as a non-Chopin player is provided by the fine Angel reissue on Seraphim S60055 of Brahms' Concerto No. 1 in D minor.

The orchestra is a little distant and not always as well-balanced as on newer recordings, and though the piano is a little less intimately recorded then in some of Curzon's discs, the reproduction is good and the record well worth hearing.

BRIEF HAPPINESS is experienced by Leslie (Ross Petty), in his contact with the little Irish slavey, Teresa (Karen Austin) in Brendan Behan's The Hostage, which opens a two-week run at McPherson Playhouse next Friday.

Strange Mob Brawls In This Old House

"There's some very strange people in this house," says Teresa in Brendan Behan's play, The Hostage.

There are indeed. Among them Monsewer, owner of the Dublin lodging house that has seen better days.

Monsewer is a decayed gentleman who practises the bagpipes and lives in a dream world of skirmishes between the Irish Republican Army and the English.

Stuart Kent plays the role in Bastion Theatre's production of the brawling, witty pungent play about the human spirit, degradation and basic decency which opens at McPherson Playhouse Friday for 13 performances.

Others in the house are Old Ropeen (Barbara Waldner), and not-so-old Colette (Sylvia Hosie), both ladies of the night; Princess Grace (Dick Wood) and Rio Rita (John Heath).

There is also Miss Gilchrist, a sociable worker who likes to sing hymns (Phyllis Gaskell), and the man whose soul she strives in vain to save—played by Roy Silver.

The saner members of the dwelling are Pat the caretaker, Meg Dillon and Teresa, the convent-trained servant girl. Allen Hughes, Helen Smith and Karen Austin will be seen in these roles.

Into this assorted humanity comes a young soldier (Ross Petty), held as a hostage by the I.R.A. for the life of an I.R.A. member who has been sentenced to hang in Belfast gaol.

Peter Mannering directs the Bastion production which also features Jim Dunn, Jonathan Raitt, Stew Motteram and Tom Cox.

It should be noted that the play is classed as adult entertainment only.

COCKTAIL PARTY ON THE WAY

A change in the final production of the season is announced by Victoria Theatre Guild.

The Cocktail Party, a comedy by T. S. Eliot replaces Ionesco's Amedee. A casting call is going out to members for Tuesday, March 12, at 8 p.m.

The production will be directed by Audrey Johnson and production dates will be May 11 through 18 at the Langham Court Theatre.

Great Master Got His Man

One sort of immortality is represented in the person of Victoria Syrnphony Orchestra's next guest artist, the world-renowned pianist Witold Malcuzynski.

For in this exceptional artist is captured something of the spirit, the musical style and perceptiveness of his renowned compatriot musician and mentor, Ignace Paderewski.

Malcuzynski began his association with Paderewski soon after his honor-bedecked graduation from the Warsaw Conservatory.

The young pianist had already collaborated with his master, Josef Turczynski, in preparing the definitive edition of the works of Chopin, when he gave a private concert at which Paderewski was present.

Recognizing an extraordinary talent, the statesman-musician declared that he had at last found the one young pianist who could carry on the great tradition which he himself had inherited from Liszt and Chopin.

FEW PUPILS

Paderewski had always expressed an aversion to teaching and accepted few pupils during his long career. He then and there decided, however, that Malcuzynski should be his personal pupil.

The younger Pole went to live at Paderewski's villa on Lac Leman in Switzerland.

There he worked daily with the great master. It was during this period that Paderewski was engaged in his preparation of the monumental Centenary Edition of the works of Chopin, completed before his death in 1941 but not published until 1949, the 100th anniversary of Chopin's death.

Malcuzynski had the invaluable advantage of watching the Paderewski tome develop and of profiting from the profound scholarship and critical study that went into its preparation.

The pianist's debut in Paris proved the master's wisdom in selecting his successor, for it was hailed as the musical revelation of the season.

Since that time Malcuzynski has toured every part of the world many times and, bearing the reputation of being the foremost contemporary interpreter of Chopin, he traveled around the globe covering 50,000 miles in 1949, the Chopin centenary year.

For his appearance in this city as guest of the Symphony Orchestra, Malcuzynski has chosen to play the thrilling Concerto No. 2 in F minor by Chopin.

Happy Time Promised Under the Big Top

Clowns performing hilarious antics, the Wynne Shaw Dancers, the Adeline Duncan Dancers, and local entertainers Marge Bridgeman and Mimi and Alan Robertson will lend their special talents to a fast-moving show being prepared by the Solarium Junior League.

It's the annual musical production and again this year it will be entitled Solarium Circus Capers.

Stage director is Wally Fletcher. The chorus is being directed by Gordon Dickie and ringmaster Fraser McAlpine will take the spotlight under the Big Top.

And to add to the spectacle, eight Junior League members will trade their red jackets to become enchanting merry-go-round horses.

Circus Capers takes the stage at McPherson Playhouse March 27-30. There will be a matinee on the Saturday. Tickets for all performances will be available at the McPherson box office.

The show convener is Mrs. Barbara Adair.

Solarium Junior League's 40 members, comprising mostly business girls and young housewives, all work on the show in one or more capacities such as costumes, props, program and publicity.

There are at present 64 patients in the crippled children's hospital, 37 from the Greater Victoria area. The average length of stay is just over six months.

Financial assistance from the Hospital Insurance Service is received for approximately 40 per cent of the children.

The remaining 60 per cent are maintained in the Solarium through bequests, donations and the proceeds of such Junior League activities as Circus Capers.

Pianist's Program Changed

Some changes have been announced in the recital program to be given next Wednesday at McPherson Playhouse by the international pianist, Witold Malcuzynski.

Originally this was announced as an all-Chopin recital but the artist has since indicated that he will devote only the second half of the evening to Chopin.

I. the first half he will play the 32 Variations in C minor by Beethoven and two Brahms numbers—the Intermezzo, Op. 118 and G minor Rhapsody, Op. 79, No. 2.

He will complete this part of the program with the Prokofieff Sonata No. 7, Op. 83.

Renowned for his sensitive and perceptive interpretations of the music of that greatest Pole in the history of music, Frederic Chopin, Malcuzynski has chosen a widely representative group that includes a Nocturne, the F Major Ballade, three Mazurkas, a Waltz and the B-flat minor Scherzo.

They're Making Prints and Money

By R. H. GROOMS

This week heralds the opening of a new gallery devoted to printmaking.

The Print Gallery at 1509 Wilmot Pl., next to Ivy's Book Shop in Oak Bay, indicates the viability of this art form and the impact on Victoria artists of the appeal of these media.

Grooms

Most of the major local artists are now heavily involved in print making. The high price of painting and sculpture means that one of the few reasonable things a modest income will buy for a collector is in the area of prints or drawings. Hence the increased appeal for both the producing artist and the budding collector for the various print media.

Most local painters of any renown are making silk screen prints (serigraphy) or lithographs or sometimes the newer collograph of collage technique.

Toronto Too

Don Harvey has exhibited a great variety of silk screen prints which are selling well not only locally but now in Toronto. John Dobereiner has been doing silk screen prints for quite a while and now is producing some exciting collographs as well.

Others working strongly in the print vernacular are Herb Siebner, Pat Martin Bates, Maxwell Bates, Ricci Ciccimara, Fleming Jorgensen, Nancy Edell, Eric Metcalfe and the young newcomer who is having his first show at Pandora's Box, Paul Bishop.

Some former Victoria artists who are in Vancouver also contribute strongly to support this movement toward print media. Helen Piddington, Toni Onley and Michael Morris are but a few in this group. Closer to home, Molly Privett in Sidney is a part of this print scene.

Some of these people are working strongly in the Op or Optical illusion vein such as Dobereiner, Harvey and Morris.

Others are doing everything from the softest most lyrical nudes to the toughest expressionistic social commentaries with wit, humor and violence such as Maxwell Bates, Metcalfe, Edell and Bishop. The abstract expressionist mode is present in Jorgensen and Piddington.

These artists often mix their media by painting or drawing on collages, using collographs over watercolor, etc.

Up for Grabs

Nothing is sacred or static. All these ideas and techniques are up for grabs and the whole activity shows a far greater range of experimentation and exciting stretches of concept than most of their paintings.

The fact that they can reproduce an idea and vary the effects so easily and produce so many more things for sale in a relatively short time, with not too much capital cost or investment, has spawned a renewed interest in sales to the public. Hence the logical creation of a new gallery in Victoria to specialize in just prints.

In the same way that sculpture of the older carved or even welded sort has increasingly given way to pottery and cast pieces which can be finished easier and quicker this has given a new lease on life to the galleries that will stock pottery as an integral part of their art offerings.

The local potters like the Groves, Siska Hayman and Ella MacCallum are all enjoying an increase in sales and exposure of their work along with printmakers.

One factor in all this increased activity of the reproductive arts, if you will allow me this term, is in the teaching areas of pottery and print making.

New Yorker Coming

Coming this fall, Uvic is bringing to its Fine Arts faculty an outstanding graphic artist and print maker from Cornell University in New York.

Prof. Peter Kahn will add his own talents and vast teaching experience to the burgeoning scene.

It is expected that shortly Uvic will announce that it has obtained the teaching services of a first rate ceramist-sculptor to amplify and augment the ranks of its existing painters, printmakers, and designers. Certainly sculpture is the most needy art in getting a shot in the artistic arm.

One sure indication of public interest in prints, pottery and related arts is the amazing success of the opening last Friday night of the Bishop-Hodder show at Pandora's Box. Not only did a large number of art lovers turn out, but what is perhaps more important, they were buying. Mostly it was print and small drawing purchases for $5 and up.

SHANGRI-LA
By Renee Taylor
A most unusual color film of the kingdom described by James Hilton in his book "Lost Horizon."
Isolated behind almost impenetrable walls of the Himalayan Mountains—and closed to tourists—this tiny valley has produced a race of long-lived, happy and energetic people. After obtaining a special study permit, Renee Taylor went on this exciting and hazardous journey to visit the Hunza people, where disease, anxiety, poverty and crime are scarcely known.

SPARE ME, Mr. Ogre, Ann Marie Kusz cries as the Ogre (Ian Fleury) gloats over the delectable mouthful she would make. Her friends, Penny Danyluck (kneeling) and Fay Singer, add their pleas in this scene from the play entitled The Dyspeptic Ogre. Produced by Macaulay School, it will be seen in the Greater Victoria Schools Drama Festival, March 14-23. Twenty-one schools have entered 27 plays in the 27th annual festival.

THE 'FABMOSTMINTEST'

Yellow Duck Tops the Bill

By GREG GRAVER
and
BONNIE RICKETTS

Last week's love festival could be described as "fabmostmintest," or to put it in plain language "night of the all."

Mother Tucker's Yellow Duck topped the bill and sent out explosive vibrations to the audience.

Some recording people and disc-jockeys in Vancouver are convinced that Mother Tucker's Yellow Duck will be the newest thing in the Rock scene.

They may be the first group in history to gain the eye of both teenagers and their parents at the same time.

It is also interesting to point out that within a few short months, the group's reputation has readily spread from Montreal to Los Angeles.

Patrick Caldwell, leader and energy centre for the group, moved to Vancouver a year ago. Although he had no previous musical training other than in the church choir, he contributes approximately 60 per cent of the harmony. As well as songs, Pat has written poetry.

WINNIPEGGER

Don McDougall, who hails from Winnipeg, played in groups there until he moved to Vancouver last March.

Up to then, he had played nothing but folk until he met Pat who asked him to join the group. They went home and wrote three songs and from there it's been nothing but success.

Charlie B. Faulkner or Grouchy, plays bass for the group and is a former member of the Vancouver Symphony. Beatnik? No! Just super cool.

Cliff Moore is their manager. He spent four years at UBC majoring in Math and Philosophy. Cliff is no stranger in the pop business for he ran the two Yardbird shows and the John Hardy Dance Hall on 4th Avenue, all under the name of White Rabbit.

Watch out for more exciting adventure in the future from Mother Tucker's Yellow Duck.

CLOSED TWO WEEKS

Big Faye Luxembourg "208" reminds us that their Jazz Club at the Nine in the Fifth Place on Sundays, will be closed temporarily for the next two weeks in preparation for getting new groups and a piano.

To start a new month, the Mock Duck from Vancouver will quack tonight at the Nine in the Fifth Place from 9 until 1 a.m.

On Friday, also from the Nine in the Fifth, will be a great group from Vancouver; The Seeds of Time germinating from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m.

The Royal Oak Teen Club, otherwise known as The Movement, will sponsor a gig at the Royal Oak Community Hall with the Blue Ruum, presiding on Friday, 8:30 p.m. until midnight.

Roy Vollinger hits again with a Dance Galore at the Club Tango tonight from 9 until 1 a.m. The garb is semi-formal and for tickets, phone Roy at 388-5369.

Valdy's Pigling Bland Jug Band will jaunt over to Seattle later this month on an exchange program. Tell you next week who's coming on their leaving. On Thursday, at 12:15 p.m., the jug-band will do a concert at Esquimalt High in their gymnasium. Tickets at the door.

Victoria's only teen music paper Tune n' Trend formerly Off Beat will hit the stands later this week.

Canadian Singer Opens Monday At Red Lion

A Canadian singer who has appeared on the Johnny Carson, Merv Griffin and Steve Allen shows is the next featured artist at the Red Lion theatre-restaurant.

Ken Coleman opens his two-week engagement Monday with two performances nightly, at 9:30 p.m. and 12:30 a.m.

He was originally scheduled for the Red Lion earlier this year but his visit was postponed three weeks due to a held-over engagement at San Francisco's Hungry I.

Coleman, who has cut five releases for Epic Records to date, has made club appearances at Las Vegas' Flamingo and Thunderbird Hotels and chalked up a headline engagement at the Cave Supper Club in Vancouver.

Variety, the show biz paper, described him as having an "impressive" personality and stage presence," and the Las Vegas Sun spoke of his "pleasant musical sounds a la Steve Lawrence."

FOCUS

By BRAD NUGENT

It seems that The Beatles aren't finished with live concerts. They are coming to the United States in the spring, to do a live concert at New York's new Madison Square Garden. And that's not all . . . they will be backed by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra!

The Kaleidoscope, one of the newer West Coast groups, have an album in the making. They describe their music as a blend of "Turkish, Eastern European, old-time country, blues, country-Western and even a little Cajun."

Some of their songs on the issue run 11 minutes with names like Baldheaded End of a Broom, Beacon from Mars and Life Will Pass You By.

Sounds worth waiting for.

●

Three's a Crowd, one of Canada's top groups, have a new album issue on the way. Titled, Movie Matinee it will cost $30,000 by the time it is finished.

You can count on a lot of fine sounds when that kind of money is booked on a Canadian group.

On stage, Three's a Crowd is a tight, fast-paced act designed to provide maximum variety entertainment. On record they're even better.

Their first single was released in Canada, the U.S. and England late last summer and was a real sell-out all over.

I overheard recently that Roy Orbison was handed over $10,000 for his one-nifer in Victoria not too long ago. Vancouver topped the cake in his Canadian tour with Orbison picking up $19,000.

Orbison has meanwhile completed the cuts for another album expected to be released early next month.

●

I had a word with Eric Burdon of the Animals when he was at the Cave in Vancouver last week.

What I found most interesting was what he had to say of fellow Animal Vic Briggs.

"He's our generation's Sir Winston. Blows his cool a lot and giggles when good things are happening. Had he been born in the U.S., he might have been one of the Monkees."

BITS AND PIECES

Keep your eyes open for a great new group, The Natty Bumpo. For their first disc they recorded the title song from the flick, "Valley of the Dolls."

Speaking of "Valley" this film introduces a young man by the name of Tony Scotti, who promises to be the newest teen idol with his good looks and voice. He is already under contract to a major discery and has an LP out.

The Smothers Brothers have added a new facet to their already busy careers. They have taken under their wing a brand new pop music group, The First Edition, made up of former New Christy Minstrals.

●

Remember the Royalettes, whose big hit, It's Gonna Take a Miracle, was in the top 25 in '65? Well, they're back. These 4 talented chicks are chart bound with a new single, River of Tears.

Garry Bonner, a talented songwriter who with his partner Alan Gordon has many hits to his credit including Happy Together and She'd Rather Be With Mr, has turned singer.

The single he recorded is called The Heart of Juliet Jones and it's worth a listen.

David Hemmings, who made it big in the pic, Blowup, has entered the recording field with an LP called David Hemmings Happens.

Alan Price, founder of the original Animals, and now leader of the Alan Price Set, can be seen in Don't Look Back, the movie that Bob Dylan is busy at work on.

●

American International, the Beach Party outfit, has been turning out a series of flicks on today's youth. The latest of these is The Love Children and stars Susan Strasberg and Dean Stockwell.

Theatre Said Hurt By U.S. Star Idea

By MARGARET SCHERF

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — The woman who taught acting to such stars as Patricia Neal, Charlton Heston and Jennifer Jones says the "star" system is strangling the American theatre.

"Our theatre is desperate right now," Alvina Krause said in a rare interview. "We're saddled with a star system that creates personalities, not actors."

In 33 years of teaching acting at Northwestern University, Miss Krause numbered among her students Paula Prentiss, Richard Benjamin, Carol Lawrence, Ann-Margret, Ralph Meeker, James Olsen, Robert Reid and Inge Swenson.

When she retired five years ago, 256 former students signed a letter to university officials which described her teaching as "radiating sparks and kindling fires of soul and spirit."

Miss Krause is a tiny woman of Dresden daintiness, queenly carriage, lively blue eyes and grey-brown hair arranged in a bun. She has a gentle but compelling manner that combines frequent smiles with forceful words.

"English actors dominate ours because we have no true repertory theatre in this country," she said. "We have no one to compare with Laurence Olivier or Dame Edith Evans, both of whom thrive on repertory."

Repertory consists of a fairly permanent company presenting a variety of plays in which individual actors go from major roles in one production to minor ones in the next.

"The play is the star, the whole company, not just an individual," she said.

"Here, one star plays the same role, day after day, in a play that runs for years. That's not acting, it's just exploitation of personality."

An actor caught up in the star system becomes so identified with one role that he never is able to develop his talent in a variety of acting situations, she said.

WEEK ON MARKETS

Spotlight Held By Gold Issues

By FRITS ROOS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Gold boomed on Canada's stock exchanges this week as buying came into the issues from the United States.

The surge started Thursday, on reports of a rush on gold bullion in Europe, renewing fears for devaluation of the British pound and the U.S. dollar.

The advance continued through Friday but slowed a little in profit taking.

The buying boosted the Toronto gold index close to the record level set in 1937.

Dome Mines was the favorite as it surged 9¼ to 84¼ on sales of 23,000 shares. At one point it sold as high as 87¾, a record for the issue.

Campbell Red Lake was up 5 to 38¾ and Giant Yellowknife, which traded 175,000 shares, ½ to 12⅞.

Much of the attention went to the smaller gold issues. They now are catching up with the four-month-long boom in the senior producers.

Camflo jumped 95 cents to 6.15, Aunor 60 cents to 4.05 and Upper Canada 35 cents to 2.10.

Wright-Hargreaves, which closed its Timmins gold mine in 1966 to concentrate on exploration, jumped 97 cents to 3.05 as 65,000 shares changed hands.

Brokers said that, except for the speculative prospect of a devaluation of the dollar, all gold stocks are overpriced.

Oils, particularly susceptible to price fluctions on Wall Street, and pulp and paper issues paced the decline in other sections of the market.

Hucky Oil and Central-Del Rio dropped 1⅜ each to 19⅝ and 16¾, United Canso 60 cents to 4.20 and Scurry-Rainbow 2 points to 36.

At Montreal, British-American fell 2½ to 38¾, Imperial 1¼ to 63¼ and Texaco 1 point to 27½.

DOWN AFTER CUT

Among the sluggish pulp and paper issues, Consolidated Bathurst declined 2 to 16¾ following the announcement that the regular 50-cent quarterly dividend was cut to 25 cents.

Fraser Companies closed at 19¼, also down 2 points, as it omitted its third consecutive quarterly dividend.

Among base metals, Campbell Chibougamau, a copper producer, advanced 1.15 to 9.35 and Northgate 1⅜ to 12¼. Denison was off 2 to 67. Hudson Bay was up 3 to 58 at Montreal.

Most active issue at Toronto was New Senator, which rose 8½ to 54 cents as 1,618,000 shares traded.

On index, Toronto's industrial index fell 2.70 to 149.69 and oils 9.07 to 180.61. Golds zoomed 20.75 to 247.00 after touching a 31-year high of 248.24. Base metals picked up .93 to 100.64.

Volume was 17,505,000 shares compared with 11,881,000 the previous week. Declines outnumbered advances 382 to 311.

BANK RATE LOWERED BY INDIA

BOMBAY (Reuters)—India today lowered its bank rate to five per cent from six.

The Reserve Bank also announced a reduction in the lending and deposit rates of banks and a further lowering on the concessional rates for export finance.

The bank rate reduction was in keeping with an over-all policy to promote economic recovery in the light of increased agricultural production, the Reserve Bank said in a statement.

Drop Merger Plans

PORTLAND, Ore. — A proposed $120,000,000 merger between Georgia-Pacific Corp. and Detroit Steel Corp. has fallen through.

Officials of both companies said it had been decided that the proposed merger and exchange of stock "would not be advantageous to the two companies."

PLANE COULD SWALLOW 100 SMALL-TYPE CARS

MARIETTA, Ga. (CP)—President Johnson flew today to this Lockheed-Georgia aircraft centre to watch the unveiling of the C-5A Galaxy, the world's largest plane, capable of carrying 700 combat-equipped troops 6,300 miles non-stop.

The president said the C-5A built by Lockheed would be "a first in moving great numbers of men great distances."

Aviation industry representatives from around the world also will be on hand. More than 2,000 companies from 41 states, Canada, Engand, Scotland and West Germany worked on the Galaxy, a four-engined jet so big that it could swallow an eight-lane bowling alley or 100 small cars.

LBJ Gets Tough In Copper Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has summoned all parties involved in a 22-state copper strike to the White House Monday, saying if the dispute isn't settled it could "begin to have a substantial impact on our defence effort."

The goal of the White House meeting of company and union chiefs, along with federal officials, is to achieve around-the-clock bargaining.

"In my judgment, the national interest required further and immediate governmental effort to resolve the copper strike," the president said Friday.

About 50,000 workers in 26 unions are striking against four major producers—Kennecott, American Smelting and Refining, Anaconda and Phelps Dodge.

The key issue is the unions' demand for company-wide bargaining. This would mean each company would have to deal simultaneously with all unions representing its employees at all its facilities in several states, with a common work-contract expiration date for all unions.

PLAN INTERVENTION?

In other recent labor disputes, the White House sponsored bargaining sessions that led to settlement of rail, steel and airline strikes.

Before the president's announcement, the chairman of the strike co-ordinating committee, Joseph P. Malony of the Steelworkers union, said the unions are ready to resume bargaining without pre-conditions.

Maloney also announced the striking unions have accepted an offer by the AFL-CIO maritime committee to honor copper strike pickets. This is a move aimed at legalizing a boycott of imported copper.

Previously, the National Labor Relations Board filed a complaint charging the unions in the copper dispute with failure to bargain in good faith. The NLRB said the complaint was filed at the request of Kennecott Copper Corp.

Since the strike began in July, the companies have refused to discuss the demands for company-wide bargaining, simultaneous contract expirations at all plants and mines of each company, and a similar economic settlement for all. With no bargaining occurring, the walkout has stretched into months.

Wages at the four firms range from $2.66 to $3.67 an hour. The strikers are seeking wage and fringe benefit increases similar to the $1.07 an hour package granted by U.S. Metals Refining Co. of Carteret, N.J., when it recently broke with other copper firms and settled with its strikers.

Angry Creditors Claim Funds Misused

MONTREAL (CP) — Angry creditors Thursday charged that bankrupt Stanbury Investments Ltd. misused their funds, but heard a bankruptcy trustee report that no evidence of wrong-doing had yet turned up.

R. V. Barnett, of the trustees Clarkson, Gordon and Co., faced a day-long barrage of questions and accusations from a meeting of about 150 creditors of Stanbury Investments.

Only business enacted during the long wrangle was the election of five persons to act as inspector in the bankruptcy case.

A former petition in bankruptcy was filed Feb. 9, Mr. Barnett told the first formal meeting of creditors. There are about 1,700 creditors.

The trustee, repeating statements he had made Monday in Halifax, said unsecured creditors could expect a return in the region of 70 cents on $1, that the persons who had made $587,000 worth of subordinated loans to the company could expect nothing back, that four Maritimes branch offices of the firm had been sold for about $18,000 and that the reasons for the bankruptcy were mismanagement and too-rapid expansion.

U.S. Economy Suffers Slowdown

NEW YORK (AP) — Some major segments of the U.S. economy slowed in January new statistics showed this week.

The Commerce Department reported that of 21 leading economic indicators available for January, 11 pointed down, nine pointed up and one was unchanged from December's level of business activity.

A comparable tabulation in December showed 12 indicators pointing up and nine pointing down.

The department also reported that in January labor costs per unit of output in manufacturing rose to a record 108.8 per cent of the 1957-59 average from 107.3 per cent in December. The index was at 104.8 per cent in January, 1967.

Officials said the widespread increases in wholesale prices caused more concern. Of 22 manufacturing categories, 90.9 per cent showed increases in both January and December, compared with 77.3 per cent in November and 54.5 per cent in December 1966.

BUILDING FALLS OFF

Construction activity appears to be turning sluggish says F. W. Dodge Co., an analyst of building activity. Its index of contracts for future construction fell in January to 159 from 166 in December. This was the third straight monthly decline since the index reached a record 171 in October.

The firm attributed the three-month decline to high interest rates and newly imposed restrictions on public construction, particularly highways.

Living costs rose three-tenths of one per cent in January in their fourth consecutive increase.

The advance boosted the labor department's index to 118.6, which means it cost $11.86 to purchase items worth $10 in the 1957-59 base period.

Biggest factors in the January climb were increases in grocery prices and doctors' bills.

Price increases are spreading through the furniture industry, wholesale and retail executives reported this week.

U.S. consumers spend about $7,000,000,000 annually on household furniture.

The U.S. foreign trade picture brightened in January when the surplus of merchandise exports over imports climbed to $169,300,000. It had fallen to $79,100,000 in December. However, the January surplus was far below the $316,500,000 last November and $360,400,000 in January, 1966.

The House of Representatives this past week passed and sent to the Senate President Johnson's requested continuation of the excise taxes on autos and telephone service. The legislation also would speed collection of corporate income taxes.

It is expected the measure would increase revenues by $1,100,000,000 during the current fiscal year and by $3,060,000,000 during the year beginning next July 1.

MB Shows 15% Drop In Profits

MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., Canada's largest integrated forest company, today reported 1967 income was up about 13 per cent at $540,600,000 but reported a drop in profit of 15 per cent to $36,200,000.

The interim report confirmed the estimate made in a Jan. 24 letter to shareholders, announcing a cut in the dividend rate to 25 cents from 30 cents.

At that time, J. V. H. Clyne, chairman and chief executive officer, estimated profits would be $36,000,000, down from $42,460,000 in 1966.

The per-share earnings were $1.74 as compared with $2.04 the previous year.

Mr. Clyne said the reason for decreased profits was the uncertainty of markets and heavy interest charges on projects not yet contributing to earnings.

He said the annual report will be ready about mid-April.

LAND FOR LEASE — 20 ACRES
UNIVERSITY OF VICTORIA

The University of Victoria will consider offers from persons interested in leasing approximately 26 acres of land for a period not exceeding three years. The lease may or may not be renewed, depending upon the need for University expansion or other purposes.

The site offered is the former CJVI property bounded by Cedar Hill Cross Road to the South, Crestview Road to the east, the Municipal Boundary to the north and Haro Road to the west. The lands offered for lease do not include the buildings, yard, gardens or the apple orchard.

This is not a formal tender; consideration will be given to the proposed use of the lands, lease rental and other factors which may be compatible with the surrounding area. The highest or any offer not necessarily accepted.

Applicants are requested to give full details on proposed use, lease rental payments and other related information.

Written submissions should be made not later than March 12th, 1968, and forwarded to:

The Secretary,
Committee on Physical Plant,
c/o University Development Office, Hut F,

Back to School For Sales Staff

By AB KENT
Business Editor

School bells are ringing again for a local investment firm, thanks to its new alliance with the New York Stock Exchange.

Kent

This is the Victoria branch of Nesbitt Thomson and Co. Ltd., which with other branches of the company across Canada, has sent its manager and sales staff back to the books to bone up on American securities law, customs of trading on the Big Board and the rules and regulations of NYSE.

Nesbitt Thomson recently became the first Canadian investment firm in more than 30 years to qualify for a seat on the New York exchange, for which it paid $450,000.

As a member in good standing, the firm must govern its trading in U.S. securities according to the standards and bylaws of the exchange, and within the framework of U.S. Securities Exchange Commission regulations.

So the salesmen—already qualified for dealing in Canadian securities by virtue of courses set by the Canadian Investment Dealers' Association, and licensed by provincial securities commissions—must add to their knowledge and qualifications by studying NYSE texts.

Some will have little additional study to do, being familiar with trading U.S. securities through American brokers.

* * *

In any case they get six months to become re-accredited, little enough time, some think, to digest the volumes of material sent to them.

For branch managers the course may be much tougher, being oriented somewhat differently, and only about one month's study has been allowed.

NYSE exams cover such areas as odd lot, trading procedure, commodity trading, puts and calls trading (a variation of futures trading), capital gains, short sales and taxation factors.

"The IDA courses are pretty comprehensive," said Nesbitt Thomson manager Warren McFadyan. "They give a concentrated knowledge of the financial community in Canada.

"The difference is in the size and breadth of the U.S. financial community, and the greater volume of activity," he said.

The quality of marine service stations is taking a turn for the better, as the photo right demonstrates.

Farmer Construction Ltd. is building a 60-foot ranch style building with cedar plank siding and hand-split shake roof for B-A Oil Co. at Van Isle Marina, where it will be towed on its scow foundation in a few weeks.

Waterfront watchers have followed its progress with interest, aroused by the appearance of what looks for all the world like a modern urban bungalow at the end of CPR wharves on Belleville Street.

The image is heightened by sliding glass doors enclosing a sales and customer area which fronts living quarters for an attendant.

The $50,000 station will be moored in a year-round location and be open for service 24 hours a day. From shore-based storage connected by pipelines, boats will be able to get diesel oil, gasoline, outboard mix and stove oil. Greases and lubricating oils will be stored aboard.

Besides public washrooms the features will include showers, bait, ice and tackle sales, a small workshop and 180-degree access.

To provide finances for improvement of three vessels, Harbor Ferries Ltd., of Vancouver, is offering units of two classes of capital stock.

The company is making available 50,000 A shares and 50,000 B shares in units consisting of one of each at a price of $10 per unit, subject to a 70-cent commission.

This will net $465,000 if all are subscribed, the money to be used for:

Improvements to the vessels Hollyburn, Harbor Princess and Scenic ($100,000), work on the first two given to McKay-Cormack shipyard. Hollyburn is nearly finished and Harbor Princess is to arrive here next week. Where Scenic will be handled has not been decided;

Retirement of term debt for the purchase of vessels ($209,144); retirement of bank loan ($40,439); working capital and funds for securing new capital assets ($115,417).

Formal closing of the coking coal deal between Crows Nest Industries and Kaiser Coal Ltd. was completed in Vancouver Thursday. Kaiser expects to operate the mines at Michel and Natal at about the current rate of production.

Concurrently, Kaiser will develop the coal properties to prepare for long-term commitment of 45 million tons of coal for Japan. By fall 1969 it is hoped to have stripping advanced to 200,000 tons a month, building up to 4 million tons a year by April, 1970.

Record Year For Cargoes At Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP — Foreign shipments through the Port of Vancouver during 1967 reached a record 13,125,413 tons, it has been reported.

Exports totalled 11,153,269 tons, imports 1,972,144 tons.

The annual shipping report of the Vancouver Merchants' Exchange said the number of deepsea vessels entering port totalled 1,693, based on one call per voyage, but not including return calls by the same ship in the same voyage.

Total number of all vessels, deepsea and coastal, was 21,015.

Grain shipments in 1967 reached 194,189,096 bushels, including 122,500,000 bushels to the Orient and 24,700,000 to Europe.

Canada Cuts Losses In Foreign Reserves

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's foreign exchange reserves cut their losses in February as speculation against the Canadian dollar weakened.

A month-end statement Friday revealed that support for the dollar cost the reserves $113,400,000 during the month, which was described by Finance Minister Sharp as "quite a modest reduction." The loss was $350,000,000 in January.

There is official hope here the exchange market will soon turn around in the dollar's favor, given a successful new revenue measure in Parliament and an improved seasonal swing in Canada's balance of payments.

At first glance Canada's reserve position actually appeared stronger on Feb. 29 than on Jan. 31 because of this week's repatriation of assets Canada held in the International Monetary Fund.

The total at Feb. 29 was announced as $2,490,000,000 in U.S. funds. The comparable total Jan. 31 was $2,418,400,000, representing reserves of gold and U.S. dollars plus Canada's creditor position in the fund.

The Feb. 29 figure, however, includes $185,000,000 representing a drawing from the fund equivalent to Canada's gold quota in the IMF. It is a net addition to the reserves and is repayable in three to five years.

Without this boost, Canada would have had $2,305,000,000 in the reserves, which is $113,400,000 less than the comparable total of $2,418,400,000 a month earlier.

Past statistics show that the first three months of the year are usaully times of weakness in Canada's transactions with other countries, involving some loss of reserves.

In each of the last two years, for example, the reserves showed losses of about $55,000,000 at the end of February, or about half this year's reduction.

The exchange reserves, made up of gold and U.S. dollars, perform a balancing function when demand for Canadian dollars cnnnot be met by the supply at a price close to the official exchange rate of 92½ cents in terms of U.S. funds.

The kind of speculation evident in January and February is a selling pressure anticipating that the dollar cannot be maintained at its existing rate.

Neither the government, nor Parliament, should take any action that would weaken confidence in the Canadian economy, said Mr. Sharp.

Parliament would soon be tested on this responsibility, the finance minister said in an apparent reference to tax measures he hopes to bring in to replace revenue lost by the Feb. 19 defeat of his earlier tax bill.

Reuther Calls Labor 'Summit'

DETROIT (AP) — Auto Workers President Walter Reuther has called a private caucus to lay before other union chiefs his bitter charges against AFL-CIO President George Meany's leadership of American labor.

For more than a year, Reuther has been describing that leadership as "undemocratic," "complacent," "vegetating" and "stagnant."

"I want to talk with you about the difference between the Auto Workers and the AFL-CIO," Reuther said in telegrams inviting several union presidents to the caucus in New York March 8.

Reuther appears nearing a decision on whether to pull his 1,500,000-member Auto Workers Union out of the 14,000,000-member AFL-CIO in what would be a major schism in labor's ranks.

Reuther and his Auto Workers Executive Board are meeting this weekend in Detroit, where union sources say Reuther may demand a special AFL-CIO convention or a meeting of the presidents of its 128 affiliated unions to discuss his demands for reform and "revitalization" of the labor federation.

The New York caucus called by Reuther mystified many labor leaders, and some union presidents were notable for their absence on Reuther's invitation list.

Some speculated Reuther was calling a caucus of former unions of the CIO, which Reuther headed before the merger with Meany's AFL.

PRECEDES CONVENTION

The New York meeting precedes the March 11 opening of the convention in Washington of the AFL-CIO's Industrial Union Department, Reuther's last power base in the federation. He resigned as an AFL-CIO vice-president and all other federation posts more than a year ago.

The Industrial Union Department the last year virtually liquidated long-standing reserves of more than $2,000,000.

The money has gone for organizing drives and strike assistance to other unions while the Auto Workers cut off their once substantial financial contributions to the department.

'High Rates Discourage Home Buying'

MONTREAL (CP) — Frank E. Case, president of Montreal Trust Co., has warned that mortgage rates of 8½ to 9 per cent are discouraging young families from buying homes.

"With the total population in the 20-35 age group increasing in Canada, this is a matter of real concern to trust companies where much fiduciary work involves the real estate business," he told the company's annual meeting.

Mr. Case also made reference to revisions of the Bank Act, saying it put chartered banks in a position to compete more actively for term deposits and savings accounts. It also gave them a foothold into mortgage lending.

Asked how long interest rates would remain at present levels, he replied: "When investors are satisfied that labor and management can co-operate to keep productivity and wages within some reasonable relationship, and are also convicned that governments at all levels are operating according to sound fiscal principles, only then will interest rates show any marked decline."

Rothmans To Use New Type Filter

NEW YORK (CP)—A spokesman for the Strickman Foundation has announced that Rothmans of Pall-Mall, Canada, Ltd., has been licensed to use the Strickman filter.

The spokesman said Rothman had done considerable testing of the filter, invented by Robert L. Strickman, since August, 1967.

$27.6 MILLION DEFICIT REPORTED BY OTTAWA

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government ran up a deficit of $27,600,000 in its January financial operations, bringing the deficit for the first 10 months of the fiscal year to $141,200,000, Finance Minister Sharp said Friday in his monthly report.

A year ago the government had a 10-month surplus of $134,600,000.

Mr. Sharp has forecast a total deficit for the current fiscal year of $785,000,000. But that was last November, and doesn't take into account the $25,000,000 revenue lost when the Commons rejected a tax bill.

FLU BUG AND TOTEMS SLAP CHINOOK SQUAD

Hamilton Quigleys, perennial contenders for national junior men's basketball honors, are the club Victoria Chinooks will face in this year's Canadian final.

Quigleys won the eastern title and will meet Chinooks in the best-of-three final in Victoria, starting next Friday.

They may find the Chinooks somewhat woozy after battles with the flu bug. Chinooks had five players absent or ailing, and Glen Moffat out with an ankle injury, as they played an exhibition game Friday night with Victoria High School Totems and dropped a 63-50 decision to the Totes.

In another game Friday at Vic High, the Teepees tripped Evening Optimist juveniles 43-25.

IT'S MY VIEW . . .

By Ernie Fedoruk

Jim Bishop is 39. He's so well-groomed, one might guess he moonlights for those clean-cut ads in Esquire or The National Tailor.

There's a scent of an expensive after-shave lotion, even though it is late in the afternoon, and Bishop speaks with a matching smoothness, but positively.

Morey Kells is 32. His Ceasar's hair cut is more mod than Bishop's, but the cloth came from the same factory.

These are the vibrant pair who popped into Victoria Friday for an altogether-too-hurried conference with Victoria Shamrocks' upper echlon. They came to convince Douglas Fletcher and Keith Dorman, and anyone else who required convincing that this is the year lacrosse must "think big."

Specifically, Bishop and Kells want the Shamrocks and other Inter-City League teams to merge with the newly-formed four-team eastern circuit in a "National Lacrosse Association."

I don't know how far they got with Dorman and Fletcher et al, but Bishop and Kells convinced me. I haven't checked Dunn and Bradstreet for their credit ratings, but the visitors from Ontario most certainly aren't short of enthusiasm.

●

It's refreshing, because one of lacrosse's great faults has been the absence of enthusiastic, modern thinkers.

Whereas lacrosse executives in the past seemed concerned with only one question—"how much is it going to cost?"—Bishop and Kells seem oblivious of expenses.

Dollars and cents may seem insignificant to them today because they happen to be looking further ahead. They're convinced the sport has a future . . . and the Ontario gentlemen want to move, but quickly.

They're rubbing shoulders with Conn Smythe of Maple Leaf Gardens, Detroit's Bruce Norris and high-priced advertising agencies. That's where the money's coming from, and I think I can get enthusiastic about spending another's bankroll.

Still, I like their overall enthusiasm.

As Jim Tang of the Colonist said this morning: ". . . It's a complete variance with past lacrosse history of talking big and thinking small."

There is considerable merit to the eastern offer. Their selling point would have been better, however, if they had introduced some western versions of Conn Smythe and Bruce Norris. Like a Max Bell or a Frank McMahon.

The history of western lacrosse executives is such that they are incapable of locating and interesting the influential and successful sportsmen-tycoons.

The west lacks that financial edge, and that, in the long run, may prevent the inter-league hopes of Bishop and Kells from becoming a reality.

●

Bishop will coach and manager a Detroit team. Kells was introduced as coach, general-manager and co-owner of the Toronto Maple Leaf Lacrosse Club. Peterborough, coached by Bobby Allan, and Montreal, expected to be guided by John Ferguson, are other teams in the eastern league.

Bishop and Kells want to launch an inter-locking campaign "this season."

"It won't be that expensive," said Bishop. "Each team will make only one trip, playing four games in six days. One trip won't be an added expense, but an excellent opportunity to make money. . .

"Don't you think your fans would enjoy seeing teams from Detroit, Montreal, Peterborough and Toronto coming into Memorial Arena?"

"This has to be started this year. An inter-locking schedule will give lacrosse an image it has never had . . . a ring of big league."

The prospects of money from television, of course, could add the greatest financial boost to the proposed professional league.

While he admitted it would not be possible to televise games "live" this season, arrangements, said Bishop, have already been made to show lacrosse in major TV markets.

Victorian Qualifies For Gymnastic Final

VANCOUVER (CP) — United States women Friday continued to dominate the North American gymnastic championships, placing nine of 12 finalists in two events.

The only outsiders to qualify for finals of the side horse vault and balance beam competition were Sandra Hartley, 17, of North Vancouver and Susan McDonnell, 19, of Toronto, Pan-American Games gold medalist.

Miss McDonnell qualified for both of today's finals in the four-nation competition, while Miss Hartley reached the vaulting final.

Lynda Joe Metheny, a University of Illinois co-ed who won four gold medals at the 1967 Pan-Am Games, was top qualifier in the balance beam while 17-year-old Joyce Tanac of Seattle led in vaulting.

Unofficial results showed Canada's women's team in second place, followed by Mexico and Cuba.

American athletes also dominated the men's events, with the other three countries staging a close battle for the runner-up position, the second-place spot changing hands on several occasions during the first two days of competition.

Canadian men to qualify for finals were Gil Larose, 23, of Montreal, Roger Dion, 28, of Quebec City and Gordie Gannon, 25, of Victoria, all in the long horse vault. Dion also reached the side horse final.

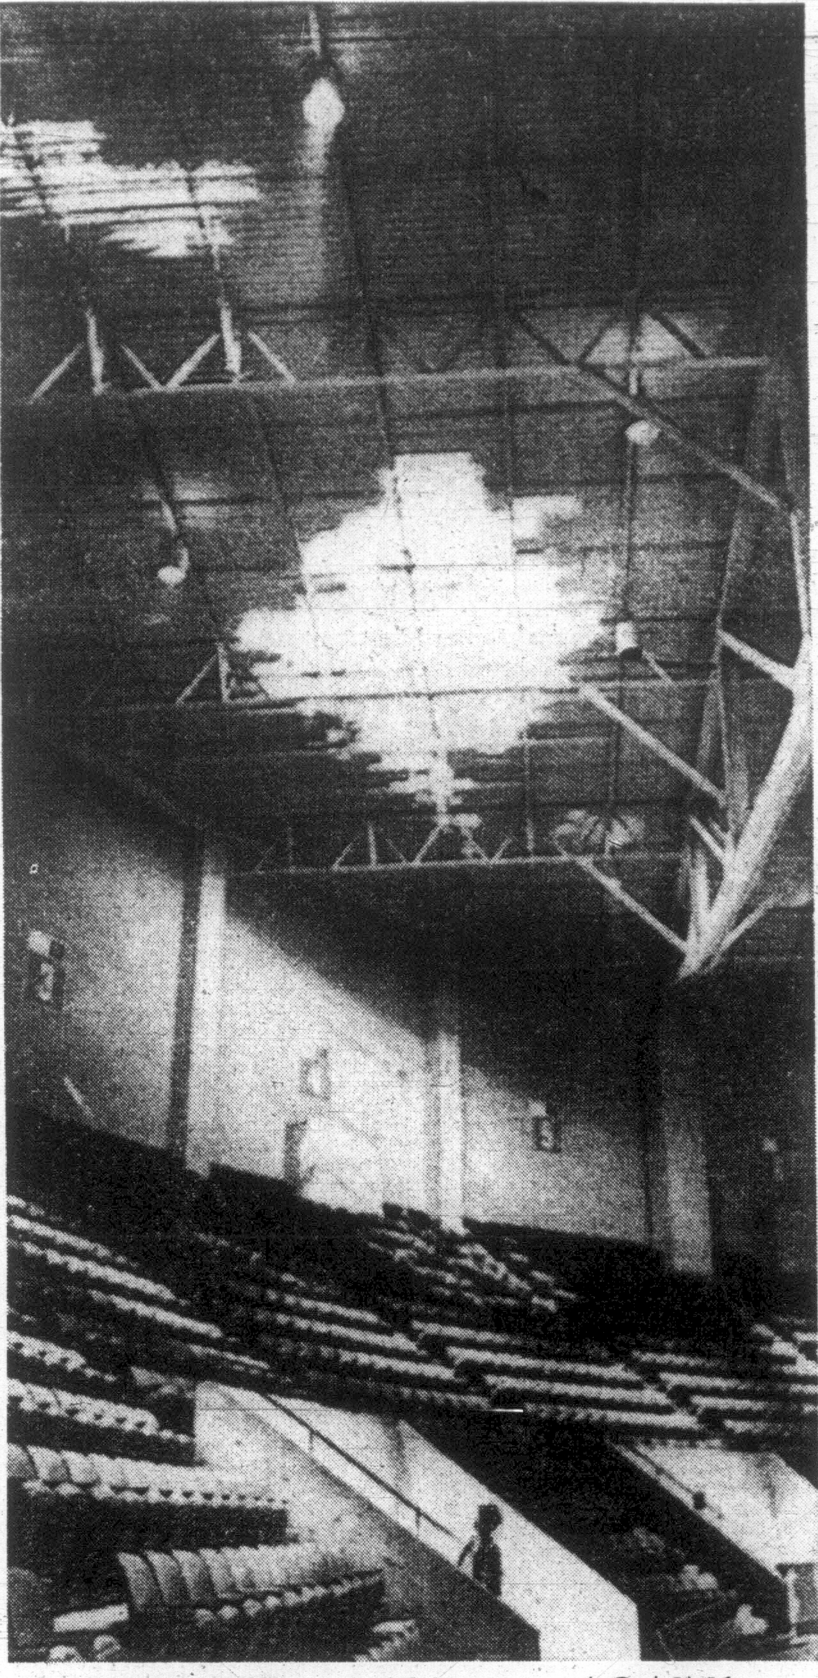
"Sure I'm always charging around angry! Maybe you think I like these two things on my nose!"



UP AND AWAY . . . AGAIN!

For second time in less than a month, high winds have ripped off portions of roof on Philadelphia's Spectrum, the city's new $12 million sports arena. At least four holes were torn in roof Thursday — the largest a gap of 125 feet by 40. Winds were gusting up to 48 miles at the time. No spectators were in the building at the time. On Feb. 17, however, winds ripped open a hole 50 by 100 feet while 10,000 persons were inside. Mayor Tate ordered the arena closed indefinitely. (AP Wirephoto)

OPENING GAMES . . . . . IN ISLAND TOURNEY

Bays, Claremont Win

COURTENAY — Oak Bay and Claremont, top clubs in the Victoria league this season, could clash head-on here tonight for the Vancouver Island high school girls' basketball crown.

They were playing in opposite sections of the semi-finals here this afternoon after chalking up solid victories Friday in the opening round of the Island tourney.

Oak Bay tangled with Nanaimo and Claremont faced Courtenay in the semis.

Claremont rolled over Powell River 53-17 Friday as Trish Spooner scored 15 points and Jeannie McHaitie added 11 for the winners.

Oak Bay made it to the semis as a 15-point effort by Carla Van Schaik sparked a 33-18 conquest of Ladysmith.

TIGERS TRIPPED

Despite a 23-point spree by Anne McKeachie, Victoria High was bombed 66-37 by Courtenay, which outscored the Tigers 22-6 in the third quarter.

Courtenay's attack was again paced by Rose Witzel (20 points) and her sister, Heather (16).

Brenda McFarlane (19) was the big gun for Nanaimo in a 50-23 win over Campbell River.

Scoring:

CLAREMONT (53) — Joan Sandwith 3, Dianne Benn 9, Brenda Brackenberry 4, June Ferrill 4, Shelley Dodds, Elizabeth Lax, Jeannie McHattie 11, Barb Tribe 9, Trish Spooner 15.

POWELL RIVER (17)—Marsha Grant 1, Angie Vodola, Linda Netter, Susan Owen 1, Marlene Grisl 13, Betsy Rourke, Susan Pulkrabk, Marlene Dunbrack 2, Sherry Simonetta.

COURTENAY (66) — Linda Goodsell 4, Diane Schellich 3, Lyn Rowland, Val Moore, Bev Barnes 6, Rose Witzel 20, Phyllis Allen 5, Wilma Richardson 6, Heather Witzel 16, Dianne Richardson 6.

VICTORIA (37) — Janice Dicks, Vicki Hammond 3, Ann McKeachie 23, Barb Halberg, Pat Bourne 5, Judy Robbins, Jeanette Hammer 3, Kathy Newell 2, Sue Maybee 1.

NANAIMO (50) — Judy Magnum 4, Eloise Dunbar, Ann Dunsmore, Brenda McFarlane 19, Gail Curtis 12, Andrea Smith 8, Lyn Stephens 6, Marnie Dickie, Laurie Sawden 6.

CAMPBELL RIVER (23)—Dawn Skinner 1, Jane Greig 1, Audrey McKay 2, Yvonne Grue 2, Sheila Power, Colleen Jones 4, Sandra Stogan 10, Darlene Starkey, Christeen Greig 3.

OAK BAY (33) — Nancy Harwood, Ann MacMillan, Maureen Wills 4, Carla Van Schaik 15, Lynette Goff 4, Jacquie Farris 2, Dianne Cooke, Jeannie MacKenzie 4, Lee Jones 4.

Danzer Retains Title; Ends Amateur Career

GENEVA (CP-AP) — Emmerich Danzer of Austria successfully defended his world figure skating title Friday, beating back a strong challenge from Tim Wood, a United States law student.

The 23-year-old Viennese salesman gave a superbly controlled exhibition of free skating to win his third consecutive world title with 12 ordinals and 2,195.2 points.

Wood, 19, had been a fraction ahead of Danzer after the men's compulsory figures. He tried desperately to stay in the lead with some fearless jumping. But a slip during a triple salchow leap discouraged him and, as in the Olympics, he had to be satisfied with second place. He had 15 ordinals and 2,180.9 points.

Danzer immediately announced his retirement from amateur competition, but withheld any announcement of professional skating plans for the present time.

Jay Humphry of Vancouver and Toronto finished seventh and David McGillivray of Toronto finished just as he had at the Olympics—his strong free-skating show pulling him up from the eighth place he held after the school figures. He had 57 ordinals and 2,047.3 points.

Earlier Friday, Peggy Fleming of the United States virtually cinched her third consecutive world title. She completed the women's compulsory figures with a perfect ordinal score of 9, meaning that each of the judges placed her first. She also had 1,209.7 points.

In second place going into today's free-skating finale was Gabriele Seyfert of East Germany.

Karen Magnussen of North Vancouver was ninth and Linda Carbonetto of Toronto 18th.

CANADIAN CHAMPIONSHIPS . . . . . . START MARCH 26

Badminton Preparations Under Way

One hundred and fifty of Canada's top-ranking badminton players, along with a number of foreign players, are expected in Victoria for the 1968 Canadian badminton championships this month, according to E. L. "Tut" Jones, Victoria co-chairman of the championships committee.

Play for the 41st Canadian closed event begins the morning of Tuesday, March 26, at the Racquet Club of Victoria with finals scheduled for the evening of Thursday, March 28.

The open event, the 12th to be held in Canada under the sanction of the International Badminton Federation, starts the following morning, Friday, and the finals will be played Saturday evening. Canadians who reach the quarter-finals in the closed matches will be entered in the open to compete against players from several foreign countries.

While the senior events are being played at the Racquet Club, the best of Canada's junior players will be competing in play-offs for the 18th Canadian junior championship at the Cordova Bay Badminton Club with finals to be held at the Racquet Club.

With badminton rapidly increasing in popularity in recent years, both as a spectator and participant sport, the local championship committee has made arrangements for seating the expected large crowds of Victoria and out-of-town people who will be on hand to watch the top-calibre play.

Final list of competitors will not be known until entries close next week, but among those who will be on hand are two outstanding young Calgary players, Yves Pare and Jamie Paulson, who will be defending the Canadian closed men's doubles title they won at Winnipeg last year. Giving them tough competition will be Vancouver's well-known winners of many events, Wayne Macdonnell and Rolf Paterson, among others.

Former Victorian Allison Daysmith, now of Vancouver, will be defending her ladies' singles championship, while Dorothy Tinline and Marjorie Shedd of Toronto will be defending their ladies' doubles win of last year against tough competition.

Tickets for all events are available at the Racquet Club and should be picked up early as there are no reserved seats.

Turmoil May Force IOC to Back-Pedal

CHICAGO (AP)—The growing threat of a boycott of the October Olympics in Mexico City has applied enough pressure for possible reconsideration of South Africa's controversial admission to the Games.

South Africa was barred from the 1964 Summer Olympiad in Tokyo because of its policy of separation of the races. It was readmitted by the International Olympic Committee last month after agreeing that its team would be free of racial lines.

The readmittance has caused a turmoil with 32 African countries declaring they would abandon the games. Other withdrawals came from Cuba, Malaysia, India, Saudi Arabia, Iraq and Syria.

RUSSIA IN DOUBT

The boiling point, however, seems to be controlled by Russia and the Soviet bloc, powerful Olympic competitors. Russia has not gone so far as to pull out, but has openly expressed disapproval of South Africa's participation.

The threat, financially and artistically, to the Games brought three concerned Mexican Olympic officials seeking some kind of assurance of resolving the problems, to Avery Brundage, 80-year-old IOC president.

Brundage said Friday he will call a meeting of the IOC's nine-member executive board, probably in Luzanne, Switzerland. Brundage is the only American on the board. The others are from France, Mexico, the Soviet Union, Pakistan, Great Britain, Lebanon, Italy and Ireland.

LONG SEASON

Brundage said it would take from 30 to 60 days to set up such a meeting He said it would be up to the board to call a full 72-member IOC meeting as some countries have requested and that it would require another vote by the entire IOC to act again on South Africa's participation in the Games.

Brundage hinted that the issue could bounce around until near the official close of team entries eight weeks before the start of the Mexico City show Oct. 12.

Meanwhile, in Johannesburg, Rank Braun, president of the South African Olympic Committee, said South Africa "will under no circumstances withdraw from the Olympic Games."

"Preparations are already under way to compete and all arrangements will have been made by the time the Republic receives its invitation," he said.

Brundage foresees no collapse of the Games.

Cougars To Get Awards

Victoria Cougars may have missed the playoffs in their first season in the B.C. Junior Hockey League, but some of the Cats will be collecting trophies tonight.

It will be awards night for the Cougars at Memorial Arena as they finish their schedule against Vernon Essos in a game starting at 8:30.

Due to be presented tonight are trophies for the most popular and the most valuable Victoria players and an award for the club's leading scorer. Winner of the scoring bauble is still undecided with at least three Cats in position to finish on top.

It is an important game for the Essos, who are also completing their schedule. Currently tied for second place with Kamloops, Essos must win tonight to avoid facing first-place Penticton in playoff semi-finals.

Vikings Survive Assault

University of Victoria Vikings engaged Queen's Own Rifles in a rapid-fire shooting match Friday night and almost got blown out of Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Peace was declared barely in time for Vikings to escape with an 8-7 decision that added another point to their point total, which had previously been enough to clinch a first-place finish in the Vancouver Island Hockey League.

In the other game on Friday's doubleheader, Tudor Monarchs and Stockers North Americans continued their duel for second place by battling to a scoreless deadlock.

Stockers, who remained two points behind the Tudors, still have one interlocking game (against Nanaimo) to play in order to complete their league schedule.

IMPRESSIVE START

Vikings got away to an impresssive start against the Rifles and everything looked rosy for the students when they rolled to a 5-0 lead after two minutes of the second period. The University outlook was even brighter with 12 minutes gone in the session as the students stretched the margin to 7-1.

Then the military men got their shooting weapons on target and started punching big holes in the Viking defences only to see their spirited comeback assault fall one goal short.

Ted Sarkissian was the busiest Viking, firing three goals, Glyn Harper added two for the students and single Uvic tallies were notched by Mike Woodley, Paul Bion and Terry Foreman.

Freak Goal Thwarts Roadrunners' Cause

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The two top teams in the Western Hockey League made things difficult for the two bottom clubs Friday night.

League-leading Portland Buckaroos defeated last-place Vancouver Canucks 6-4 before 8,356 fans. Second-place Seattle edged fourth-place Phoenix 2-1 before 5,939 fans in Seattle.

Vancouver wanted the win to move into the fourth and final playoff spot held by Phoenix. Roadrunners wanted victory to strengthen their single-point lead on Vancouver.

Vancouver saw a 4-1 second period lead fade into defeat as Buckaroos scored five unanswered goals in the final period.

Cliff Schmautz and Andy Hebenton scored two goals each for Portland while Mel Pearson and Bill Saunders added one apiece. Vancouver got goals from Gord Vejprava, Billy McNeill, Bruce Carmichael and Terry Clancy.

A freak goal by Chuck Holmes early in the third period provided the margin of victory for Seattle. He flipped a high shot from just inside the red line at centre ice. It bounced over the stick of goalie Rick Charron. It was not Charron's night. He was cut in the forehead minutes later by a high stick and had to be replaced by Gilles Banville.

Seattle had opened the scoring on a goal by Earl Heiskala. Rookie Walt McKechnie tied it for Phoenix in the second 20 minutes.

Tonight's action has Vancouver at San Diego and Baltimore of the American League at Portland.

Rangers Hope To Move Up . . .

SEATTLE (AP)—The group of 32 businessmen who own the Seattle Rangers of the Continental Football League have applied for the first available franchise in the American or National Football Leagues.

Lafa (Lafe) Lane, president of Puget Sound Enterprises Inc., said the group hoped to have a major league team as early as 1970.

In the meantime the Rangers will continue in the Continental League, Lane said.

ROYALS DEMAND NEUTRAL REF . . . . . . FOR SUNDAY CLASH

WRIGHT ISSUES WARNING

George Wright is coming back to Victoria . . .

. . . To a town, he says, he "knows very well."

He'll ride in for Sunday's Pacific Coast Soccer League game at Macdonald Park on a storm of his own making—and not created by any low-pressure front lying off the coast of Alaska.

The one-time Victoria player, now coaching New Westminster Labatts, threw coals of fire on Sunday's important soccer battle by demanding a neutral referee. Wright's strong "request" went in to PCSL headquarters hard on the heels of a complaint, by UBC Thunderbirds, over the officiating of Jack Adams in last week's game here. Victoria's O'Keefes defeated UBC 2-1 to jump into a three-way tie for first place, one point ahead of Wright's Royal City crew.

"I played for Victoria for 10 years," Wright declared Friday, "and we got every break in the book.

"It's like playing against 12 players. A visiting club is one goal down before the game starts."

Wright, refusing to concede O'Keefes "that edge," was turned down in his request. "I didn't expect to get a neutral referee, because UBC's protest must still be heard. If they granted us our request, that might be construed as support of UBC's protest."

Wright also served warning that his team will refuse to play if Victoria fans are permitted to stand behind and around the goals.

"Visiting goaltenders are harassed by fans behind the goals. We'll refuse to play unless the referee keeps them away . . . and he'll be informed of that before the game."

Royals will be at full strength with both inside Jim Nichol and fullback Bill Sinclair off the injury list. O'Keefes, however, are doubtful about the services of fullback Don McIntosh and halfback Brian Robinson.

If Wright's storm-warnings aren't enough to "interest" the soccer followers, the respective team records may. Westminster has won its last four games, Victoria six straight.

The referee, incidentally, will not be Adams, the only active "A" card-carrying official on the Island. Business has taken him to eastern Canada for three weeks.

Game time is 2 p.m.

FAMILY OF CHAMPIONS, and pretty, too, captured Canadian women's curling crown by defeating B.C. in sudden-death playoff. Comely crew includes Mrs. Hazel Jamison and her three daughters from Edmonton. BABYSITTER NEEDED

Title Conquest Family Affair

WINNIPEG (CP)—Alberta's curling family isn't making any immediate plans to defend the Canadian women's curling championship, won in a playoff Friday with British Columbia, 11-4.

Skip Hazel Jamison, who tosses last rocks on a rink that includes her three daughters, says 1968 may be the last year the curling Jamison clan play together.

"It had to be this year," said 23-year-old Jackie Spencer, a mother of one. Her sisters, June Coyle, 28, and Gale Lee, 25, have two and three children respectively.

And Grandmother Hazel said Friday after winning her second national title that unless a "built-in babysitter" is found, this could be their final championship together.

MISSED 1966 EVENT

Only Jackie was missing in 1966 when Mrs. Jamison won her first women's title with June and Gale on her rink.

Alberta and B.C., skipped by Myrtle Fashoway of Cranbrook, completed the 10-team, round-robin event with identical 7-2, won-loss records. The title was won for Manitoba last year by Betty Duguid of Winnipeg.

Only Ina Hansen of Kimberley, B.C., who emerged victorious in 1962 and 1964, had skipped a national women's championship rink twice.

FIVE-ENDER HELPS

Stolen singles in each of the first three ends and a five-ender in the fifth by Alberta, was too much for the B.C. squad to overcome and they packed it up after nine.

Speaking later of the fateful five-ender which resulted when Mrs. Fashoway was narrow on a draw, the B.C. skip said:

"The only shot I had was to try to cut them out of three. My rocks seemed to be cutting too much all the time."

Mrs. Fashoway missed again in the sixth to allow Alberta to steal two more.

LADIES' 'SPIEL

Six End Provides Thunder

Sixteen rinks ticked off two straight victories, but a visiting foursome which emerged with a 1-1, won-lost record provided the opening highlight in the annual ladies' bonspiel at Victoria Curling Club Friday.

Viv Chatenay's Vancouver rink provided the spectacular opening.

Playing on the first draw, Chatenay's foursome found itself on the short end of a 9-4 score moving into the 10th and final end.

Misses by their rival rink, skipped by Elin Petch of Victoria, suddenly made the game "interesting." By time Miss Chatenay went to throw her last rock, she had a chance to pull off a six-ender (eight is the perfect curling end) and a victory.

Miss Chatenay did get her six, executing a perfect but tricky last-rock takeout to defeat the Victoria foursome 10-9.

TRIED AGAIN

The Vancouver crew couldn't make it their next game . . . but tried. They trailed 10-8 heading into the home end, stole two to force an extra end, but eventually lost, 11-10, to Duncan's Isabelle Jamison.

Posting two straight wins along with the Jamison rink were Mollie Beddington, Marion Smith, Jene Chandler, Helen Edwards, Sheila Steuart, Lee Jameson, Ada Fuller, Clare Duncan, Dorothy Fukuyama, Carol Williams, Marg Sturrock and Betty Chalmers, all of Victoria; Elsie Paul of Port Alberni, and Marg Kerr and Marg Hurst, both of Vancouver.

Play continues today and winds up with the finals Sunday.

Squash Champ Defeated By Greenwood

Mike Greenwood continued his recent fine play Friday to pull a big upset in the Pacific Coast squash racquets championships at the Racquet Club.

The Victoria player whipped Alex Eichmann, the defending champion from San Francisco, 3-0.

Simon Malone of South Africa also had his troubles before earning a 3-2 victory over Californian Stan Mandall.

Tournament competition was continuing today on courts at the Sussex Hotel, Racquet Club and CFB, Esquimalt. Finals are slated Sunday at the Racquet Club, starting at 10 a.m. Finals in "A" division will begin at 2:30.

Sno Birds Hope To Stage Races

Outlook for skiing on Vancouver Island this weekend is far from encouraging.

Nevertheless, the Sno-Birds Ski Club hopes to hold club races at Green Mountain with limited snowmobile service available. If the races are cancelled the club expects to make an announcement over city radio stations.

On Forbidden Plateau, temperatures hover around 42 degrees and rain has been falling. Skiing is reported on the slope but there is little snow on the tow.

Griffith Feels Great For Battle With Nino

KIAMESHA LAKE, N.Y. (AP) — Emile Griffith says he's in great shape. One look at him in action is enough to convince anyone that he's not kidding.

Showgirls hate him when they see his narrow waist. Musclemen turn green with envy when they look at his broad shoulders and bulging biceps.

The boxing program tale of the tape says his waist is 28 inches.

"It's 26½ inches right now and I've never felt better," said Griffith, who defends his world middleweight title against Italy's Nino Benvenuti at Madison Square Garden Monday night.

RUBBER MATCH

This will be Griffith's third title fight with Benvenuti. Griffith lost his crown to the tall, stylish Italian last April and regained it in September.

In the second fight on the doubleheader title card, Joe Frazier of Philadelphia and Buster Mathis of Grand Rapids, Mich., a couple of young, undefeated fighters, will meet for a piece of the world heavyweight title. New York and Massachusetts will recognize the winner as champion.

Griffith is a 7-5 favorite while Frazier is a 2-1 choice.

In working at the same place and by watching each other they have helped each other. Frazier, a knockout puncher with a left hook, has learned from Griffith how to use his right hand more effectively.

Griffith, a much more experienced fighter, has become more aggressive because of Frazier.

Inter-Locking Playoff Under Way on May 3

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — The American and Western Hockey Leagues will meet in a best-of-seven playoff series this spring.

Jack Butterfield, president of the AHL, and Al Leader, head of the WHL, jointly announced the interlocking series. It will begin May 3 in the home of the AHL's Calder Cup champion for two or three games before moving west to the Patrick Cup champion's home.

A $35,000 player pool has been established with winning players getting $1,000 each and losers $750.

Butterfield and Leader said: "This playoff series, in light of the success of the interlocking schedule played this season, certainly is a natural conclusion to the season and will add emphasis to future collaboration between the American and Western leagues."

St. Louis Leading Midget Hoop Final

St. Louis College opened the best-of-three city midget boys' basketball final Friday night by defeating Esquimalt Lions 27-10.

First United Fireflies flitted to the midget girls' crown Friday night by defeating St. Patrick's 29-26 to win the best-of-three playoff in straight games.

Braves Have Two Aarons

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—It'll be Aaron and Aaron for the Atlanta Braves this season. The Braves announced today that Tommie Aaron, the younger brother of Hank, agreed to a contract in time to work out in the first full day of spring practice.

Hank Aaron is in the second year of a two-year contract.

Tommie, 28, balked on his first contract offer because he was offered only $10,000 a year. He was asking $15,000 but is believed to have signed for about $11,500. He plays first base and the outfield.

PORT ALBERNI—It won't be surprising if favored high school teams start hoping they won't have to face Cowichan High in basketball tournaments.

The Cowichan students started building a reputation for upsets last year when they whipped the defending B.C. champion Victoria High Totems in playoffs. They were hustling on the same upset road here Friday night when they ran into Port Alberni in the first round of the Upper Island tourney and bounced the tournament hosts 69-62.

Al Wilson and Ken Faught each fired 17 points to spark Cowichan while Oscar Faoro pumped in 22 points forth e Ports.

FOUR TO ADVANCE

In today's semi-finals, the Duncan school was scheduled to tackle Courtenay and Chemainus was to meet Nanaimo, with the two winners clashing in the final at 9 p.m.

Jerry Plester (24 points) and Rod Francoer (20) paced Chemainus to a 56-38 first-round win over Campbell River. Courtenay got 14 points from Jim McLeod on the way to a 72-12 triumph over Qualicum and Ken Kognow's 20-point effort helped Nanaimo to an 87-38 conquest of Ladysmith.

Top four teams in the tourney will advance to the Vancouver Island tournament next weekend at the University of Victoria.

Bruins Hope Orr's Ready For Playoffs

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins' ace defencemen Bobby Orr is expected to be fit for the National Hockey League playoffs.

Dr. Ronald Adams, the team physician, said Friday Orr is making good progress in recovering from surgery Feb. 12 for removal of damaged cartilage from his left knee.

"If he continues, he should be ready to play by the end of the month," Dr. Adams said.

General manager Milt Schmidt said Orr's availability for the playoffs "will depend entirely on the medical reports."

PSYCHEDELIC IN APPEARANCE is the core of the Centennial Bell Tower in this unusual shot by Times photographer Bill Halkett. Spiral staircase leads to console room where keyboard to Dutch community's carillon gift to province is situated. At top of tower are the 49 bells of the carillon.

RINGING-IN NEXT SATURDAY

CARILLONEUR ON CLOSED TV

49 Bells for Belleville

By PETE LOUDON

When the bells ring out in the carillon on Belleville Street Saturday the ancient form of entertainment will be backed up by modern electronics.

There will be a closed-circuit television hook up to enable people on the street to watch carilloneur Herman Bergink at the keyboard.

And if he should climb down from his perch in the bell tower for a coffee break, it needn't interrupt the music.

●

Also tucked away up there is a device which will permit short concerts with an automatically-fed tape determining which bells will ring when.

The closed TV is not expected to be a regular feature and may be removed after the 4:30 p.m. opening ceremonies and the concert the following day at 3 p.m.

The initial ringing-in ceremony will serve to announce the gift of the carillon to B.C. from the Netherlands community in the province—a late starting centennial gesture.

●

A carillon is a musical instrument consisting of a set of 23 or more cup-shaped bronze bells. There are 49 bells in the Belleville tower.

(Incidentally, the word, according to Fowlers' English Usage, is pronounced kar-i-lon, with the emphasis on the first or second syllable. This is preferred to kar-il-lyon which is cited in some dictionaries.)

The carillon was created by Petit and Fritsen of Holland, who have been making bells (bell-founding) since 1660. The Victoria carillon has a practice keyboard as well as an operational keyboard, which permits the operator to practise without being heard.

●

This might be of great interest to Empress Hotel dwellers, because the largest bell in the carillon weighs 1,910 pounds which could conceivably shock some of the inner harbor seagulls worse than the guns which open the legislative sessions each January.

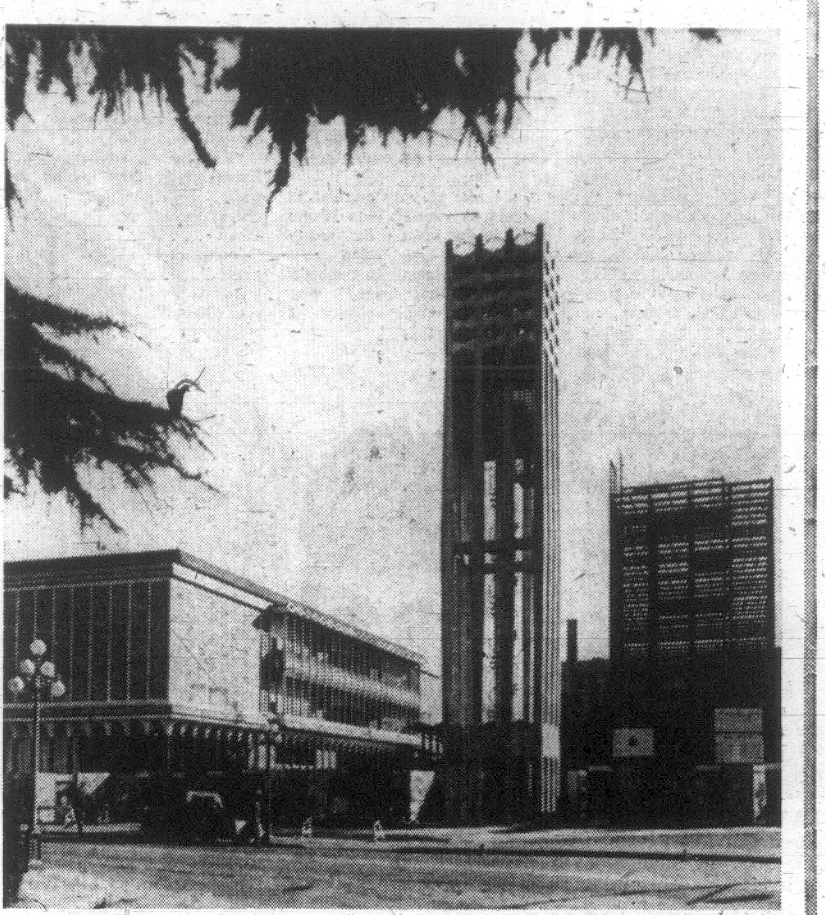
The combined weight of the bells is more than five tons yet this is a comparatively light set of bells suited to folk songs, sacred music, popular classics and music written especially for the instrument.

●

Premier Bennett will officially accept the carillon Saturday at a ceremony attended by other provincial dignitaries and Netherlands consul-general J. G. Beekman and L. R. Doorman, chairman of the Netherlands Community Centennial Committee.

Cornerstone for the tower was laid last year by Queen Juliana of the Netherlands. Herman Bergink, a former organist at St. Luke's Church, will be carilloneur for the first two concerts and the band from HMCS Naden will also play at the dedication ceremony.

It's almost as if the city fathers who named Belleville Street a century ago had been looking into a crystal ball.



THE CARILLON TOWER makes a fitting sentinel at corner of Belleville and Government in front of new Provincial Government Museum and Archives complex still under construction. Cornerstone of the tower was laid last year by Queen Juliana of The Netherlands.

THEY MEND 'BROKEN' CHILDREN

'CONSISTENCY WITHOUT EMOTIONAL DEMANDS'

Group Homes: Learning to Trust Adults Again

By KATHRINE THOMAS

In the past 10 years Mr. and Mrs. Peter Wilkins have been parents to 140 children.

In 1957 they answered an ad in the paper for foster parents placed by the Family and Children's Service.

They took in more children until there was no longer any room in their small house—so the agency established them as parents of one of their 10 group and receiving homes.

The group home at 3914 Carey Road is big and old. Perched on top of a hill, it has an enormous yard with a garden.

Inside there are eight bedrooms, a poolroom and a carpenter's workshop.

At the moment there are eight teen-age boys living at Carey Road.

Most of them have parents whom they see once a month. Some have been in a series of foster homes, one is an orphan.

Most of them come into care through juvenile court — some under the Children's Protection Act, others for delinquencies like stealing, smashing up cars and running away. One boy ran away from home 14 times.

Some have been termed incorrigible by their parents and the court. Others have come into care for short-term periods because their parents, perhaps because of illness, can't look after them.

The advantage of a group home over a foster home is that the children are not forced to meet the demands made by a family.

"Most of them have come out of an inadequate home situation," says Lon Lawson, supervisor of the group care section. "Their parents are no longer capable of controlling them."

'Learn to Trust at Own Speed'

"The common factor among the children," says Gordon Welsh, director of treatment services, "is that they've had a painful experience with adults—they can no longer trust them.

"They have withdrawn and are not capable of forming an emotional bond. In a group home, they are able to learn to trust adults again at their own speed.

"The group home must adjust to fit the needs of the child; in the foster home the child is forced to fit a regime."

Placed among other children, the child in a group home begins to make contact again by relating to youngsters his own age. "If kids are browned off by their parents, they will often turn to their friends," says Mr. Welsh.

The role of a group parent is a demanding one.

"The group parents must learn to act in a consistent fashion," says Mr. Lawson. "It takes time to build up trust. They must accept the children as they are, not attempt to mold them their own way.

"They must offer a warm relationship to the child—but never force it on him. They must wait for the child to approach them."

"We are not supposed to replace the parents," says Mrs. Wilkins," just to give them a family type home without great emotional demands."

Another important factor is discipline. Many of the children come from homes where their parents didn't care enough to worry about where they were at night.

In the group home they all have their chores to do and have to be home at a definite time on weekends. Their misdemeanors are punished by "grounding" for a weekend or by small fines.

"At first they resent it," says Mr. Lawson," but then they realize it's in their own interests. If the controls are reasonable, they see it as an indication of genuine adult concern."

The children are given an allowance by the Family and Children's Service—$10 a month when they are over 16, $6 a month when they are under.

They go to school in the area, visit friends and have their girl friends over for dances. Some work Saturdays for extra money; others can join the Y, or clubs, and take painting and music lessons. In the summer they go camping.

But by the time they reach a group home, their education has usually suffered. Most of them have been forced to change schools too often.

"The majority have been through the mill," says Mr. Wilkins. "They've had a pretty rough life and they're lucky if they manage to get through Grade X."

'They Want to Get Jobs Soon'

Of all the children who have passed through the Wilkins' home, only one girl has made it to university. Two others have completed Grade 12.

In the present group, only one boy said he wanted to go beyond school—to become an architect.

"They want to get a job as soon as possible," says Mrs. Wilkins. "They haven't had much in their homes and they want the security money brings.

"They're always talking about the nice homes and cars they'll have some day."

Some children have been successfully returned to their own homes, others placed in foster homes, and still others have remained in the group home until they could strike out on their own.

Working with the boys in each home and with their families is a social worker.

George Philian, the social worker assigned to Carey Road says, "We try to work as a team, the house parents are the main treatment—the social worker, the consultant."

The Family and Children's Service receives many applications from people who would like to be group parents but last time only two or three out of 60 applicants were chosen as suitable.

"It's a very exacting job and makes a lot of physical and emotional demands," says Mr. Lawson. "You have to be a stable person who genuinely likes children."

Full Month's Holiday Annually

The pay scale ranges from $260 to $310 for the wife plus a stipend of $100 for the husband if he has an outside job. If he works full time in the home he is paid on the same scale as his wife.

Rent, upkeep, food and laundry are paid by the agency. An average monthly food bill at Carey Road is $500.

"Group parents should be well paid," says Mr. Welsh. "It's such a demanding job."

"The agency also insists group parents have two days off a week—away from the home. Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins spend those days in a trailer on their property. The boys are looked after by substitute house parents.

Group parents also get a full month's vacation a year.

The children in group homes may range in age from six to 21 (if they are still attending school). Some homes are mixed; some just for boys.

"Many people are afraid at first of a group home in their neighborhood," says Mr. Welsh. "They worry about juvenile delinquency. But most have been very co-operative in meeting the community responsibility towards these boys. They need to be given a chance too."

THE BOYS SPEAK OUT

'You Start Coming to Your Senses'

How do the boys feel about the Carey Road group home? The five boys interviewed are all 15 years of age. They were friendly and quick to give their views on any subject.

● On parents and house parents: "It's good to be with guys your own age and everything is fair here."

"It's stricter; there's more discipline. I was too free at home. Here you settle down and behave yourself. It's a good thing; you start coming to your senses."

"I don't want to go home. I don't like my parents. Here I have friends my own age."

"You should be able to talk back to parents, have your girl friends over. Here you can put up a good argument as long as it's reasonable."

"But even here as soon as they see they're losing, they tell you to shut up."

"We should be treated with more respect. Parents talk behind your back and so do the house parents. It bugs me. Why won't they come out and say what they think of us. We can hear them talking about us."

"If I were a house parent I wouldn't blame one kid and say he's leading the others down the garden path. We know it's not true."

"You're dependent on the house parents' change of mood. You go to school and everything's okay. Then you come home, they're in a bad mood and you get picked on. If one person's done something wrong, everyone has to stay home."

● On school: "School bugs me; everyone just goes to see their friends."

"When they force us to do things, we don't want to do them."

"They pretty well want you to quit. The teachers couldn't care less."

"The teachers pick on us. At the beginning of the year, they really watched us. They more or less expected us to make trouble."

● On stealing: "My old man is jealous of me. He used to beat me all the time so I'd swipe something and run away."

"We only steal to get back at them. You don't think it's revenge at the time but it is."

"If you treat your kids properly, don't rough them up—they won't steal from you."

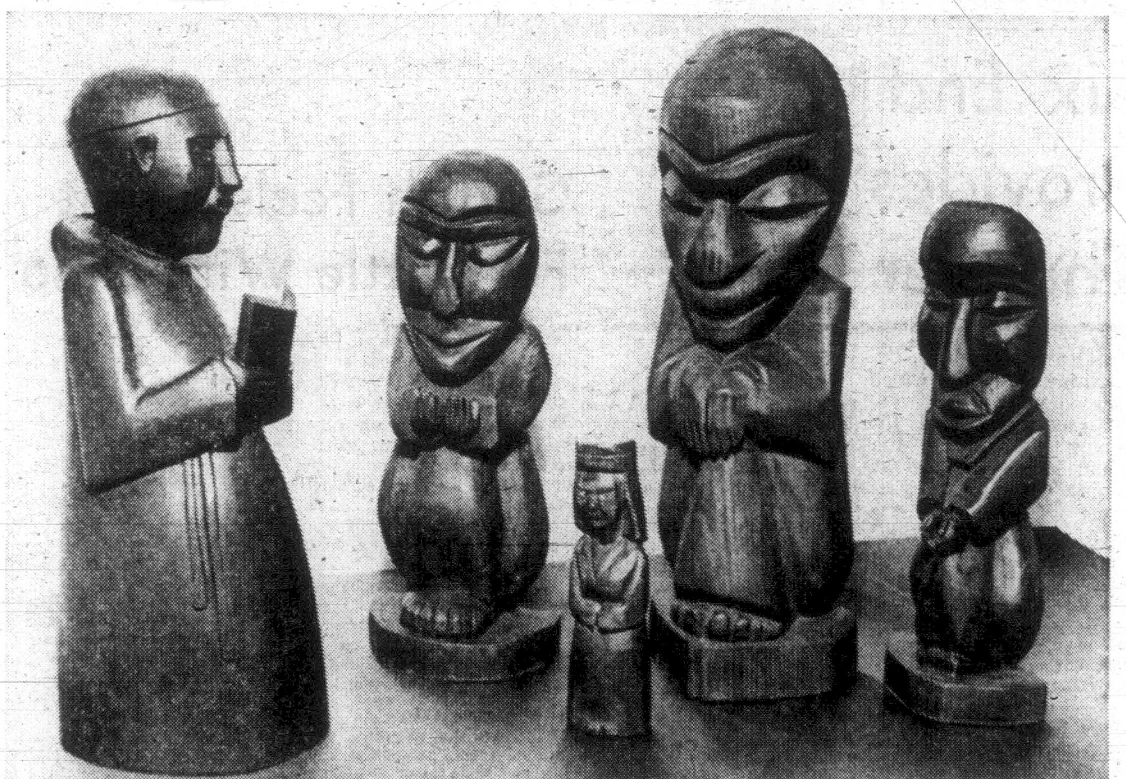
● On social workers: "You should be able to talk to them, bum cigarettes off them."

"Some social workers don't trust you but our social worker, Mr. Philian, thinks down to our level; he understands us."

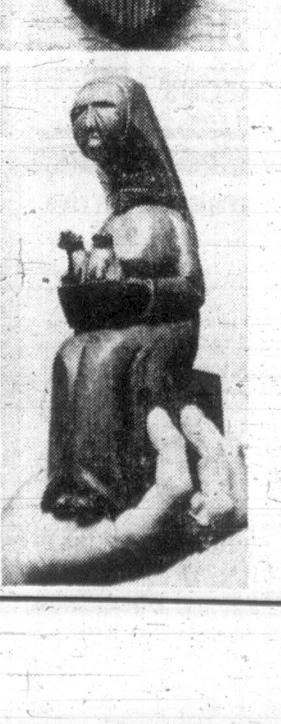
"At least here you can smoke in front of them instead of behind their backs."

● On friends and neighbors: "Some of the parents won't let their kids associate with us. They think we're a bunch of hoods."

"Some of the kids we know at school don't want to come up here. They think maybe they'll see bars on the windows."



SILENT LISTENERS are the carved figures of Clifford Coe, although they speak volumes in the artistry of this newcomer to Victoria, a former Vancover millwright, who has lived in the United States as well.



THEY CRY 'UNCLE!' BUT ASK FOR MORE

By DON VIPOND

Clifford Coe is a man with a sharp chisel, a passion for wood and a fascination with faces.

Close to 2,000 faces—grinning, gaping, leering and laughing—surround a visitor to the Coes' trim house at 942 Linkleas.

They are frozen in wood, mostly the rich soft glow of black walnut. But throughout the house are heads, statues, figurines and totems in apple, pear, arbutus, hawthorne, cherry, myrtlewood, juniper, plum, cedar, dogwood, appricot, willow, peach, maple, pine, alder and Chinese photina among others.

Mr. Coe has been busy since it all began with walnuts a decade ago.

INDIAN FIGURES

The Coes were living in Salem, Ore., then and in the fall a black walnut tree scattered nuts on their lawn. For two years Clifford worked with a penknife, carving faces of them, later joining them to produce tiny Indian figures.

There are still scores of these about the house, some providing visitors a bit of a turn as they stare up from a nut bowl.

On the way to carving in wood Mr. Coe became fascinated with the weird and wonderful shapes nature produced with rose roots. Just a little carving and polishing created some of the strangest items in his collection.

"People seemed to get quite a bang out of them," he recalls.

RELAXED DOCTORS

He began to get calls from people intrigued by his hobby, among them doctors who wanted the relaxation carving gave them while strengthening their hands. Lawyers, too found the work with wood the sort of break they were looking for.

The Coes, originally from Vancouver where Clifford was a millwright before working in apartment real estate, moved to Victoria last August. Now they prowl the beaches for promising wood and Mr. Coe is beginning to work in yellow cedar for the first time.

His carving tools are what would be found in any carpenter's toolbox. He uses a rat-tail file a lot and plenty of sandpaper.

STILL WALNUT

Among woods, his favorite is still black walnut.

"The harder the wood, the cleaner the cut. You don't have to worry about small parts flying off on you."

He works at his carving during the odd moments of the day he can find, between gardening and other chores.

"The big thing is creating something," he says. He is delighted when a carving makes somebody happy and the Coes enjoy the people they meet through Clifford's work.

As to all those faces he has created, some of them rather strange too, he says:

"I don't care which one you look at, you can't tell me there isn't someone who doesn't look like that."

And people want something different too, he has found.

"They say, 'let's take this one, it looks just like Uncle Joe!'"

Somewhere in the Coe's house there is a face to fit just about everybody's uncle.

Organ Recital Planned Friday

Herman Bergink, former organist at St. David-by-the-Sea, Cordova Bay, will give a recital on the church's Victoria-built pipe organ on Friday at 8 p.m.

His program will include Jesu Joy of Man's Desiring, Organ Concerto No. 4 in F Major, Choral with Seven Variations on O Sacred Head and Prelude and Fugue in G Minor.

The church choir, assisted by the boys' choir and the girls' choir, will sing compositions by Bach and Mozart and several Welsh songs.

RCs GATHER AT NANAIMO

Every Roman Catholic parish on Vancouver Island is represented at a meeting of the diocesan pastoral council in Nanaimo this weekend.

The council, consisting of priests, laymen and members of religious orders throughout the diocese, was established last year by Roman Catholic Bishop De Roo.

NEWS OF CITY CHURCHES

Lenten Sermons Featured on Sunday

Churches throughout the Christian world are observing this Sunday as the first in Lent—a six-week period of devotion and self-denial in preparation for Easter.

In St. Matthias' Anglican Church Sunday at 10:30 a.m., the rector, Canon Jack Rogers will give the first in a series of Lenten sermons on Whose Fault Was It Jesus Died?

Sunday evening services during Lent will be held in conjunction with Fairfield United Church.

"We hope that members of the two congregations will get to understand one another better and appreciate the common work they are trying to do in this community," Canon Rogers said.

* * *

Scouts and Cubs will attend the Sunday morning service in Fairfield United Church when Rev. H. W. Kerley begins a series of Lenten sermons on The Parables of Jesus.

There will be a duet by Gwen Cramer and Joan Wells and special anthems by the choir.

A fellowship service will be held in the lower auditorium at 7:30 p.m. The Couples Club will serve refreshments and transportation will be provided. Gospel hymn singing will be led by Ernie Fullerton.

* * *

Prof. Richard Martin, an instructor in philosophy at the University of Victoria, will speak at the Unitarian Church of Victoria, 106 Superior Street, Sunday at 9:30 and 11 a.m.

He will speak on Environmental Manipulation—the fourth in aseries of talks on Man in His Environment: Pawn or Power?

* * *

Prof. William Nicholls, head of the department of religious studies at UBC, will give the Lenten sermon in First United Church Sunday at 11 a.m.

His subject will be Religion in Tomorrow's World.

The service will be conducted by Robin Blencoe of the University of Victoria. The choir, directed by W. H. Gregory, will sing Round About the Starry Throne and Is It Nothing to You?

At the 7 p.m. service, Rev. Marvin Fowler will speak on Man, the Prodigal Son.

* * *

New members will be received at the 11 a.m. Sunday service in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church when Very Rev. J. Lewis McLean, DD, will speak on Hills of Jesus: The Mount of Teaching.

At the evening worship, Rev. Bruce Molloy will give the third in a series of sermons on Meeting Christ.

Marion Campbell will be soloist and there will be a vocal quartet comprising Mrs. J. McGowan, Mrs. J. J. Yost, John Bell and John McPherson. The choir will sing Come, I Pray Thee and Make Me a Channel of Blessing.

* * *

E. W. Abraham will speak on Heart Transplants—God's Transplanting? at a meeting of the British Israel World Federation in the Dominion Hotel Sunday at 3 p.m.

The Establishment: Good or Bad? will be the subject of Rev. Albert King in Metropolitan United Church Sunday at 11 a.m.

The Sanctuary Choir, directed by Frank Tupman, will sing Bless the Lord, O My Soul, and O Holy Spirit, Lord of Grace.

Eric Boothroyd's organ preludes will be Fantasie in C (Franck and Siciliano (Bach).

At the 7 p.m. worship, Rev. Laura Butler will preach on The Arm of Compassion.

* * *

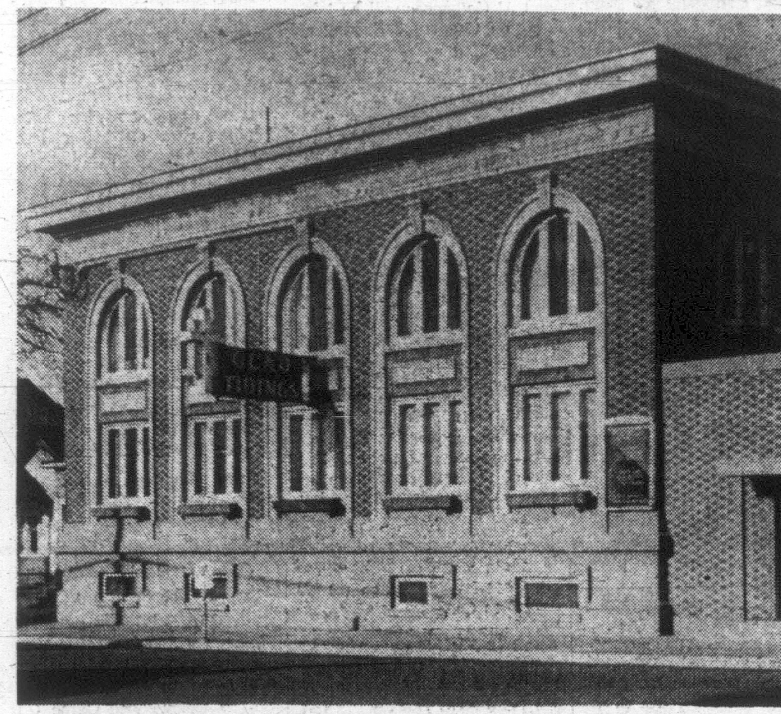
In Victoria Truth Centre Sunday at 11 a.m., Rev. Emma Smiley, DD, will speak on He Who Keepeth Israel. Her evening subject will be Where Do We Begin?

There will be a healing ministry in the church Tuesday at 3 p.m.

* * *

David Adeney, associate general-secretary for the Far East of the International Fellowship of Evangelical Students, will speak in Central Baptist Church at 11 a.m. Sunday and at Quadra Bible Chapel at 7 p.m.

Mr. Adeney served for a number of years as missionary secretary of the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship. He began his career in China before the Second World War with the then China Inland Mission and has served many years in the Far East.



Church Celebrates in Former Victoria Labor Temple

GOSPEL CRUSADE MARKS GLAD TIDINGS '45th'

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Church Editor

Glad Tidings Pentecostal Church—now housed in what used to be Victoria Labor Temple on North Park Street—is celebrating its 45th birthday this weekend.

Starting Sunday at 11 a.m., an anniversary gospel crusade will be conducted by Rev. Lorne Fox and his party of missionary evangelists, musicians and singers, widely known via radio and television.

The two-week crusade will continue from Tuesday to Friday at 7:45 p.m. in the church, and there will be two Sunday rallies in the McPherson Playhouse on March 10 and 17 at 7 p.m.

"We hope people of other church denominations will join in our thanksgiving celebrations," says Pastor Roy Upton of Glad Tidings.

The church came into being on March 1, 1923, when evangelist Dr. Charles S. Price opened a city-wide salvation and divine healing campaign in Victoria.

These meetings were held in Metropolitan Methodist (now United) Church at the corner of Quadra and Pandora.

"The response was so great," says Mr. Upton, present pastor of Glad Tidings, "that the evangelists moved to the old Arena on Fort Street.

CREATED STIR

"This religious revival created a stir in the city and soon spread through the province of B.C. to many parts of Canada. And the weekly prayer meetings in Victoria which followed drew attendances of 1,000 and more."

PASTOR UPTON
. . . recalls past

The first Pentecostal congregation in Victoria was formed under the ministry of H. W. Cooksey and Thomas Sandall. Services were first held in the Sons of Canada Hall. The congregation grew so fast that, a year later, a larger hall was obtained at the corner of Douglas and Pandora.

Continued expansion forced another move to more spacious premises at 1318 Broad Street. The church remained there until 1938 when the Labor Temple on North Park Street was purchased and occupied under the leadership of Rev. E. W. Robinson.

A Bible school, with day and evening classes, was also established at 1023 Farifield Road and conducted by Mr. Cooksey and Mr. Sandall.

In the fall of 1941, the British Columbia Bible Institute began operations in the Glad Tidings Church under Rev. Mr. Robinson.

"During the 10 years this Bible College was resident with us, hundreds of graduates entered full-time Christian service across the nation and overseas," Pastor Upton said.

"In 1951 the B.C. Bible Institute moved to a new site in North Vancouver, and soon after Mr. Robinson resigned the pastorate of Glad Tidings to become resident principal of the college.

RENAMED

"The Bible school was later renamed Western Pentecostal Bible College and it continues to produce trained Gospel workers."

Rev. C. B. Smith, former general superintendent of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada, served as pastor of Glad Tidings from 1952 to 1956, when he was succeeded by Pastor E. W. Hornby.

Under his guidance, the church enlarged its facilities for Sunday school and youth activities and improved both the main auditorium and the church foyer. Several adjacent houses were purchased and demolished to make way for the new entrance hall and improved parking facilities.

One of these, at 852 North Park Street, now houses senior group activities, the Boys' Club and the Sunday School Youth Department.

SUPERINTENDENT

Pastor Hornby resigned his ministry here in 1966 on being elected district superintendent of the B.C. District of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada.

He was succeeded by Pastor Upton from Scarboro, Ont., on Feb. 1, 1967.

"Throughout our years of progress, in Victoria a strong missionary vision has prevailed," Pastor Upton said. "In 1932, a total of $1,400 was given to world missions. In 1967, from all departments of the church, the total missionary offering exceeded $30,000."

Pastor Upton said there are 800 Pentecostal churches across Canada, with a total membership exceeding 150,000.

ANGLICAN FOLLOWS UNITED MINISTER

Baker to Head Council

Canon Grahame Baker, rector of St. John's Anglican Church, Victoria, has been elected president of Greater Victoria Council of Churches in succession to Rev. Dr. Samuel Parsons, of Centennial United.

Dr. Parsons retired last week after two years in office.

Formerly priest, organist and choirmaster at Christ Church Cathedral, Vancouver, Canon Baker was appointed rector of St. John's by Archbishop Harold Sexton in September, 1965.

Born in England, he was educated at St. Boniface, Warminister, and King's College at the University of London.

The 40-year-old clergyman is married to the former Heather Ireland, who was born in Victoria and whose brother is Dr. Charles Ireland of St. Joseph's Hospital.

Music has been and is very much a part of Canon Baker's life. His collection of stereo and hi-fi records contains everything from Calypso to Bach, with the emphasis on choral and organ music.

Canon Baker is an associate of the Royal Canadian College of Organists and owns a harpsichord built in Vancouver. He is much in favor of modernizing church music by introducing the contemporary works of Benjamin Britten, Vaughan Williams, Michael Tippett and John Joubert of South Africa.

He is the fourth rector of St. John's church since it was established in 1860. Canon George Biddle and Rev. F. A. P. Chadwick each stayed 25 years — and Rev. Arthur Jenns was minister there for 40 years.

First rector of the old "iron church," as it used to be called, was Rev. R. J. Dundas from England, who left in 1875.

Rev. John Watson of First Baptist Church was elected first vice-president of Greater Victoria Council of Churches.

Rev. David Metzger of Grace Lutheran was elected secretary and W. H. Spearman treasurer. Chairmen of committees are Canon Hilary Butler, faith and order; Rev. Leighton Streight, worship and witness; Major Robert McKerracher, social action; Bishop Denys Rankilor, public relations; Monsignor Michael O'Connell, inter-faith.

Crusade Near End

Rev. Rowland E. S. Toms will conclude a two-week evangelical crusade in the Apostolic Church, corner of Blanshard and Queens, Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Mr. Toms was minister of the church from 1956 to 1966, since when he has been on a preaching tour of the western provinces and California.

His morning subject will be The Jew and the Scarlet Woman, a commentary on the tense world situation today. In the evening his gospel message will be entitled God's Spittle and Clay.

"We extend a hearty welcome to all Mr. Toms' many friends in this area," says Rev. Alan McLean, present minister of the Apostolic Church.

Born at Redhill, Surrey, England, Mr. Toms came to Canada in 1919. He was for 17 years minister of the Apostolic Church at Saskatoon and broadcast a Sunday radio message for 14 years.

12 Million Lepers Given Care

The Leprosy Mission, formerly known as the Mission to Lepers, caters to come 12,000,000 lepers throughout the world, says Rev. Dr. J. B. Rowell, president of the Victoria auxiliary.

"The mission co-operates with 59 Protestant missionary societies and churches, and owns, manages or aids 139 leprosy centres in 34 countries.

"Doctors, nurses and workers not only seek to bring Christ and spiritual help to the lepers, they dedicated their medical knowledge and experience to their care, cure and rehabilitation."

Dr. Rowell says the Victoria auxiliary meets in Central Baptish Church every second Friday of the month at 2 p.m. At next Friday's meeting, there will be showing of clinical pictures of leprosy by Rev. Arthur Bateson, secretary for the mission in B.C.

Patronal Festival Marked Sunday By St. David's

The Anglican church of St. David-by-the-Sea, Cordova Bay, will celebrate its patronal festival Sunday with a special service at 10:30 a.m. conducted by the Rev. Gordon Walker.

St. David's is named after David, the patron saint of Wales, who was Archbishop of Menevia, South Wales, about the year 544 A.D.

David was the son of a prince of Cardiganshire. He was educated and trained as a monk of the Celtic church by his cousin, St. Cadoc, at the monastery at Llancarfan.

He founded and built a monastery in a rough isolated spot by the sea which became know as Menevia. He established a number of churches and 12 other monasteries owe their beginnings to him.

HORD
. . . life of controversy

Fiery Social Reformer Dies at 50

TORONTO (CP) — Rev. James R. Hord, one of the most vocal social reformers in the United Church of Canada, died Friday of a heart attack.

The 50-year-old minister collapsed while waiting at a bus stop in the north end of the city about eight blocks from his home.

Police at first feared Mr. Hord had been struck by a car, but an autopsy later indicated he died of a coronary thrombosis.

At the time of his death, Mr. Hord was the executive secretary of the United Church's board of evangelism and social services, a position he had held since 1962.

He leaves a wife and three children. His youngest son, James, died in 1962 at a boys' camp.

A native of Ilderton, near London, Ont., Mr. Hord studied at the University of Western Ontario and Emmanuel College, later earning a Master of Sacred Theology degree from the Union Theological Seminary in New York.

HELD WESTERN POSTS

After ordination in 1942, Mr. Hord served several Saskatchewan congregations and for 11 years was minister of Lakeview United Church in Regina.

In 1959, he came to Toronto as minister at Royal York Road United Church where he remained until his appointment to the national office.

Among the targets of his criticism was Canada's immigration policy, which he called restrictive, and the country's early support of United States policy in Vietnam. Mr. Hord also urged adoption of universal medical care and called on farmers, fishermen, Indians and the urban poor to organize politically.

One of the most controversial churchmen in Canada, he once described Prime Minister Lester Pearson as a "puppydog" on Washington's leash with regard to Vietnam.

Mr. Hord supported liberalized abortion laws and abolition of the death penalty and opposed a ban on hate literature on the grounds this might be turned against religious groups or critics of the government.

Christianity Unlimited

For the first Sunday in Lent, Rev. H. R. Whitmore will speak on Christianity Unlimited in Garden City United Church.

The anthem at the 10 a.m. service will be While Standing at the Cross.

For his sermon at the 11:15 a.m. service at Wilkinson Road United, Mr. Whitmore will speak on Forgetting What Lies Behind.

Poor to Get Cheap Drugs

MONTREAL (CP) — Prescriptions worth $22.75 will cost the poor $14.65 at a new co-operative-type drug store opening Monday in east-central Montreal, says store owner Jean Dicaire, former president of the Quebec College of Pharmacists.

The store is called le Centre de prescriptions du Quebec. The poor in distant areas could fill their prescriptions by mail with special envelopes available in churches and social agencies.

Mr. Dicaire told a press conference Friday the centre will sell medication on a cost-price basis plus a pharmacist's professional fee of $1 to welfare recipients and marginal income earners.

THREE YEARS LATER

Rome Still Divided Over Celibacy, Birth

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—Three years have passed since the second Vatican council, but the world's 600,000,000 Roman Catholics still are divided over its recommendations.

Three issues have provoked the most dissension: Birth control, celibacy among priests and the use of vernacular language in the mass.

By their reactions, clergy and laity have been classified into two groups: The conservatives, hesitant to see any major shift in the church's thinking, and the progressives, who want the council's more liberal attitudes continued and expanded.

Many want action soon. Others are prepared to wait patiently for Pope Paul's authoritative decision to clarify the birth control issue—a decision which, they feel, will indicate how the church is evolving.

USING LOCAL LANGUAGE

One of the major changes concerns the saying of mass in the vernacular instead of Latin.

Almost everywhere, mass now is said in the tongue of the area where the church is located.

While this and various changes in the liturgy now are generally accepted, the older generation and the young are divided.

In the Irish Republic, one of the most fervently and traditionally conservative of Roman Catholic countries, the intellectuals are pleased with the progress made. But the great majority of the rural population is reported to be confused by the changes and bewildered by steps which they regard as indications of a weakening of authority within the church.

Almost all Catholics everywhere welcome suggestions to reform of the code of canon law. They believe that if the church is to be brought into line with modern life, the training of priests must be liberalized to ensure they are thoroughly conversant with all its problems and can help to find the answers.

PRIESTS NOT UNITED

Priests themselves are divided. The older ones urge the merits of traditional disciplines while the young ones look for more practical studies.

In the United States, there is widespread unrest. On average, about one priest a day leaves the priesthood, usually to marry.

In Argentina and other South American countries, departures are seriously aggravating the shortage of priests. Here again, celibacy is blamed.

Relaxation of the celibacy vow is favored in some European countries.

For the laity, the main preoccupation is birth control. Catholics are forbidden to practise birth control by artificial means.

The advent of the pill—considered by those who favor it as being in a category apart from previously available methods—together with population explosions in many countries, has put the whole question of birth control in the spotlight.

SOME WAIT PATIENTLY

In some countries, such as Portugal, the laity are content patiently to await the Pope's decision. In others the need for an early authoritative decision clarifying the position is being urged.

In overcrowded Italy, there is a growing tendency to interpret the church's teaching more liberally than in the past. Some confessors are reported to be counselling people to follow their conscience pending a definitive ruling.

Canadian and American nuns, ordered by the Pope to bring themselves up to date and adapt themselves to the modern world, are breaking out of their enclosures, exchanging medieval robes for modern dress and moving into the slums to work among the poor.

Their new spirit of independence has surprised and even angered some elder bishops.

Controversy continues among French Catholics about the use of the vernacular for the mass. But a recent survey carried out by bishops indicated that 88 per cent of French Catholics approved of the change.

MORE GO TO MASS

Priests report a more active participation in the mass since French was introduced.

There is, however, a widespread feeling in both clerical and lay circles that the church would benefit from an early pastoral statement on birth control.

The changes advocated by the Vatican council have started off a genuine religious revival in Spain. But, again, many younger clergy and lay people feel that the pace is not fast enough.

The liturgical changes have been fully implemented. But the government's law on religious liberty disappointed many Spanish Protestants. They consider it is opposed to the spirit of the Vatican council.

Britain's estimated 4,000,000 Roman Catholics mostly favor the church reforms, although many feel that too little is being done.

For many, the Vatican council gave rise to hopes which have not yet been fulfilled. Some show anxiety at what they regard as conservative attitudes and lack of leadership in Rome.

On birth control, British opinion is divided. Some argue that official thinking may not have had time to catch up with the attitude of most Catholic laymen. Others consider a speedy decision ending uncertainty is essential.

Mixed-marriage laws are another big problem requiring early solution, especially in countries with large mixed Protestant-Catholic populations, such as Britain, West Germany and the U.S., or in Poland, where a Catholic may want to marry a Communist.

The Vatican council's readiness for dialogue with the Communist regimes and the Pope's social encyclical have combined to create an improved climate in church-state relations in Eastern Europe.

Clocks Get Last Punch In Vatican

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Employees of the Western world's oldest government administration — priests and laymen—stopped punching the time clock Friday as the Vatican curia went modern.

The curia—central administration of Roman Catholic Church—dates to 1542. Over the centuries it developed into what latter-day progressives denounced as an outdated bastion of conservatism, antiquated procedures and Italian control out of keeping with the needs of the 20th century church.

Pope Paul's drastic reform program for the curia came into official effect Friday.

Pope Pius XII had time clocks installed. They were a modern touch but were considered jarring in a truly modern service staffed by priests and prelates.

Book Lists Four Ways to Beat High Cost of Buying Drugs

OTTAWA (CP) — Pharmocist? The word is misspelled but it conveys a coded message to tell your druggist how much you paid the previous time for the same prescription.

So says The Sugar Coated Pill by William Stephenson, a Toronto freelance science writer who is publishing the 95-cent paperback booklet himself.

The way the code works, says the booklet, is that the letters of the word pharmocist stand for figures from one to 10. The word is purposely misspelled so there aren't two letters a.

If the consumer paid $4.95 for a prescription, the letters RCM may be typed on the label. When it's taken in for a refill, the druggist knows what was charged the last time.

The illustration is part of the book's declared intention of telling the consumer how to "defeat the drug manufacturers' multi-million-dollar-a-year campaign to make you pay and pay."

PROFITEERING SEEN

Chief suggestion is that consumers try to get drugs by generic or chemical name rather than by brand name.

The book includes a cut-out form, which the consumer is urged to present his prescribing doctor authorizing the druggist to dispense "an equivalent drug" for the patient.

Quoting liberally from United States and Canadian government investigations into drug prices, the book aims most of its material at the brand-name drug manufactureres' profits and inflated promotion budgets. Both came under attack from the Canadian and American legislative inquiry bodies.

Information in the booklet includes an English translation of the Latin abbreviations used by doctors in writing their prescriptions.

FOUR STEPS LISTED

The Sugar Coated Pill gives four steps to lower drug bills:

1. Ask the doctor to prescribe by generic name or by both brand name and generic equivalent.
2. Find out if the drug prescribed required a prescription and, if it doesn't, get the name and buy it over the counter.
3. Ask the druggist the cost before he fills the prescription, a dodge which shows him the buyer is price-conscious and may be shopping around for the best buy.
4. Ask the doctor to prescribe several months' supply if the drug is required over an extended period, thus saving the dispensing fee for each refill.

Heart Transplant Moratorium Urged

SAN FRANCISCO (Reuters) — Three prominent doctors attending the annual meeting of the American College of Cardiology called Friday for a three-month worldwide moratorium on heart transplant operations.

The doctors said that time is needed to acquire and analyse data from the six heart transplant operations that have been performed in the last three months in South Africa, the United States and India.

The three are Dr. Simon Dack, associate professor of cardiology at Mount Sinai Hospital, New York City; Dr. George E. Burch, professor of medicine at Tulane University Medical School, New Orleans, and Dr. Eliot Corday, associate professor of clinical medicine at the University of California at Los Angeles.

Although they are leading members of the association, the three said they were not speaking for the organization which has 3,000 members.

New Hotels Blossoming On Small Caribbean Islands

Although, increasingly, the Caribbean is becoming a major holiday spot for Canadians seeking to escape January-February snows, March winds, and April doldrums, a rising number of this country's holiday-minded people are beginning to head in that direction during other months of the year, even in the mid-summer months of July and August.

Commenting on this trend, David Hoffman, general manager of the 261-room Trinidad Hilton, one of the region's larger hotels, said in Port of Spain recently that winter guests this season began arriving in November and that many were from Canada.

"We used to think of winter business beginning in December," he explained.

"Now it is starting in November. This season, we were booked solidly during the last part of November and into December."

The smaller islands are all getting onto the bandwagon and new hotels are springing up everywhere.

In addition, air service to and between the islands is expanding (for Canadians, Air Canada provides direct service to Jamaica, Antigua, Barbados and Trinidad, as well as to the popular islands of Bermuda and the Bahamas outside of the Caribbean region; and BWIA, LIAT and Caribair provide good inter-island service).

The big question for today's tourists, therefore, is how to select an island.

●

Will it be one of the larger ones like Jamaica or Trinidad, one of the popular smaller ones like Tobago, Barbados, or Antigua, or should he head for less-known islands such as St. Kitts, Montserrat, Grenada, or St. Vincent?.

The answer will vary with the tourist and will depend to some extent upon his holiday attitude.

All the islands offer plenty of sunshine, clean air, and relatively unvaried temperatures.

Beaches may be better on some than on others, but generally speaking the beaches are excellent.

It is the fringe benefits that will determine the selection of an island for many holidayers.

If entertainment is your criterion, Jamaica and Trinidad have plenty of nightlife as well as tourist attractions: Such as climbing up Jamaica's famous Dun's River Falls (even the middle-aged can don bathing suits and climb the 600-foot cascading falls) or exploring Trinidad's famous Caroni swamp.

Perhaps you prefer relaxation. In Montserrat, night clubbing is nil. Only a couple of the hotels provide even weekend calypso music.

Or you can try sampling a large island along with a couple of smaller ones.

Island-hopping now equates as a status symbol.

You can take your fill of entertainment in Jamaica, for example, and relax for the rest of your stay on a small island. Any travel agent will work out the details, but here is one suggestion:

Jamaica-Antigua-Montserrat-Saint Marten (you can substitute St. Kitts for Montserrat). This quadrangle provides a wide holiday scope. Return air fare to Antigua (farthest point) allows for a stop-over in Jamaica and the swing around the other islands via daily small planes.

●

Plan for several days in Jamaica where there is everything from night clubbing to tours of spice and sugar plantations.

Kingston, the capital, offers a tropical botanical garden, gay night life, the 1872 Victoria Crafts Market crammed with straw products, and the ruins of an old naval dockyard at Port Royal, site of the pirate city that disappeared under the ocean in the 1692 earthquake.

QUEEN MARY BECOMING U.S. HOTEL

LONG BEACH, Calif.—"The general public is going to see a good deal more of the Queen Mary than her passengers ever did."

This pretty well sums up California's new floating hotel in the words of the man who is, if he can be called that, her last "skipper."

Rear Admiral John J. Fee retired a year early as commander of the Pearl Harbor Naval Shipyard to join the likewise retired great ocean liner which is expected to be a major tourist attraction.

Floating Classrooms Ready to Sail in June

The South Seas Cruise University this summer will again offer opportunities for U.S. credits to graduates and advanced undergraduates aboard the luxury liners SS Mariposa and SS Monterey.

For the fifth year in succession the combined floating study programs and summer cruise vacations have been coordinated by the National Education Association through its Division of Educational Travel, and will be conducted under the auspices of the University of Hawaii.

The sailing of the Mariposa from San Francisco on June 6 offers two courses with a total of five credits. The first, Geography of the Pacific Ocean (S-560) offers three credits, and the second, Geographic Exploration and Mapping in the Pacific (S-570) two credits. Both will be conducted by Abraham Piianaia.

ADULTS, TOO

On the sailing of the Monterey from San Francisco June 30 there will be one course, Oceanography — The Sea (S-501), offering three credits. It will be conducted by Dr. Vernon E. Brock.

Any adult passenger on the cruises may attend the classes for enjoyment.

Mr. Piianaia conducted the popular Geography of the Pacific course for Matson's Cruise University in 1966. Besides being a University of Hawaii lecturer in geography and a state of Hawaii cabinet officer, he is also a licensed shipmaster.

Dr. Brock is Professor of Oceanography at the University of Hawaii, and Director of the Hawaii Institute of Marine Biology.

LOWER FARES

Since the Second World War he has held numerous scholastic and administrative positions in the federal and local governments, and has served on countless advisory groups and biological research teams in the Pacific.

Ports of call for the six-week study cruises are: Bora Bora, Tahiti, Rarotonga, Aukland, Sydney, Noumea, Suva, Niuafo'ou, Pago Pago and Honolulu.

There's an added incentive for students this year — fares for both voyages of the luxury campus at sea are considerably reduced.

Those Were The Days: $1 a Pucker

LIMONEIRA, Calif.—This is the world's largest lemon ranch and the owners of its 1,800 acres sure do wish that the Gold Rush of '49 were with us today.

It was during the Gold Rush that lemon trees were introduced to California. Their high-vitamin fruit prevented scurvy. So miners were happy to pay $1 a lemon.

Southern California, which grows most of America's lemons, has nearly 42,000 acres of these groves. That's not counting the thousands of household trees out in the yard for a year-around supply of lemon drinks.

Lemons grow in pretty much the same places as oranges, although they like the warmer places.

LEMON CAPITAL

Limoneira is laid in the heart of the beautifully lush pastoral valleys of Ventura County on the Pacific Coast north of Los Angeles. The nearby city of Santa Paula calls itself the world's lemon capital.

Lemon trees always fascinate visitors from other states, according to the area's visitors' council.

They grow 10 to 20 feet high and have a foliage somewhat lighter green than orange trees. Leaves, stems, and barks, as well as fruit and blossoms, all have the lemon fragrance.

SQUARE-TRIMMED

In some groves the trees are trimmed square for better production. It looks as though you could walk across their flat tops.

Lemon blossoms will be at their flowering peak in March and April which is also orange blosson time. The valleys of Ventura County will be heavy with the combined fragrance. The perfume blows in through the auto windows. You go to sleep in the citrus country enjoying the heavy fragrance wafting in from the miles of blossoming trees.

Plague in Java

JAKARTA (AP) — Black Plague has broken out in central Java and is threatening to spread into more communities in the densely populated area of Indonesia. A team of World Health Organization doctors has flown to Jakarta to try to check the spread of the plague which has killed at least 90 persons in the last five months.

P&O has the long, lovely way to England. By way of the Orient, Singapore, Ceylon, South Africa, Dakar and Lisbon.
And all the way, you're staying in a splendid English hotel.
An ideal travel combination, don't you agree? Because you'll be sailing to England aboard an English ship—the Iberia—you might as well be in your London hotel already.
But all the while, you've the chance to stop and visit. Honolulu. Yokohama. Kobe. Hong Kong. And all those fascinating places we listed above.
The Iberia will sail from Vancouver on June 28, this year. And she'll take her own sweet time about getting to England, because P&O believes there's more to travel than zipping through places at top speed.
The way we see it, enjoyment is the point. So we wine you and dine you; (what would you think of a British hotel that could whip up 52 different kinds of curry?). We pamper you, with one P&O person on board for every 2 passengers. And you relax, with your favorite sport, hours of warm sun, and good entertainment.
Take the long, lovely way to Europe this summer. Take our Iberia. Prices start at $935 tourist, $1388 first class. (You can fly back, or sail from Southampton aboard Canberra in September to Florida, the Caribbean, Mexico, California and home.) WHICH ONE of the two pictured above is the real Sir Winston Churchill? The other man is actor John Colicos who plays Sir Winston in the controversial play The Soldiers, which is reviewed below. Which one is the real Churchill? Likely you picked the one on the left, and you're right.

'The Soldiers' Recalls Dresden Raid

TORONTO (CP) — Rolf Hochhuth's Soldiers "restores the stage to greatness of purpose," says Herbert Whittaker, drama critic of The Globe and Mail, in his review of the play which opened this week.

Ralph Hicklin, of The Telegram, not as fulsome in his praise, said: "Stripped of pretensions to controversy, Soldiers becomes a rather old-fashioned, over-long despite editing historical thesis play."

Writing in The Star, Nathan Cohen says:

"Anyone who goes to Soldiers expecting a highly inflammatory propaganda dissertation about Churchill will be disappointed. Anyone who hoped for The Deputy all over again will have the same reaction. The Soldiers is entitled to judgement and appreciation in its own right. On that basis, its short-comings duly inventorized, it is a gripping dramatic experience."

CURTAIN CALLS

The capacity audience at the Royal Alexandra Theatre gave the cast of Soldiers three curtain calls, and gave a standing ovation to John Colicos, who played Churchill.

The play is Hochhuth's second about the Second World War. His first, The Deputy, first performed in Berlin in 1963, accused Pope Pius XII of standing by in silent acceptance during the Nazi extermination of 6,000,000 Jews.

Wednesday night's performance of Soldiers was its world premiere in English. It has been performed in Berlin.

The play deals with the fire-bombing of Dresden by the allies in the Second World War.

It also hints Churchill may have been involved in ordering the death of General Wladyslaw Sikorski, premier-in-exile of Poland and commander of Poland's armed forces.

The general died in an air crash at Gibraltar in 1943.

One man paraded outside the theatre before the play, carrying a sign which read: "Outrage to the sense of human justice—Dresden, Aushwitz, Vietnam."

PROTEST KILLING

Cigmund Sherwood, a Toronto real estate dealer, said he was carrying the sign to protest the "killing of people."

The play was produced by Theatre Toronto and directed by Clifford Williams. It will run for three weeks in Toronto.

SONG RECITAL that ranges from early classical through lieder and opera to popular ballads will be presented by well-known tenor David Galbraith, Monday at 8:30 p.m. in McPherson Playhouse. His accompanist will be Grace Timp in the classical section of the program. For the popular and folk numbers he will be accompanied by Jerry Bryant, the Irving Lang Trio and guitarist Ernie Blunt.

THIS WEEK

Guess Who's Going to Win

By AL FORREST

With the big Academy Award show only a month away (April 8) there was a big crowd down at the Royal Theatre this week looking over the number one contender.

Such crowds. They were lined up down to the corner and around.

The flickering sign asks Guess Who's Coming to Dinner? The answer seems to be: Half the city of Victoria.

●

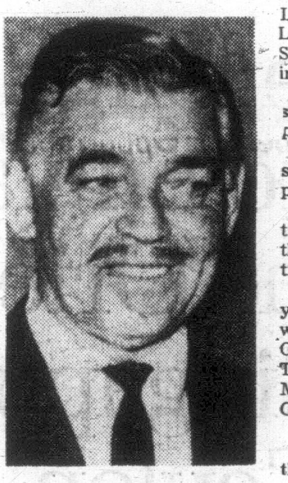
Hockey action this week brightened Vancouver's chances of getting into the National Hockey League.

Vancouver's best hope is to pick up a franchise from some failing team like Oakland, or maybe the Toronto Maple Leafs.

●

Scenes from Gone With The Wind will be shown on TV for the first time in Dear Mr. Gable, an hour-long special on the late movie star at 8 p.m. Tuesday on Channel 5.

Still photos and films will trace Gable's life from the time he was a boy in Cadiz, Ohio, through his five wives—Josephine Dillon, Rita Langham, Carole Lombard, Lady Sylvia Ashley and Kay Spreckles Gable—to his death in 1960 at age 59.



GABLE
. . . and five wives

The title comes from a song Judy Garland sang to his photo in an early movie.

"It's a sentimental study," confesses the show's producer.

"It's not full of sensational disclosures because there wasn't that much sensational about Gable's life."

Perhaps not. But it's not your average American boy who gets to romance Ava Gardner, Grace Kelly, Lana Turner, Claudette Colbert, Marilyn Monroe and Greta Garbo!

●

Trudeau was off and on the TV set this week. Some of the time he was behind the chesterfield and once he crawled under the rug.

Trudeau is a neighborhood kitten who got that name because the first time he was let out of the house he jumped up and straddled a fence.

●

It was interesting that the language used in Guess Who's Coming to Dinner offended so few people while the epithets in Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf offended so many.

They were the same words.

And while Virginia had a restricted tag, Guess Who's Coming is marked as suitable for the whole family.

I wonder if words like bastard and such-like are family entertainment? I particularly wonder about such-like, which came across loud and clear without benefit of any beeps.

There should be some warning that the language is rough even though the show is otherwise splendid.

One other jarring note is Katharine Hepburn's knowledge that she was acting opposite Spencer Tracy for the last time. She has tears in her eyes even when they're not called for in the script.

HEPBURN
. . . the long cry

Tracy, who died three weeks after the last scene was shot, put on a performance more amazing and brilliant than that of his chief Oscar rival, Rod Steiger, and looks like a winner, even without the strong sentimental impetus.

One wished the show could go on forever.

●

The CBC seems to have developed a new philosophy of as-bare-as-they-dare.

Wojeck (Channel 6, Tuesday) was pretty far out. The Names of the Games People Play purported to be a study of football and pep pills.

But the scene shifted quickly to parties and liquor and then the show ended abruptly as though they had just realized they had used up all their time.

Nudity and an aimless plot are not essential ingredients in the living room. I'll be very surprised if the show is not protested on both counts.

TIPS FOR HOME GARDENERS

Why Coddle Your Camellias?

By JACK BEASTALL

The camellia (pronounced cam-el'-le-a), long considered a tender greenhouse shrub, is now becoming increasingly popular as an outdoor plant in northern gardens, but its culture is shrouded in a lot of fallacies and very few facts.

Jack

The plant itself is perfectly hardy in this climate, with exceptional beauty all through the year and a bonus of attractive flowers.

It is an evergreen shrub, and like all evergreens it sheds about one third of its foliage every year, so that a dying or falling leaf is not always an indication of trouble.

The leaves range in shape from long, narrow and pointed, to comparitively wide, short and almost square on the ends, and the color varies from light green to a rich dark black-green. Pale leaves do not signify a sick plant.

There are several types of camellias and hundreds of hybrids, some easier to grow than others. The blood-line determines whether or not a variety can be grown in a given climate; this information can be obtained from any camellia book in the public library or by joining a camellia society.

Easily Damaged

There are early, mid-season and late flowering varieties, and while the plants are hardy to frosts the flower buds are easily damaged once they become active.

The gardener who lives in an area where frosts are common into May will rarely flower an early blooming variety successfully no matter how much it is coddled.

Since very few gardeners have the facilities for growing a six-inch rooted cutting into a bushy shrub, a lot of disappointments will be avoided by starting with a two- to four-foot established plant.

Once a camellia is planted it will provide beauty for a lifetime, therefore its simple basic needs are worth careful attention.

When good drainage, correct soil mixture, adequate light and space are provided, ordinary care in watering and fertilizing will assure trouble-free growth.

The planting and transplanting period is from late September through March for most areas. With a little knowledge and care, a plant can be moved within a garden at any time excepting in very hot or very cold periods.

Whether the plant should go into sun or shade depends on climatic conditions and the variety being grown. In areas with cool summers a sunny position will ensure more flowers, bushier growth, and less trouble from diseases and pests.

Out of Wind

A camellia should never be planted against a concrete wall that will deprive it of much needed soil moisture, nor in a position having reflected heat from a light colored wall or solid fence. Shelter from wind is also necessary.

No camellia will survive a wet soil during winter. Drainage is most important and must be provided by one means or another.

Soil acidity determines the health and beauty of a camellia, and they do best when the soil tests pH 5 to 6. Acidity can be increased by adding the correct amount of aluminum sulphate or sulphur, the latter being very slow to change the soil reaction therefore difficult for the amateur to use.

The planting hole should be large enough to allow 12 inches of "camellia type soil" to be filled in around the rootball, and deep enough for eight inches of soil and four inches of gravel beneath. An auger hole at the bottom, eighteen inches deep, filled with small stones is drainage insurance.

A good "camellia type soil" consists of 2 parts garden soil, 1 part humus, leafmold or well moistened peat moss, and 1 part coarse sharp sand.

Not Too Deep

Camellias are surface rooting, and many troubles are the result of planting too deeply. The top of the rootball of a wrapped plant, or the top of the soil on a container grown plant should be exactly level with the surrounding soil.

No depth of soil should ever be put over the rootball, and the soil beneath the ball must be firmed sufficiently to prevent the plant from sinking.

Moist soil conditions at all times are essential. Poor growth, falling flower buds, and crisping leaves, all indicate root damage due to drying out at some previous period.

A thorough soaking of the root area once a week, and frequent syringing of foliage with clear water during dry hot weather, will keep the plants in good condition.

Fertilizer is needed for good balanced growth, and the setting and development of the flower buds. Acid-type fertilizer is used (rhodo-azalea mix) at the rate of one cupful to a 5-foot specimen, evenly distributed in a circle around the plant.

Until May 15

Fertilizer should be applied just after flowering to build up the strength of the plant and encourage bud formation, but never later than May 15 in this area.

After the spring feeding, a mulch of well moistened peat moss about 2 inches deep will keep the soil surface cool and moist. Mulches must be loose to permit air to reach the roots and should never accumulate to more than 2 inches.

Continual fussing over a camellia, coddling and wrapping it in winter, and administering doses of this, that and the other, are the causes of sickly plants that fail to give the results the gardener had hoped for when the plant was bought.

WEEK'S WORK

Prune late summer blooming shrubs if not already done (list given last week).

Plant deciduous flowering shrubs and trees, fruit trees and roses, coniferous and broadleaved evergreens.

Sow seed of half hardy annuals in sunroom or greenhouse; schizanthus, asters, nemesia, white alyssum and annual dianthuses.

Prick out seedlings as soon as they can be handled. Keep young seedlings out of full sunshine for two or three days after pricking out.

Ventilate greenhouse or sunroom on every possible occasion while young plants are growing.

Sow seed of annual herbs indoors—summer savory, marjoram, dill, parsley.

Sow leek seed indoors for later transplanting to deep rich soil of garden.

Sow seed of strawberry Baron Solemacher for small fruits of fine flavor the first year.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

Q. Should clematis be pruned? If so, when? T. T. P., Esquimalt.

A. Yes, the small flowered montana group can have some of the old wood cut out now, and should be more drastically pruned every third year after flowering.

Early blooming large-flowered hybrids have long growths shortened immediately after flowering.

Late blooming hybrids are cut back quite drastically now—even to four feet from ground to get new growths flowering at low levels.

Bush types like C. rehderiana are pruned severely in early spring. C. macropetala, shorten all growths after flowering in May; and C. recta, herbaceous perennial clematis, cut to ground each spring.

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, MARCH 2, 1968—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

This our home province has drawn a good many slurs and scoldings over its official attitude toward constitutional change, and though some of them are no doubt deserved, I for one am inclined to resent the toplofty tone in which they are uttered.

Here, for instance, is a letter received last week from a friend in Toronto, who wants to know "what on earth you people are up to out there?" He encloses a clipping of a wire-service story on last month's constitutional conference.

What we're doing is living our lives as best we can, keeping a sometimes-puzzled eye on the federal chop and change, and generally conducting ourselves in routine Canadian fashion.

Despite our premier's rather curious attitude toward Ottawa, I don't think enough of us to crowd one of our once-again-operative dogwood ferries would even remotely consider opting out of Confederation.

Also, I find myself irked by the murky ignorance of the Canada beyond Lakehead that prompts the guy who wrote me to enclose a news story that came in word for word over our own efficient teletypes.

Just where and what does he think British Columbia is . . . an outpost cut off from modern communications?

Eventually, I hope, the gap in understanding that exists and has always existed between East and Far West will be very much narrower than it is today. But at our closest, I suspect that we will still retain certain differences imposed by our history and our environment.

★

Goegraphically, there is the fact of the mountains, the same mighty cordillera that makes the Californian an American of a different sort than the Bostonian or the New Yorker.

In terms of travel, the mountains no longer separate us so desperately as once they did from the East. It's an easy air-flip from the coast to Toronto or Montreal.

But whether as native or adopted British Columbians, we do live on the opposite side of the continental spine, in a land which a Canadian general just after Pearl Harbor saw as an expendable buffer stop between his Canada and the our then enemy.

We don't even do much holidaying in each other's preserves. How many California cars did you see last summer, and how many with Ontario, Quebec, or Maritime plates?

Another difference lies in British Columbia beginnings, and any Easterner who would begin to understand us should ponder this fact.

Our first-comers, and virtually all our subsequent population until a railway link with the East was completed in 1886, arrived by sea.

Had settlement been a leisurely extension from Upper and Lower Canada, the story might be different. But the East was, for a long time in our growing, remote almost as a distant star. Here in Victoria we were closer by far to the San Francisco through which B.C.'s first great population surge was funneled than we were to Toronto.

These newcomers brought many tongues with them, but no dual language problem.

To the East, we have always been a vague, rather unreal land.

"B.C.?" I can remember a denizen of the Canadian heartland asking me. "That's somewhere out past Saskatchewan, isn't it?"

An extreme case: but it mirrors the polite vagueness with which Easterners acknowledge the existence of this province. We have a tippling parrot that figured in a will, comical hairy giants in our hills, and Mr. Bennett.

I cannot in honesty deny that we are occasionally out of step with the rest of Canada. But the West is much more than an appendage loosely attached to the Eastern civilization, and the frequent suspicion that we are so regarded does nothing to help strengthen our accord.

I do not offer this explanation as an excuse for insularism, but to point out that understanding between East and West is a two-way street.

'YOU SHOULD SEE IT AFTER I WASH IT!'

It's nothing new for Tophill Orsino to be crowned best-in-show but such honors still bring a grin of satisfaction to the Miniature Poodle's pixie face. Owned by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Osborne of Vancouver, Orsino has been best-in-show 48 times and has earned championship status in England, the U.S., Bermuda and Canada. He did it again Friday, topping close to 300 dogs in the Victoria City Kennel Club show at Sanscha Hall in Sidney. For dog show results, see Page 37. (Strickland Photo)

Pilot 'Deadsticks' Into Highway Traffic

For Campbell River pilot Jim Higginson it was just one thing after another Friday night.

The weather forecast was good when he and passenger Gordon Benner of Nanaimo left Campbell River on their way to Nanaimo and Anacortes.

But clouds and fog crept up behind the Piper PA-12 Super Cruiser and for two hours the little plane circled near Courtenay while the pilot tried to spot where he was.

"It was sort of nerve-wracking," Higginson, 22, said today. "They were pretty long hours."

With his fuel almost gone he sent out a "mayday" call and Comox airbase tried to guide him in.

●

"That's when my radio started acting up, of all things."

The pilot could transmit but he couldn't hear through the static.

Then he had the brightly-lit airbase in sight and was headed that way when the plane's gas ran out, the engine coughed and died.

"The highway was right below me but there were cars coming my way."

So he banked the plane around and glided to a "deadstick" landing ahead of the traffic.

There was no damage and no one was hurt but Higginson did admit his nerves were a bit worn by then.

●

It proved a longer night still while the pilot's brother drove to join him from Port Alberni, he went to the RCAF station to file a report and then had to chase around for a supply of fuel.

Higginson got airborne this morning with RCMP officers holding back traffic at one end of his makeshift runway and a firetruck at the other.

But his passenger completed the journey to Nanaimo by car.

Higginson is an engineer with MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. in Campbell River but is moving to the U.S. where he hopes to become a commercial airline pilot.

Ask The Times

Q. Which is Canada's national sport, lacrosse or hockey? D.T.

A. The matter has never been resolved. Reports in Hansard, the record of Parliament, indicate that a bill introduced by R. W. Prittie, member for Burnaby-Richmond, disappeared after second reading June 21, 1965. On Jan. 16, 1967, Mr. Prittie directed a question to Prime Minister Lester Pearson, asking if the government had any intention of bringing in a centennial-year bill to decide the national sport. Mr. Pearson replied: "I think we should have a national summer game and a national winter game." And that appears to be the last mention of the topic.

Ottawa Asked To Help East Indians

Victoria presbytery of the United Church of Canada has called on the federal government to ease restrictions on the immigration of East Indians from Kenya to Canada.

Presbytery passed a resolution to this effect after discussing the plight of East Indians living in Kenya who are being replaced in business and industry by Kenyans under the government's new nationalistic policies.

Many East Indians have sought refuge in Britain, but entry is now restricted under the new Commonwealth Immigration Act, which became law Friday.

United Church clergymen attending a special meeting of the Victoria presbytery agreed unanimously the Canadian government should assist East Indians in Kenya by admitting them to Canada.

(The new British Immigration Act had a stormy passage through both Houses of Parliament in London.)

OVERHEAD LINES DEAD

Gorge Parkway Wiring Now Fully Underground

The underground wiring project on the Gorge parkway has reached its final stages.

Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis said installations are almost complete between Gorgeview and Admirals — a distance of almost one mile.

Overhead wires were de-energized and old wooden poles will be coming down "shortly," said the reeve. They are being replaced by modern metal poles bearing mercury vapor lamps.

The project cost about $105,000 and was paid for by government funds under the Capital Improvement District Commission.

New Car Park Opens Tuesday

The city's newest parking lot will open Tuesday.

The lot, with an 84-car capacity, will open on the north side of Johnson Street, between Douglas and Blanshard.

City traffic engineer David Campbell said Friday work had progressed faster than expected and the lot will open a month ahead of schedule.

Esquimalt Water Hopes Down the Drain

Reeve Misses His Big Chance

Esquimalt missed its big chance to get into the water distribution business Friday afternoon.

It was only a small matter financially, but with Victoria the lone bidder for the right to serve the old View Royal Panhandle with domestic water it was no trouble for the Greater Victoria Water District Board to arrive at a decision.

Panhandle residents recently voted in favor of becoming part of the municipality of Esquimalt.

UP FOR GRABS

As a result the water district, by law, can no longer be responsible for the sale of domestic water to residents.

The small part of the over-all system was put up for the grabs Friday with the bidding open to Victoria (which retails water to Esquimalt) or Esquimalt council.

The board agreed to transfer the distribution system to Victoria after Mayor Hugh Stephen had asked if any other municipality had asked for the right to provide the service.

REEVE ABSENT

It has long been a bone of contention that Esquimalt alone among the four core municipalities of Oak Bay, Saanich, Victoria and Esquimalt makes no profit from retail water sales.

Reeve Ray Bryant was absent from the meeting.

In a report to the board prior to the vote chief water commissioner Ron Upward pointed out the change in administration in the Panhandle prevented the district from continuing to supply water.

"So the district must transfer the water distribution system in this area either to the city of Victoria or the municipality of Esquimalt," Mr. Upward stated in a written report.

Total cost of transfer, which Victoria will now pay to the district, is $3,711.

The area involved lies between Craigflower Road and the Gorge waters, Admirals Road and Shirley Road.

Police Action To End Sit-In At Legislature

By PETE LOUDON

A proposed "sit-in" at the Legislative Buildings by a group of mothers on welfare would be met by force, Public Works Minister W. N. Chant said today.

"I am not making any threats, but we would call on the police to remove them and lay charges if necessary," he said.

The minister, who represents Victoria constituency, was commenting following the announced decision of the Victoria Low Income Group to protest welfare rates, in the B.C. House.

At a Friday meeting, the group, mostly deserted wives and mothers, said they would quietly converge on the legislative chambers and demand consideration of their situation.

They said they would refuse to leave until their demands are met.

"We'll sit there all night and if we're ejected, then we'll sit in the corridors," one member was quoted as stating.

"We're prepared if necessary, to go to jail to get a decent life for our children."

Mr. Chant said any attempt by the women to remain in the buildings beyond the hours when they are open to the public would constitute trespass.

He said the city police would be asked to evict them and charges would be laid "if they acted in a manner contrary to the welfare of the public."

Mr. Chant added, "There is no great problem about it. The law is quite simple."

Mr. Chant's department has charge of construction, maintenance and operation of all provincial government buildings.

W. N. CHANT
. . . 'no threat, but'

'. . . The Mothers Are Desperate'

Reg Clarkson, executive secretary to the organized welfare family group, said he had not favored a "sit-in" but held that picketing would be useful.

"But the mothers are so desperate, they are determined to bring their case home."

He said the women's reaction to Mr. Chant's statement concerning eviction and charges is "That's okay with us. We'll stand all night on the steps if we have to."

The group will meet at First United Church hall Tuesday at 8 p.m. to plan the demonstration. MLAs are being invited.

Tentative date for the demonstration is March 15, said Mr. Clarkson.

He said the welfare mothers main aim is establishment by the government of an independent board of arbitration to review present welfare rates.

"The failure of the administration to even consult outside experts on the minimum needs of these people is one of the most damning commentaries.

"Welfare Minister Campbell doesn't have on his staff one technical employee trained to determine the income level required for normal, healthy living."

Mrs. Donna Langstaff, president of the group of angry mothers said government nutritionist in the health department has set $30.14 as the minimum amount needed to feed a boy of 13 for a month.

MRS. DONNA LANGSTAFF
. . . 'all been active'

Teen-Agers Robbed of Opportunities

"We get $25 a month for each child," she added.

Mr. Clarkson, who is a professional welfare worker, said a study in Los Angeles showed that teen-age welfare cases facing similar lacks don't progress as they should in school and often are drop-outs. Inadequate rates rob them of academic opportunities, he said.

The Friday meeting considered, then shelved plans to picket churches which, it was felt, have failed to meet their Christian responsibility toward those on welfare. Another proposal which was set aside would have seen members picketing homes of persons responsible for setting rates.

Mr. Clarkson said the meeting showed how desperate the welfare mothers have become and how hard is the task of trying to educate the public to the situation.

"How can we show people how the poor are forced to live?" he asked.

Mrs. Langstaff said some members had feared that demonstrations might cost members of the group the little they now receive. But she felt the opposite was true.

"We've all been active and we've made demands and been listened to and received consideration."

'NORMAL SATURDAY' ON FERRIES

B.C. Ferries reported a "normal Saturday" this morning, with no overloads.

Salt Spring Island ferry was busy, but once again no one was left behind on any trip.

When the 20-ship fleet resumed operations Friday after a 13-day strike, traffic was so heavy that 17 cars and 14 trucks were left behind on the first mainland sailing.

WARMER, SUNNIER, DRIER

Nothing Normal About February

All that sun in the past few weeks hasn't been fooling you — February was warmer, drier, sunnier and less windy than normal.

The weatherman's beneficial hindsight also tells us the mean temperature for the month was 4.4 degrees above normal, at 45.8 degrees.

And the 27th of the month saw a record 61.2. The highest previous temperature was 60.1 on Feb. 8 of 1943.

The minimum of 33.9 degrees on the 16th was 6.7 above normal for the month.

No snow fell, making the recorded snowfall 2.3 inches less than usual and the rainfall was .29 inches less than the normal rate at 2.70 inches.

And we had almost 2½ days more sun than expected — 64.6 hours above normal at 161.3 hours.

(SUN)DAY PROMISED FOR A LITTLE WHILE

Victoria should see some sun by Sunday morning.

A clearing trend this afternoon and evening will get rid of the cloud cover—but only long enough to get off to church or out in the boat.

For another disturbance predicted by weatherman Allan McQuarrie will bring clouds over the area again late Sunday.

Some showers are expected Sunday night and Monday.

Temperatures will remain mild—43 tonight and 52 Sunday—and winds will be light, about 15 mph from the southeast.

THIS IS A TYPICAL SCHOOL DROP-OUT

'Frank, Happy-Go-Lucky, Non-Conforming'

By DON VIPOND

What sort of people are school drop-outs?

An American educator told local guidance teachers here Friday that research shows youngsters who leave school early are not necessarily short on brains.

Conan S. Edwards, director of secondary education in Madison, Wisconsin, was one of 59 speakers in the Professional Day program presented by Greater Victoria's 1,200 teachers.

He told a workshop at Oak Bay senior secondary school that a University of Wisconsin survey of 21,000 drop-outs showed 60 per cent had IQs average or above.

"So the feeling the drop-out is of poor ability is over-simplified at least," he said.

Research at the University of Pennsylvania which compared a group of drop-outs with a group of youngsters who stayed in school showed there was no major difference in such things as ego, ability to meet people or parents' occupations.

Studies show the drop-out tends towards a frank, happy-go-lucky nature, a person who is deliberately non-conforming but definitely not disinterested.

Across the U.S. the drop-out rate averages 30 per cent, said Mr. Edwards. A variety of supplementary training programs at Madison have cut the rate there to 2½ per cent.

Guidance, said the speaker, means any and all efforts to help the youngster find himself.

Students are the product of their heritage and of their environment and teacher councillors should concentrate on environment.

Children at school face pressures from parents to do well, from the economy to earn the accepted qualifications for a job and from society on a number of revolutionary issues, he said.

If teachers crush a student's ego, he loses his self-possession and in turn can become a loss to society.

Mr. Edwards and several participants were unanimous in condemning parents' misguided efforts in directing many unsuited children into the academic education stream.

Research shows four children out of five are not going to enter a profession, said Mr. Edwards.

Yet many children are pushed down the wrong academic path for them because their parents are convinced of social standing value.

The new look in Liberty dresses . . .

Shopping at Wilson's may not be too elegant at the moment . . . what with all the hammering that's going on, and the sales ladies garbed in slacks . . . but it sure it a lot of fun! . . . What's more, under those transparent plastic sheets covering the clothes racks, you'll find a lot of perfectly beautiful new dresses . . . because renovations, or no renovations, the new spring clothes continue to arrive . . . and if you're smart, you'll start looking at them now! . . . This week we were very much impressed with the Liberty silk dresses . . . Colors are gorgeous, and the patterns represent a new look for Liberty . . . generally larger, with more striking color blends . . . To set these off, styles are quite simple . . . Many have an up-dated shirtwaist look with long sleeves gathered to a cuff . . . flattering collars . . . One very new style is a dress with jacket fastening at the side . . . sleeveless, slightly A-line dress highlighted with a braided effect around the neck . . . There's a pretty short-sleeved dress with cut-outs around the neck and sleeves . . . lovely shades of cyclamen, gold and green . . . We noticed a smart green and brown paisley shirtwaist, in size 18, which we imagine would do nice things for the larger figure . . . Whatever else you may be planning for spring, you'll certainly want a fresh new print . . . so do see these attractive Liberty silks at . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177.

Vests are the new way of pulling a blouse and skirt together for a fresh spring look.

New shipment of period oak furniture . . .

We admit it isn't everybody's cup of tea . . . but if you're entranced with the romantic, old-world look of dark, rich, hand-carved oak furniture . . . the sort of furniture that fills many a stately home and castle in Britain . . . you'll want to run . . . not walk . . . to see Home Furniture's new shipment of Tudor oak pieces from England . . . These have been on order since last summer and have just arrived . . . and believe us, they're really special! . . . Fine reproductions of old Tudor oak pieces . . . lovingly made, carved by hand, looking as if they'd been lived-with and loved for generations . . . We saw some beautiful carved cabinets, in various sizes . . . A handsome large desk whose drawers and filing cabinet are hidden behind carved, panelled doors . . . Glazed door bookcases . . . Rug chests, corner cabinets, wine cabinets, fender tables, flap tables, a monk end nest of tables . . . Swivel top tables and "coffin stools" which are really delightful end tables . . . There's a Welsh dresser, wheelback Windsor chairs (lovely in a wood-panelled dining room) . . . A tea trolley that doesn't look in the least like an ordinary tea wagon but rather like a little carved cabinet . . . A lovely drop-leaf desk with cupboard underneath . . . There was a handsome home bar, too, but it's just been sold . . . Do make a point of seeing this lovely furniture in the Gallery at . . . Home Furniture Company, 825 Fort St., 382-5138.

A sheer, dark-stockinged leg can be fabulous with a white or light colored shoe.

New Gordi outfits at M & E . . .

One of the most dashing coats we've seen in many a day was in Madam and Eve's window last Monday . . . They call it their "Captain Cook" coat . . . and indeed it is reminiscent of the elegant garb worn by Royal Navy officers way back when . . . It's a double-breasted navy wool with gauntlet cuffs, white mother-of-pearl buttons, skirt with back pleats which give a bit of a flare, and white silk scarf covered all over with lace ruffles. Made by Gordi, it's one-of-a-kind, size 11 . . . There's a smart, somewhat similar white coat but minus the scarf and the cuffs, also a small-fitting 11 . . . M & E have a lot of new Gordi coats and suits . . . like the A-line sleeveless sheath with double-breasted jacket, welt seam detailing . . . It's all wool, and comes in lilac, size 9 . . . turquoise, 5 . . . navy, 7 . . . A 2-piece suit with wide horizontal stripes has a skirt gathered in the back, and two pleats forming a front panel . . . Pale blue and white, beige and cream, or yellow and cream . . . each in a different size . . . A very feminine suit in pale blue or pink has a stand-up collar and off-centre closing . . . We thought this would make an especially nice going-away suit for a spring bride . . . There's also a very swish grey flannel coat which zips right up the front, gathered in the back . . . This could very well be worn by itself as a coat dress . . . Sizes 7 and 11 . . . Madam and Eve Shop, Trounce Alley, 383-7177.

Easter in Morocco . . .

How about it? Two glorious weeks over the Easter season at the Club Mediterranee in Morocco . . . one of the most exotic and romantic spots on earth! . . . Paulin's tell us they are taking bookings now for the departure by air from Vancouver on April 4th . . . arriving back April 21st . . . with a whole day and night in exciting Paris en route . . . afternoon and overnight in Paris again on the return trip . . . And the cost of all this? Just $668 Can. funds! . . . When you arrive at the Club Mediterranee at Agadir you've two whole weeks for a do-as-you-like, when-you-like vacation . . . You'll live in a white stone terraced bungalow in the club village which provides all the amenities of a first-class hotel . . . complete with restaurant, night club, bar, Moroccan cafe, swimming pool and everything else you could wish for . . . There are all kinds of sports in which you may participate . . . and it's all free! . . . Cuisine is out of this world (and we can vouch for this because we recently spent three weeks at the Club Mediterranee in Tahiti, which has the same happy set-up) . . . You can play all day, and dance the night away . . . or just relax in the golden sunshine of Morocco . . . Swim in the sea (miles of wide, sandy, gently-sloping beach) . . . Take day trips into the Sahara . . . or a 3-day jaunt to Marrakesh for a small extra cost . . . Doesn't it sound like a wonderful way to spend Easter? . . . A dairy supermarket at your door . . .

We just can't wait to tell you about Northwestern Creamery's newest product, Fancy Blend Soft Margarine . . . It has the smoothest, easiest-to-spread texture we've ever seen, and as to flavor . . . Mmmm! As delicate and tasty as the finest butter! . . . And delivered fresh to your doorstep by your Northwestern milkman, along with all the other good dairy products he carries in his big, gleaming refrigerated truck . . . which we consider a veritable dairy supermarket on wheels! . . . Maybe you've discovered for yourself what a convenience as well as a saving in time and money this home delivery is . . . Not to mention how much fresher and tastier everything is when it's rushed right from the dairy to you . . . But if you haven't, then take our advice and phone Northwestern to start delivering to your house . . . Not only can you get fresh, hometown milk, but all sorts of other products like cottage cheese, sour cream, pure orange and apple juice, orange drink, chocolate milk, butter, whipping cream . . . the freshest eggs you've ever tasted unless you happen to own your own hens . . . and, of course, that delicious margarine we've just told you about . . . And during this month of March, treat your family often to Velvet ice cream's one-month-a-year feature flavor . . . Mint Chocolate Chip . . . every bit as yummy as it sounds! . . . Northwestern Creamery Ltd., 1015 Yates St., 383-7147.

New spring fabrics at Saba's . . .

For all you women who sew . . . (your name is legion . . . and oh, how we envy you!) . . . Saba's fabric department is a veritable treasure-trove . . . Not only is it full of exciting new fabrics of all kinds but it offers a wealth of inspiration for the creation of lovely spring wardrobes which will be utterly and exclusively YOURS . . . In our periodic browsing this week we drooled over the new Boussac cottons from France . . . and the "mini-care" Mettler Swiss cottons . . . which require practically no ironing . . . Colors and designs are absolutely beautiful in these very fine, silky-textured cottons . . . so perfect for dresses or blouses or a multitude of other purposes . . . Actually they come in several different textures, and are priced from $3.50 to $9 a yard . . . Some lovely imported linens, too, in various weights and running the gamut of popular colors . . . One group has a $5 price tag . . . another is still less expensive . . . Some very choice white cotton brocades . . . hand washable . . . would be just the thing for graduation, confirmation or lodge dresses . . . They range in price from $5 for a 36" yard . . . Other nice cotton brocades are just $3 . . . For the popular coat and dress ensembles, you might choose from Saba's new spring mix-and-match woollens . . . plain and patterned . . . some in tweedy effects . . . and all perfectly color-coordinated . . . Saba Bros. Try Paisley next time . . .

We just wish we had a dime for all the people to whom we've recommended Paisley Cleaners and who are now completely satisfied customers . . . it would almost pay for a new spring outfit (which, naturally, we'd entrust to Paisley when it came time for cleaning!) . . . Seriously though, we think Paisley's are the greatest . . . for everything from suits and coats and dresses . . . to drapes and slip covers and everything else cleanable . . . not to mention really fragile things we'd be afraid to send anywhere else! . . . (Not long ago we watched them treat a very old and yellowed-with-time wedding gown . . . which emerged fresh and white and lovely for a young bride to wear on her Day) . . . Just recently Paisley's acquired some new equipment which enables them to do a better job than ever . . . as well as to get things out faster than ever . . . They're machines that vacuum, press and shape suits and dresses in the most remarkable way . . . in a third of the time formerly required . . . but this does not prevent Paisley from putting on the finishing touches by hand . . . It just means they can do more and better work and get your clothes back to you in jig time! . . . The warm sunshine of the past few days has drawn all manner of sunworshippers to Bastion Square.

Damaske

Older people who find entertainment watching the people pass, a few young students poring over books, office workers with their lunch in paper bags and some early tourists.

The intriguing plethora of items seen through the glass walls drew me into the Bastion Boutique.

Bonita Jackson, a talented Victoria designer, is happy in her wee shop but admits she is doing things backwards.

The original meaning of the French Boutique is a small shop at ground-floor level which is really an outlet for small items for customers of the Grand Salon which is located above.

Mrs. Jackson hopes eventually to design in the Grand Salon manner for women who appreciate fine quality fabrics and unique design. An inherent feeling for the beauty of the right costume for today's woman is quite obvious as one talks with Bonita Jackson. Mrs. Jackson took her training in pattern drafting and draping at the Vancouver School of Design.

Her first position was with Marjorie Hamilton in Vancouver where she had the joy of creating beautiful lingerie and at-home wear.

Her marriage to Kenneth Jackson brought her back to Victoria where the beautiful hand-loomed fabrics of Island Weavers tempted her to accept employment there.

With the advent of Bastion Square Bonita Jackson felt the urge to have her own shop in this area which had many romantic family memories.

Her great-grandfather, Captain William Spring, and her grandfather, Captain Charles Spring, worked in the sealing business and their ships tied up regularly just below Bastion Square. Her mother, the former Aileen Spring, and her father Russell Gilchrist, worked just a few steps from the present site of Bastion Boutique, and were married after a typical office romance.

If you feel from this that Bonita Jackson is a bit of a romantic . . . you are right, and this penchant for romance shows in her designs.

The simple, inexpensive little felts, the exquisite Spanish inspired lace blouses, the femine gowns and peignoirs and all the small fun items which Bonita designs seem to say there is beauty and romance in femininity.

Mrs. Jackson would like to take further training if ever the time and opportunity present themselves.

Meantime the public library is often her source of information and inspiration. If she wishes to know how Laplanders apply fur to a jacket she studies script and pictures until she feels, with complete certainty, that she knows how it is done.

Because of Bonita Jackson's warm personality and her great knowledge of good style, Bastion Boutique is a pleasant place to visit.

One has the conviction that someday she will have that Grand Salon upstairs and be able to present a small, beautifully designed collection twice yearly.

Holidays and Visitors Add Zest To Life on Island's West Coast

Visitors, trips and holidays add spice to life on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Mrs. Jack MacLeod, who now lives at Youbou and is a former Tofino resident, is currently in Tofino to visit her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. MacLeod. The visitor's father, the late George Grice, was one of Tofino's early settlers. He first came to the west coast as an oceanographer with the federal government.

Three Long Beach residents have returned to their homes after lengthy holidays in Victoria. They are Mrs. Neal Buckle, Mrs. Gordon Greene and Mrs. Margaret Whittington.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Knight have returned to Tofino after spending several weeks in southern California and Mexico. Also home in Tofino is Mrs. Harold Sloman, who spent several months in Victoria with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. T. Solloway.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Davies of Campbell River are in Tofino to spend a holiday with Mrs. Davies' parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Knott.

Mr. and Mrs. Anton Hanson have returned to Tofino after a stay of several months in Port Alberni with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Trelvik.

While in Port Alberni, Mr. Hanson celebrated his 90th birthday. He arrived in Tofino in the late 1980s, a younger brother, John arriving a few years later. In 1913 both brothers returned to Norway. They married at a double ceremony in Tronjheim Cathedral that year and returned with their brides to Tofino.

Both brothers worked for the Tofino lifeboat for years during the winter and spent the summers either at the fish hatchery or on their fish boat.

Heads Sketch Club

Mrs. W. S. Emmerton was elected president when the Victoria Sketch Club met for its annual meeting in the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

Serving with her will be: Vice-president, Miss S. Gibson; secretary, Mrs. A. W. R. Ashley, and treasurer, J. Dicks.

Miss H. Vincent Foster retired as president after seven years in that office. She reported on the past year's activities, saying that members had exhibited pictures in various art shows. The group had also held a Centennial exhibition at The Bay.

Mrs. J. Luchinsky was one of the prize winners at the Saanich exhibtion. The work of many members had been sent on tour with Centennial shows across Canada.

An assignment had been set each month. As many as 18 members had attended portrait group monthly meetings during the winter. There were 22 members at the annual meeting.

The Skin

Many of the world's most beautiful women attribute the clear, fine loveliness of their complexions to the toning qualities of a special lemon cleanser that floats away all beauty-robbing impurities without depriving the skin of its natural beauty. The complexion immediately reflects the rewarding benefits as the cleanser is smoothed over the skin. Dry, ageing lines are eased and the skin becomes clear and softly endowed with a radiant bloom. Jelvyn cleansing milk is the perfect cleanser for all skin types.

Mrs. Kory Regan, the second woman to become the president of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association, discusses the aims of the association and its plans for Education Week.

STILL FINDS TIME TO TEACH AT HIGH SCHOOL

Women Teacher Heads Active Association

By JOANNA DREWRY

What is education?

For the student it is the process of learning. For teachers it is a demanding profession.

There is no one more aware of the demands of the present-day educational system than Mrs. R. H. (Kory) Regan, president of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association. She believes that education needs the participation of the entire community. "This must come," she says, "not only through the payment of tax dollars but by suggestions for changes, improvements and reforms that will benefit both the educational system and society as a whole."

During Education Week—the first week of March—an opportunity is provided for everyone to get a glimpse into the "inner workings" of Victoria's school system.

To translate the goal of community participation into action, the GVTA sponsored a public meeting at Oak Bay Junior Secondary School this Thursday. The topic for discussion was "How Children Learn," with Dr. Robert J. C. Harper, director of the Behavorial Sciences Foundation at Simon Fraser University, as guest speaker. A panel of "reactors" started the discussion rolling.

During the week of March 4 to 8 each school in the city will hold open house at specified hours. This is the best-known aspect of Education Week as it gives parents a chance to go to the schools and observe the system first-hand.

For the teachers, however, the big day was Friday, Professional Day. It was on that day that the teachers of all subjects at every level met to exchange information and ideas.

"This in-service training is most important," Mrs. Regan explains. "Teachers must keep up with the new trends in education. The changes in methods and teaching concepts occur very rapidly. Without this communication a teacher who studied 20 years ago would find her work completely outdated."

LIASON OFFICER

As head of the teachers' local professional organization (with an approximate membership of 1,200) it is Mrs. Regan's job to make certain that information on all aspects of education is provided to Victoria schools—a full-time job in itself. In the capacity of liaison officer, she must also keep in touch with the British Columbia Teachers' Federation, the 16 GVTA sub-associations and numerous GVTA committees.

This is just her afternoon work.

Holding down an executive job hasn't kept Mrs. Regan from the classroom. Every morning she can be found teaching geography, social studies or guidance at Victoria Senior Secondary School. And her students, far from being neglected, profit from her familiarity with numerous teaching techniques. Many of her geography students are engaged in a detailed independent study program on Europe that will give them an excellent background for college research methods.

"My having time free to do GVTA work is really an experiment," Mrs. Regan adds. "The school board gave its permission last year. I'm the first local president to have time specifically allotted for association work."

CAN BECOME DATED

Even if her calendar is solidly booked for the present, Mrs. Regan would like to continue her own education. "You can become dated so quickly if you don't expose yourself to new thoughts. That's why the main goal of the GVTA is to promote the professional growth of its members. We're so insistent on teachers receiving salary increases because, without money, it's almost impossible for a teacher to gain access to further university study. I know this well. I attended university winter evening classes and summer sessions for over nine years to get my bachelor of education degree."

As GVTA president, Mrs. Regan is acutely aware of the present and future problems confronting Victoria schools. "Lack of classroom space, a shortage of library books and a need for building facilities that will make possible the introduction of co-ordinated teaching programs—there is so much that must be done.

"Part of the solution to our problems lies in meetings such as the one being held at the Red Lion Motor Inn on March 8 and 9. It's called 'Education 68: Community Meeting on Today's and Tomorrow's Schools.'

"Everybody's coming. Representatives from 90 local agencies and organizations have been invited. This meeting is really a follow-up to the 'Centennial Community Conference on Education' we held last year.

COMMUNITY CONTACT

"It is meetings of this nature that ensure that a regular and continuing liaison is established with the community. After all, it's the businessmen who must deal with the graduates of our schools. Without their personal involvement, we can't hope to have a basis for future planning."

With the energy and determination of Mrs. Regan in the forefront, the GVTA is assured of having not only a successful Education Week but of having its needs made known throughout the year by this actively concerned spokesman.

Royal Holiday In West Indies

LONDON (UPI — Princess Margaret and her husband Lord Snowdon flew from chilly London to the warm West Indies on Friday.

Margaret, recovering from a tonsil operation, and her husband will spend two weeks at the Barbados estate of theatrical designer Oliver Messel, Lord Snowdon's uncle and long-time friend of the royal family.

Margaret wore a smart pale orange two-piece suit and a multi-colored blouse under her mink coat as she stepped from the royal Rolls Royce limousine to the aircraft gangway. Her photographer husband, formerly society photographer Antony Armstrong Jones, was also in style, wearing a black-and-white striped overcoat and trousers to match, and a green and orange striped shirt with a necktie of the same material.

Their daughter, Lady Sarah Armstrong-Jones, came along to the airport to say goodbye to her parents.

The royal couple planned two weeks water skiing and swimming on Messel's estate before going on to New York.

Snowdon was expected to remain several more days in New York on business connected with his filming projects for American television.

A Beauty Hint

Margaret Merril advises that it is quite simple for every woman to promote an English countryside complexion. Her hint to gain a peaches-and-cream loveliness is to damp a cloth with cold water from your refrigerator and press it over your face for a few minutes once or twice a day. Then, to hold the good of the complexion-beautifying cold water, smooth on tropical oil of Olay. This oil is rather scarce and expensive, but your drug store should be able to get you a supply.

Loretta Young Has New Career—Launches Into Bridal Business

NEW YORK (UPI) — Loretta Young, an admitted sentimentalist "I cry even at card tricks"), is launching Loretta Young into one of the most sentimental of all worlds.

The brunette actress is going into the bridal business. She will lend her name, fame and appearances to promote a personalized type of wedding planning aimed at eliminating bride and mother of the bride trauma.

"You're dealing with girls at such an emotional time in their lives," said the actress. "It should be such a happy time . . . and it can be so fraught and unhappy."

The weeks, the days before the bride walks down the aisle can be a worrying time for mother too, not to mention father who foots the bills.

NEEDED SECRETARIES

Miss Young recalled what it was like when she was a mother of a bride; when daughter Judy married, attended by a matron of honor and eight bridesmaids.

"The details!", said Miss Young, "I could have used 10 private secretaries. I'd sometimes think, 'why don't I just hand her the money and tell her to elope,' but I tried to handle the whole thing and that was a mistake."

This isn't the sole reason Miss Young is starting this new career. "Youth has always fascinated me," she said. "And this certainly is dealing with young people . . . many of them still in their teens."

(True, the bridal market is a young one, with the majority of brides under 20 years. And it's an ever growing one. The U.S. census bureau estimated there were 1.980 million marriages in 1967, that the total by 1970 will be 2.510 million. Various sources estimate that the average bride spends—or rather father spends—$1,500 on marriage preparations. The publication, Bride and Groom, estimated that the bridal market now totals $5 billion annually.)

BRIDAL SALONS

The project in which Miss Young is a participant is called "Brides Showcase International". It will be a franchising of bridal salons around the country, each of them a centre where the bride can choose wedding gown and accessories, bridesmaids' gowns, mother of the bride outfits and just about everything else connected with a wedding except flowers, church and minister.

The theory is that with most of the trappings under one roof, even to wedding bands, bride and parents are saved a lot of running from store to store.

NEVER WORE WHITE

Miss Young recalled a bit sadly that she'd never had a white wedding. She was 16 when she first married, a quick ceremony in Tijuana, Mexico. The marriage lasted less than a year, she said in an interview at her new New York headquarters. Her second marriage was to Tom Lewis, an advertising executive, and the bride wore blue. The Lewises have three children and two small grandchildren.

The actress, born Gretchen Young, was one of four sisters, three of whom had motion picture careers. The studio started billing her as Loretta—"I didn't know about the change until I read it in the papers."

All the girls were acting as children and Miss Young was four years old when she made her first movie. She was leading lady in so many motion pictures she's lost count, and copped an academy award for "The Farmer's Daughter". In the beginnings of television, she had her own Loretta Young show, and it too won several awards including three emmys.

When she quit television, she took off for a year's trip around the world—"I'd spent most of my life on a sound stage. I didn't know what was going on out there in the real world."

Now, settling into a consultant role, she admits to being still a movie buff. She recalled that in the new Spencer Tracy-Katherine Hepburn movie, "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner?" she cried throughout.

"But then," she said, "I cry even at card tricks."

Knee-High Sweet Peas For Gay Border Show

By Penny Saver

I am taking up the battle of the garden once again. It's so much fun in the early part of the year to gaze at the packages of seeds and imagine how my garden will look when all the flowers are in bloom. In my mind I balance the different colors and sizes of annuals to make a gay but unified display. My dream garden looks like a seed dealer's catalogue, filled with perfect blooms that are so riotous that all the spacing in the world cannot let the bare earth show through. As other dream-gardeners will know, my garden is lucky to make it through to the summer water-shortage with even a petunia in full bloom.

But each year I try to be a success. This year I am trying some easily-cared-for plants. Since I can usually raise a crop of sweet peas, I string sweet peas up the sides of the house. This year I am also going to try a newly developed knee-high sweet pea in the borders. These plants do not have to be staked so they are good for windy spots, which, I guess, makes them ideal for Victoria. This strain of sweet pea comes in the same colors as regular sweet peas so they should complement the ones growing against the wall. As their name indicates, they grow to about knee height and are suitable for the back or middle of a border. A package of around 20 seeds is 25 cents.

I am also going to try some geraniums that sound about my speed—the packet advertised them as "care-free." These dwarf-compact geraniums have extra-large or double flowering heads. They are the quickest flowering geraniums from seed and come in five gay shades of pink and red. The leaves have a shaded effect in them. A package of seven seeds is $1. I understand that as these are a hybrid plant, the percentage of germination is unusually high. I have started several flats of a deep salmon pink shade already.

Nasturtium lovers rejoice—there is a new shade of nasturtium. These are a shocking pink color that will add life to any border display. These long blooming plants grow to about a foot in height and the flowers stand above the foliage so that they are more easily seen. They are 25 cents a package.

My dream garden is beginning to take shape but so far all the flowers are red, or shades of pink. It will take me a couple more trips to the seed shop before I can find other colored flowers to blend with them. I am also planning the vegetable patch and have made several discoveries which I will share with you on Monday.

If you would like to know where I shopped, please call me at 382-3131.

Council of Women Meets Up-Island

COURTENAY (CP — The Provincial Council of Women agreed Thursday to urge the provincial government to support establishment of educational rehabilitation centres.

Sixty delegates to the council's annual convention in this Vancouver Island community also asked that financial assistance be given to a pilot project at an educational rehabilitation centre in Burnaby.

The council said the potential of children with severe learning handicaps has been demonstrated since September at the Burnaby centre, sponsored by the education faculty at Simon Fraser University.

About 18 per cent of the children at the centre have been admitted into regular classes. Delegates were told another 128 lower mainland children are on the centre's waiting list.

Mrs. M. B. Sanford of White Rock, was named provincial president, succeeding Mrs. Dorothy Kane of New Westminster, who stepped down after three years.

Next fall's semi-annual meeting will be held in Burnaby.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Child Thief Needs Professional Help

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My son (a junior in high school) is getting to be a very clever thief. We give him a generous allowance, and if he asked for anything extra, we would be glad to give it to him, but he doesn't ask, he just helps himself. He doesn't "need" anything. He just steals for the thrill of stealing.

I know he has been in my purse and stolen money. And I have seen him take money from his father's wallet. He has stolen little things in his room that I know he didn't buy. I have even threatened to take him to the police station to frighten him, but nothing helps. Am I raising a criminal? Please help me.

BROKEN HEARTED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: A child who steals for the "thrill" of stealing needs professional help. He can be straightened out if he's taken in hand early. Threatening him with the police is unwise. A policeman should be identified as a friend who protects us and our property, not an "enemy" who would take pleasure in punishing our wrongdoing. Ask your family doctor whom to see about this boy.

DEAR ABBY: Isn't it true that if two people dance well together it means they are "in tune" and "meant for" each other?

I heard somewhere that if a boy and girl dance well together they will probably have other things in common and will most likely have a successful marriage. Please confirm this.

LOVES TO DANCE

DEAR LOVES: When two people dance well together, it means only one thing. They dance well together. Believe me, it means nothing else. If you are using "dancing" as a basis for compatibility in marriage, forget it.

DEAR ABBY: Our son is getting married soon and being as how he never made it in college we would like to give him a large sum of money for a wedding gift.

It says in the book of etiquette that cheques given to brides and grooms should not be put on display with the rest of the wedding gifts.

My husband doesn't go along with this. He feels that since we are giving the newlyweds so much money we should be given full credit for it.

What is your opinion?

GROOM'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Cheques should not be "on display" along with the other wedding gifts. The book of etiquette recommends displaying only the amount, but covering the signature, which strikes me as being pretty ridiculous. And anyone who gives a large sum of money as a gift and wants to make sure he gets "full credit" for it will, because he's the type who will tell everyone he knows.

DEAR ABBY: To the "GUEST WITH A GIFT" who complained of eating homemade cake at a wedding reception, while a "beautiful three-tier wedding cake stood untouched on the buffet table."

You wouldn't have had any better luck at our silver wedding reception. We also had a three-tier beautiful "wedding" cake on our buffet table, but we didn't offer anyone a piece. It was a "baker's dummy" made of plaster of paris, loaned to us for the occasion, and intended for decoration only. Sincerely,

THE ODD COUPLE

WOMEN'S CANADIAN CLUB

Sailor and Expo Official To Speak Here Thursday

Commodore O. C. S. Robertson will be the guest speaker when the Women's Canadian Club meets in the McPherson Playhouse next Thursday at 2:30 p.m.

The speaker joined the Canadian Merchant Marine as an ordinary seaman. His advancement to the rank of commodore was accompanied by a variety of experiences.

He won the George Medal for taking charge of a burning ammunition ship in the harbor of Halifax after the crew had left the ship. He managed to save the vessel.

A series of naval appointments saw him serving at sea during war years, assuming a captain's command at Halifax dockyard, serving as the naval member of the Canadian Joint Staff in London, England, and as the naval member of the CJS in Washington, D.C.

Commodore Robertson also served as governor and deputy director of the Arctic Institute of North America.

He was in command of HMCS Labrador when, on her maiden voyage, she circumnavigated North America. He also served as adviser on the nuclear submarine USS Seadragon when she made her historic voyage under the Arctic ice to the North Pole and through the Northwest Passage.

Commodore Robertson is now terminating his appointment as scientific adviser to Expo. He was born in Victoria in 1907 and attended University Military School and Shawnigan Preparatory School for Boys.

His subject on Thursday will be "A Look at What Science Will Be Doing in the Next Twenty Years."

'ONE STEP REMOVED FROM ALL-OUT WAR'

Violent Summer Riots Predicted for U.S.

MONTREAL (CP) — Eugene Genovese, American historian and self-professed Marxist, said Friday Negro riots will make this summer the most violent in the history of the United States.

"In fact, we are only one step removed from all-out war in our cities," Prof. Genovese told a teach-in on racial problems at Montreal's Sir George Williams University.

Prof. Genovese resigned from his post at Rutgers University in New Jersey in 1966 after a remark in 1965 that he would welcome a Viet Cong military victory over the U.S. He now instructs at Sir George Williams.

He said Friday the war in Vietnam has tied up all finances which the U.S. government might devote to its poverty program at home. It had also reversed any tendency toward liberalism in the U.S.

He said a direct confrontation of major proportions is brewing in American cities. It would lead to a "bloodbath of military oppression," the first round of which would produce heavy Negro casualties.

But oppressed Negroes had come too far to be denied by superior military force, and would be inspired by the revolutionary examples of Algeria and Vietnam which had persisted despite massive opposition.

Another speaker, Carl Taylor, chairman of the human rights committee of the Montreal Negro Citizenship Association, said:

"If discrimination is non-existent in Quebec, it is because Negroes are non-existent there."

There were about 10,000 Negroes living in a Quebec population of about 6,000,000.

But "black power" is appearing as a concept in Canada, Mr. Taylor said.

THEY'RE USING RADIOS WHEN THEY CALL GIRLS

SAN FRANCISCO (Reuters) — Police Chief Thomas Cahill has asked that all his patromen be equipped with walkie-talkies, to keep up with radio-controlled prostitutes.

"Believe it or not," he said, in a report, "street walkers and their pimps now use walkie-talkies, with the procurer riding in a car and directing his girl to the approach of a potential customer."

Inez Knows About:

SNAKES, POLLUTION AND RADAR

By JOANNA DREWRY

Radar-tracking, snakes and polluted water are the unique factors that brought Mrs. John (Inez) O'Reilly to Victoria.

"It all started in 1935," she explains, "when I went from my home in Ontario to train for radar-tracking in Orlando, Florida, for the Canadian Fighter Air Command. Florida may be some people's idea of paradise but it wasn't for me. What with snakes, moss and stagnant water I was glad to leave. Do you know that there are 30 lakes outside Orlando and they were all so polluted that we couldn't swim?

"When the training session was over I was sent to Ottawa and then out to Victoria. I fell in love with the place. It seems only natural that I'd come to live here eventually."

Since her introduction to the city, Inez O'Reilly has packed a number of careers into the intervening years. She has been homemaker and clubwoman, a private detective, managing director of a company, a Social Credit candidate for Burnaby and an amateur historian. It's this last career that occupies her now as she restores the historic Point Ellice house, the 100-year-old home of John O'Reilly.

While she was in Victoria during the war she met her first husband and, after living a short time in Edmonton, they moved back to the West Coast, to Vancouver.

For a while it looked like her life would be a round of PTA, Navy League, Cubs and Scouts, Toastmistress Club, Canadian Legion and church work.

"Then one night, a gentleman came to dinner. He was going to make a business trip to New York and asked me if I'd look after his office. He convinced me that my air force experience despatching planes would make an excellent background for despatching men on security jobs." The work was with the Marine Industrial Security Service. Several years later she was the company's managing director and a private detective, too.

"Anybody who goes into the private detective field is sure to run into a few snares. I think my worst assignment was escorting 11 Communist Chinese sailors, who had refused to return to their ship, to be deported. I had to take them, all by myself, from a hotel in Port Alberni to the Vancouver bus depot and then to the airport. What a ride! I'd bought them food on the ferry trip but some of them pushed it away. They decided to end their hunger strike when we got to the airport. I had to talk back to them in sign language and tell them they'd get fed on the plane. They'd had their chance.

"Another time I had to take a man dying of cancer across the country by train to New York and put him on the sailing ship, the Queen Frederika of Greece.

DETECTIVE DISGUISE

"One of my jobs was to check the bus lines to make sure that the drivers were taking the right fares. I used to do this in Victoria sometimes. I wore different clothes every time I did it—had to look and act like a completely different type of person every time."

When she ran on the Socred ticket in Burnaby in 1966 some rapid changes took place overnight. "I was fired. Do you know that I had 49 shares in the company, I'd sold one, and they fired me. Not only that, but my campaign manager, a doctor, was fired from Shaughnessy Hospital, too."

Mrs. John W. O'Reilly, the chatelaine of historic Point Ellice House, is seen in the morning room overlooking the garden. She has worked with her husband for several years, restoring the house and its original Victorian furnishings.

Maybe politics didn't pay but her bid for election gave her a brand new lease on life.

She was holidaying at Qualicum Beach and went down to the beach to watch the sunset. "My future husband, then a complete stranger, drove in at the lookout and we watched it together."

Adamantly, she adds, "The divorce laws should have been changed years ago. I met my present husband two years after I'd instituted divorce proceedings."

Her campaign to restore Point Ellice house began soon after this meeting. She recalls the first time she saw the house. "The CBC was here and they were going through some of the old things. They were going to push the place into the sea! I was furious. I knew it could be restored but nobody else thought so. It wasn't until six architecture students from UBC said it could be done that I had confirmation.

"One day I was visiting and I walked into the dining room. I suggested to John that we should get the curtains washed. That was the beginning of the restoration and we haven't looked back since.

"We never know what we're going to find," she laughs. "Heavens, we found a plank from a bed in the coal bin and the guard rail for the fireplace out in the shrubbery!"

A look at the immensity of Point Ellice house and its numerous treasures would assure most people that Inez O'Reilly has found a full-time occupation in cleaning and dusting alone.

Not at all. She's now embarking on a new stage in the gamut of her careers—gardening. She and her husband are transforming the two acres of O'Reilly land into a rainbow of spring flowers. "It keeps us busy," she says modestly.

SCHOOL FOR WORKING VOLUNTEERS

They Want You Where the Action Is

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

TORONTO — The kindly volunteer who takes an underprivileged child on an outing may have no idea of the ripples she is starting in society.

The person who says with a shrub, "What can I do?" might find out if she understood how her community works.

This is the general idea behind schools for citizenship being planned by the National Council of Jewish Women of Canada. They are intended to attract the woman who is apathetic because she doesn't know where to start. They want to teach the working volunteer how to look beyond her immediate action.

FACE TWO HANDICAPS

Mrs. N. I. Zemens and Mrs. David Kovitz of Calgary have been organizers of a blueprint for the proposed schools. It was presented as a curriculum blueprint at a seminar for representatives of the council's local branches which, it was hoped, will organize schools in their sections.

One premise on which the curriculum is based is that an individual can work most effectively through an organization, even when working for the cause of individual rights and liberties.

Mrs. Zemens says the two major difficulties are built right into a volunteer group's efforts to attract and hold membership.

"One is women's apathy toward participating in the problem of society. Women just don't want to be bothered.

"The other is that people are not knowledgeable enough about how a community functions to relate to it and help it function."

The curriculum background suggests a group must define its role and make sure its members understand what it is.

Mrs. Zemens says most people look for immediate satisfaction when they do volunteer work, without always being aware they are tampering with important things in society. She cites the council's work with underprivileged preschoolers as an example. A volunteer doing such work is affecting the child's values, the education system and personal and public economics.

PROGRAM OUTLINED

"When people render a direct service they don't realize they are acting as change agents. In order for an organization to be valuable, members need this kind of understanding."

The suggested program for a council school involves a series of sessions dealing with social rights, the way a communtiy works, the place of the individual, the group, the volunteer. Each council section is to set up its own program with such speakers as social scientists, city planners, members of the Company of Young Canadians.

The curriculum framework recommends the talks be combined with member discussion, field trips, films and reports from members who have attended, for instance, city council meetings.

Mrs. Zemens says she hopes the schools will start next fall and would like to see them built into council activities, not offered for one year only.

RECEIVING the Fraternal Order of Eagles civic service award from past president Cecil Holt, is Archie McKinnon (left), a freeman of the city and retired physical director of the YMCA. The presentation was made at the Old Times Nite of the Victoria Aerie No. 12, F.O.E. A meritorious award was also presented to past provincial president Jim Wilmshurst.

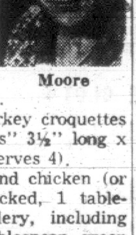
COOKING CAN BE FUN

Lifting Leftovers To Company Status

By MARY MOORE

Croquettes lift leftovers from common to company status.

It is some time since I gave you the method for making chicken or turkey croquettes and with fowl in such good supply at reasonable prices it is time I made them again. I did. But I did not want to deep-fry them so I baked them.



Moore

Chicken (or turkey croquettes —baked (12 "logs" 3½" long x 1½" diameter—serves 4).

Two cups ground chicken (or turkey) well packed, 1 tablespoon green celery, including some tops; 1 tablespoon green onion; 3 tablespoons butter; 2 tablespoons flour, ¾ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon curry powder (optional), ¼ teaspoon accent, ¾ cup hot milk (see below), ¼ cup hot cereal cream (see below), 1 egg yolk; about 1 to 1½ cups fine breadcrumbs (preferably soft); 1 large egg, 1 tablespoon water, ¼ cup butter.

Put chicken through food grinder and follow it through with the celery and onion. Heat milk and cream (Note: If desired 1 cup hot milk may be used instead of ¾ cup milk and ¼ cup cream.)

In large saucepan melt the butter and stir in flour, salt, curry powder (if used) and accent until blended. Stir in hot milk and cream until thick. Remove from heat and stir in egg yolk and ground chicken and vegetables.

Chill in refrigerator by spreading out on large plate. When thoroughly cold this croquette mixture is easy to handle.

Have ready in a shallow dish the egg beaten with water and on a large shallow dish the crumbs. Also have ready a large shallow baking dish with the ¼ cup butter melted in bottom. With moistened palms shape croquette mixture into 12 logs, 1½" in diameter. Dip each in egg, drain a little, then roll in crumbs.

Transfer each to butter in baking dish, roll them over to coat with melted butter on all sides. They should not touch. Chill again to retain shape.

Bake at 375 deg. F. 25 to 30 minutes until golden. If these do not brown well enough on top, turn on top burner for a few minutes only, watching all the time, to brown them to your liking.

Serve with a yellow vegetable and a creamed green vegetable.

Fashion Goes to All Hem Lengths—Mini, Midi, Long.

Not since Dior dropped the hemlines in 1947, has the length of skirts been such a topic of conversation and confusion. I have gathered the following information from designers as well as a leading fashion trade paper. I hope this answers all of your questions once and for all.

Fashion has gone to all lengths, the mini, the midi, the long, and the just plain short (which is longer than the mini). There is no one length just as there is no one look.

The midi is causing all the controversy, and yet it's here to stay. Why the midi? There is a whole generation of young women (who were brought up with frozen food, television and outer space) who have never worn long skirts. It's perfectly natural that the longer skirt intrigues them.

As the young go, so goes fashion to a degree. It is perfectly logical for young women to want to wear something that they have never worn before. Just because some ladies remember when they wore long skirts in another era doesn't mean that they should dampen the enthusiasm of the current generation. To the young something old is new.

What about other lengths? The midi is not replacing a length; it's an additional length. Fashion today has variety, just as there is no one look. This is 1968, the age of the individual when you can go to all lengths to be yourself—long hair or short, ruffles or shirts, boots or shoes, capes or coats, pants or pajamas, knee socks or tights.

In this big wide wonderful fashion world today, how great it is to be able to make our clothes. It's bound to bring more women back to the sewing machine than any other factor. What might have seemed impractical and much too frivolous in the past can be ours because we take the time to make our clothes.

Years ago women had only basic black shoes to go with their basic black dresses. Today, women have a wardrobe of shoes in all styles and colors. It wasn't too long ago when we wore basic beige sheer stockings. Now we wear a variety such as tights, textured, sheer, colored or patterned.

Length is a mood. It's a matter of carefully analyzing and understanding your figure and your age and deciding what is most comfortable for you and gives you the most confidence. We all resist changes to a degree, but this is a changing world so we must gradually give in to the new or we are mentally old.

It's time for the midi to come home. What better place for the feminine, romantic and graceful midi than at home. Midis are perfect at home wear for informal entertaining or for your family when you want to be treated like a queen.

I hope after reading this you will have more confidence in yourself and realize that many lengths are possible. The new lengths will not replace the short skirts, but add new dimensions to your wardrobe. For daytime wear, let's continue to keep our skirts slightly above or just at the knees.

Blended Milk Gives Benefits

OTTAWA — At the conclusion of its quarterly executive meeting the Consumers' Association of Canada issued the following announcement concerning substitute milk products.

"Because of widespread consumer acceptance in the United States of blended and substitute milk products, and the fact that processors-distributors in Canada are now researching production and marketing techniques, the CAC believes these products should be made available to consumers in Canada.

"Both types of so-called milk replacements can retail at a lower price than fluid milk products but regulations now in force in Canada prohibit the blending of dairy and non-dairy foods.

"Although the nutritive value of substitute milk products has not been fully established, blended milks do supply the nutritive values normally associated with fluid milk."

Deaths Decline

Accidents caused about 112,000 deaths in the U.S. during 1967 —a decline of 1,000 from the previous year.

8 CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our sincere thanks and appreciation to our many friends, neighbours, and fellow workers for the kindness, messages of sympathy and floral offerings in the sudden loss of our beloved mother, mother-in-law, and grandmother, Mrs. Magdolna Vizi. Special thanks to the Hungarian society, every member of the C. Watch in the B.C. Ferry Authority on Swartz Bay terminal, staff of the St. Joseph's Hospital, and Father O'Connell—Mr. Steven Vizi and Family.

I wish to thank my friends and relatives for their kind thoughtfulness during my recent bereavement of my husband, John, also for the lovely flowers and cards. Special thanks to Dr. Patterson and associates, nurses at St. Joseph's Hospital, also Sands Mortuary and Rev. Sampsons. — Doris Schalo.

We would like to express our thanks and appreciation to our many friends, relatives and neighbors for their kind words of sympathy, beautiful cards and flowers in the recent loss of our beloved husband and father, Arthur T. Dunn. A special thanks to Dr. Purdon, Dr. Lane and Dr. Hosie and nursing staff of St. Joseph's Hospital for their kind attention and care.

Shirley and Wendy Dunn

Mrs. Frank Morden wishes to express her deep gratitude to the many relatives and friends for their love and sympathy during the illness and death of her husband, Frank B. Morden — to the Rev. L. Wallwork and the Legion Members who acted as pallbearers, also to the Doctors and Nurses of the Veterans' Hospital for their tender care of him.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Pierre Jais is the greatest bridge player in France and one of the greatest in the world. Unlike many great tournament players he prefers rubber bridge to duplicate.

He played today's hand some years ago in a rubber bridge game. He uses it to describe how a man who is alert to what is going on around the table can profit by it.

His own story is that when West opened a club East shrugged his shoulders a trifle as if to say, "What can you do with such a partner."

This didn't affect the early play. Jais took his ace of clubs and finessed hearts unsuccessfully. East returned a heart. Jais took dummy's ace and led a heart to his own hand to pull East's last trump.

At this point Jais went back to that shrug by East and also to East's double of six hearts. Obviously East wasn't doubling on his king of trumps. He must have been using a Lightner slam double to ask for an unusual lead. It might have been for a spade but a diamond lead would have been even more unusual. Of course, East had wanted a diamond lead.

There is a normal safety play with this diamond holding which is to lead the king first. Then if East did show out the double finesse would be marked. Jais started to lead the king, then noted that if he did that West could play the 10 of diamonds on the second lead of the suit and Jais would have to lead another trump to get back to his own hand. He could run diamonds and discard a spade but would be left with a losing club.

Desperate measures were necessary. Jais knew that he would look mighty silly if the play he intended to make went wrong but he wanted to make his slam. He took a deep breath and led a low diamond toward dummy. West did the best he could. He played his seven of diamonds but Jais finessed dummy's nine!

ARE YOU HOPING TO GET A GROCERY STORE
OF YOUR OWN?

If so, what are you waiting for? There are only so many in Victoria and available ones are becoming as scarce as the proverbial "hen's teeth". NOW is the time to make that decision and here is a small one that a man and wife team could build into a larger and more profitable venture.

The VENDOR, who plans to leave Victoria, is offering the business, fixtures, stock and property on terms and with monthly payments on the balance of little more than the rent you would expect to pay for the living and business accommodation alone.

FULL PRICE for this corner property which is appreciating in value, plus the living quarters that can be made cozy and comfortable, plus a grocery business—lock, stock and barrel. ONLY $24,500 on terms. Call FRANK BEAMISH, Johnston & Co., 385-2471 or res. 382-9990.

RETAIL BUSINESS

One of Victoria's oldest "same family" unit for nearly 50 years. Gross sales in non-perishable merchandise in excess of $250,000, selling nationally advertised merchandise. A Ltd. Co. operation with a Balance Sheet surplus. There is no real estate to buy. Long leases. Stock approx. $50,000, fixtures, cash in the bank, customers accounts, etc. through purchase of shareholders shares. Only current liabilities. Auditor's statements for 5 years back. This is an interesting, lucrative business for a quality executive. No phone information. For details, Mr. Randall, George Randall Ltd. 384-8109. 24 hour service.

GROCERY-LIVING QUARTERS WILL TRADE FOR HOUSE

Busy little storje on main thoroughfare, short hours and the turnover is approximately $45,000 per annum. Please note there is a waterfront home with 3 bedrooms, large living room, ultra-modern kitchen and also 2 other store premises rented out for extra income on this desirable property. Full Price $55,000. Phone Victor Wong, 385-2458 anytime.

Coppertone "Viking" refrigerator, upright freezer, dishwasher, and matching electric range. Gleaming corlon floor for easy care. Built-in breakfast nook, so cozy and handy it becomes a family gathering place.

Enjoy the feeling of uncluttered spaciousness in the oversize (30'x25') living room with inviting fireplace, gleaming polished light oak floor, bay windows with panoramic views over the rolling countryside.

A dining room that puts graciousness into entertaining — large enough for a massive dining room suite. Gleaming oak floors and fireplace here too.

Another fireplace in the panelled den, that's just right for those necessary moments of privacy, or for a quiet game of cards with intimate friends.

Spacious entrance hall (with powder room). Sweeping curved staircase branching at the top to the north and south wings.

Upstairs in the north wing there are two large bedrooms with space to spare and grace to match, opening onto a four-piece vanity bathroom with features that make you proud to call it a guest bathroom. In the south wing there are two more luxury bedrooms, large enough for four-poster beds, extra comfortable chairs, full size TV and extra chests, together with the privacy of another luxury bathroom to match the glorious master bedroom. For mother there is the joy of a separate sunny sewing room, where you can hide away for an hour or two when the "charms" of family togetherness get to be more than you can bear. All the four bedrooms have panoramic views over the countryside.

In the basement there is a huge (30'x30') recreation room where the young at heart can have their fling to their hearts content.

The reliable oil-fired automatic furnace supplies hot water heating with dual thermostats so the main floor and upstairs can be maintained at different temperatures.

There is a separate pump house where a reliable electric pump supplies crystal clear water from a deep well which taps a never-failing underground stream.

Lastly there are barns for hay storage, some stable facilities and a small gardener's cottage.

OAK BAY BORDER
TWO BEDROOMS

Neighborhood pride reflects in the well-kept homes of your future neighborhood.

You will be delighted with the spacious living room (25'x12') with welcoming brick fireplace—a cheerful centre for everyday living divided by a planter from the dining room, giving plenty of space for family gatherings.

For quick snacks or morning coffee there is an eating area in the well-appointed cabinet kitchen, which will surprise you with a built-in freezer and an extension which can serve you as a sewing room or utility.

Two large bedrooms each big enough for twin beds plus ample bedroom furniture. An elegant tiled 4-piece vanity bathroom finished in black and white decor. Through-hall plan, with linen closet, broom closet and hanging closet.

Downntairs you will find a large recreation room all finished in "Western" style that will make you want to throw a party. Large enough for a pingpong table and built-in bar!

Drive-in garage, extra toilet in the basement (so useful for children). Plumbed and wired for washer and dryer and fully automatic oil-fired hot water heating with radiators throughout.

Large double lot (100'x128'), mainly lawn and fruit trees sets this property well away from inquisitive neighbors.

POINT OF VANTAGE
SEAFRONT ACREAGE
$43,000

This spacious older home on nearly two acres of waterfront property was built when there were plenty of choice spots to choose from. Over the years the garden has been beautiful and the trees have grown, resulting in an unrivalled setting matched to the marvellous view of Straits, Islands and Mount Baker. The house has been completely modernized and now includes a show kitchen beautifully planned and equipped, and two modern bathrooms.
Sun porch, large living room, King size upstairs bedroom with THE VIEW (and two more bedrooms) besides basement studio etc., make this a most comfortable and exciting home.
If you have time this weekend drive out to WELCH ROAD and take a look at the view, but please do not disturb occupants of the house on which our sign is placed.

TO BE READ ONLY
BY HUSBANDS

Husbands, if you ever wanted to buy your wife a dream house, you just have to see this. It is out of this world. It overlooks the Pat Bay Highway across rolling green fields to the Straits and Mt. Baker. It is in the Banana Belt and the mean temperature is usually 5-10 degrees higher than town. Your wife works in a beautiful electric kitchen, looks out of picutre windows from floor to ceiling, sees beauty on every hand. The brightness of the home, even on drab days, is exhilarating. The 12x15 dining area has a pass-through fireplace with raised colored slate hearth and cut stone to the ceiling. Both sides are enclosed with Thermopane and brass. The 15x28 living room has a lowered collapsable divider for making 2 family areas. There is wall-to-wall in hallways and both bedrooms up. The master has bathroom en suite. In the basement is a beautifully finished bedroom, spare unfinished, fireplace and rec. room area roughed in. The panelled walls of cedar and sen are waxed and stained. On this quiet short avenue are $40,000-$45,000 homes. Just a couple of miles past Elk Lake this is a beautiful, beautiful home. Must go, but there is so much to tell. Oh yes, Bill Tyson and I have the daughter's $37,500 home across the road for sale. It is every bit as elegant. We are having open house next Saturday if it isn't gone by then. Asking $32,900, easily financed with $10,000 down.

4.47 VALUABLE ACRES SAANICH PENINSULA 10-MILE CIRCLE BREATHTAKING PANORAMIC SEA MOUNTAIN AND VALLEY VIEWS
$22,500 — TERMS

If you ever saw a sunrise over the ocean. Gulf Islands and valleys from this enchanting (VERY HARD TO OBTAIN) property, you would agree it is close to paradise. Located off the Pat Bay Highway in Central Saanich with excellent black top road and power serving both ends of this L shaped holding. As the property is divided into approx. one-half meadow (superb growing soil), or for your horses, etc., and one-half wooded for your privacy and breathtaking views, we must recommend it highly. YES, IT COULD BE SUBDIVIDED and parcels sold off for profit, but its value rises annually in one piece and we hope someone can enjoy this peaceful nature retreat as it is. It is only a leisurely 20-minute drive to Victoria and near all services. Call

U.S. Senate Rejects Rights Bill Closure

WASHINGTON (CP-AP) — The floor manager of the civil rights bill, which includes a controversial integrated housing clause, told senators locked in a bitter battle that Americans are asking:

"What in God's name are you doing? Why don't you act?"

Senator Philip A. Hart, Michigan Democrat, commented Friday as the Senate refused for a third time to vote for closure, a move that would end the debate that has waxed hot since it started Jan. 17.

A fourth attempt will be made Monday but the outcome is in doubt.

Friday's vote to invoke closure was 59 to 25, four short of the required two-thirds majority in the 100-seat Senate.

The legislation includes so-called "open housing" legislation under which racial bars would be lifted in the renting and sales of some classes of housing. It also gives added protection to Negroes and civil rights workers.

Sponsors of the legislation originally sought to bar discrimination in the sale or rent of 97 per cent of the country's estimated 65,000,000 housing units.

VOTE-GETTING MOVE

That was scaled down this week—by Liberals seeking to attract more votes—to cover about 44,600,000 units, about two-thirds of the U.S. housing market.

The housing racial ban was further weaned when Senator Everett Dirksen (Rep.—Ill.), sponsor of the compromise bill, received unanimous approval for "technical changes" in the bill.

They turned out to be critical ones to exempt from the housing discrimination ban all single-family homes with mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Administration or financed through the Veterans Administration.

The first Saturday session of the Senate this year was called today. Under the rules this was necessary for the vote to take place Monday.

The Senate's failure to invoke closure came just one day after a special commission investigating last summer's riots in the U.S. made public its findings, blaming white racial prejudice for much of the trouble and urging a massive aid program to better the Negro's lot.

In its 267,000-word summary, the commission urged massive, compassionate and sustained efforts to halt the widening gap between whites and Negroes, including programs to provide 2,000,000 jobs, 6,000,000 housing units, better slum schools and a welfare system designed to guarantee "A minimum standard of decent living."

Funeral Today For Former Store Owner

DUNCAN — Funeral services took place today for Thomas Westwell, 87, who died in hospital here Thursday.

Until his retirement in 1957 he owned and operated Westwell's Store which is still in business and still bears his name.

Prior to moving to Duncan in 1930 he had been in business at Ladysmith.

Mr. Westwell was born in Lancashire, England, and came to the Island in 1910.

In his latter years he was an active member of the Duncan branch of the Old Age Pensioners' Association.

He was predeceased by his wife in 1929 and is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Jennie Kerrone, Duncan.

IN RHODESIA

Cautious Moves Against 'Smithy'

By DENNIS LEE ROYLE

SALISBURY (AP) — "Good old Smithy—keep in there fighting, we're right behind you," shouted the man in the crowd. A hundred bystanders applauded.

Old Smithy is Rhodesia's prime minister Ian Smith. He grabbed independence from Britain more than two years ago, and looks as though he will retain his popularity among the whites of Rhodesia for a long time to come.

Sanctions, which British Prime Minister Wilson decreed would topple the illegal Smith regime in weeks, have failed to bring the rebel government to its knees.

On the surface, the man in the street appears hardly troubled. Liquor, cigarettes, clothing and food are in plentiful supply, although more expensive. Rhodesia's white-ruled ally, South Africa, pours essential goods, including fuel, into the country.

SMITH
. . . retains popularity

CRITICAL TIMES

But in financial circles and among the ranks of the country's big farmers, rumblings of discontentment are heard.

Tobacco farmers, who once supplied Rhodesia's largest export, have been forced to reduce their acreage. Huge stocks of tobacco remain unsold.

Cautious stirrings are also being heard on the political front where some of the country's 230,000 whites are talking of a new political party to oppose the Smith regime.

They aim to fight the ruling Rhodesian Front party, using the Rhodesian-British political stalemate as the party manifesto.

Testing its popularity among whites, the new party—the Rhodesian Constitutional Association—sent out questionaires to three key white constituencies.

Voters were asked if they wanted an honorable settlement with Britain based on a Wilson plan—a settlement which would eventually give majority rule to Rhodesia's 4,500,000 blacks.

"The results speak for themaging," said one association official.

Of 5,047 questionaires, only 1,260 were returned. A scant 680 people stated any desire for a prompt settlement with Britain.

"Such campaigns against the government, and suggestions that peace proposals be re-started with Britain, merely undermine Rhodesia," said a Rhodesian government official.

"These campaigns serve only as an excuse for the Wilson government to surmise that Rhodesians are beginning to crack under the pressure of sanctions."

While many white Rhodesians appear to back the government and its policy of white domination, others see danger that the country is heading toward an apartheid state, based on the racial framework of South Africa.

New legislation gives local councils a free hand if they wish to introduce separate facilities and segregation among the different racial groups.

Robin James, Salisbury's member of Parliament, has taken another view.

"Separate development is the answer to the problems facing Rhodesia," he says. "This year should see its implementation in this country.

"Africans here do not want their rights and heritages. What they want is either to return to their 19th-century barbarism, or take over everything created for them by the Europeans."

Some Rhodesians resent censorship on radio, television and in newspapers, which often appear with large blanks on front pages. Methodist leaders have urged followers to ponder "unhealthy trends" in Rhodesia.

Rhodesia's gravest threat, however, seems to come from her militant black neighbor Zambia. Rhodesian authorities say black "freedom fighters" are poised there for terrorist campaigns against the whites of Rhodesia.

'Offered Marijuana' Three Girls Testify

NANAIMO — Three teen-aged girls said in magistrate's court Friday they had been offered marijuana by a 19-year-old Nanaimo youth.

The girls, two aged 15 and the other 16, were testifying at the preliminary hearing into charges of possession of marijuana of Lawrence Bryson, 1480 Townsite, and Rick Evans, 623 Nicol.

They said they had picked the two up in their car in downtown Nanaimo.

Police later made a routine check of the car, which bore Alberta licence plates, and saw two plastic bags flying out of the windows.

The two bags were taken to Vancouver, where the contents were analysed as marijuana.

The girls testified they had toured the town earlier, then gone to the area near Evans' home before returning to the city centre.

Police testified they entered an apartment at 623 Nicol and found a small envelope in a jacket. The contents of the envelope was later found to be marijuana.

The two men were remanded until Monday, with bail discontinued, when the hearing will continue.

Miniature Poodle Judged Best

Tophill Orsino, a Miniature Poodle owned by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Osborne of Vancouver, was judged best of close to 300 dogs Friday in a show presented by the Victoria City Kennel Club.

Best Canadian-bred dog in the show at Sanscha Hall at Sidney was an English Cocker Spaniel, Ch. Willowbrook's George Blue, owned by Mrs. Peter Bennett of Vancouver.

Judged best Canadian-bred puppy was a Shih Tzu, Khazana Yul Chan, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stewart of Port Alberni.

Judges at Friday's and today's show are Percy Roberts of Noroton Heights, Conn., and W. A. Jacob of Edmonton.

Group winners Friday:

Best sporting dog, an English Springer Spaniel, Ch. Muller's Blazing Kane.

Best hound, an Afghan, Camri's High Society, owned by Kaye Peterson and Doris Hillen of Portland, Ore.

Best working dog, a German Shepherd, Elttek's Adonis, owned by Bertine Pigott of Seattle.

Best terrier, a Wire Fox Terrier, Ch. Roxville Royal Gem, owned by R. C. Newby of North Surrey.

Best toy, a Yorkshire Terrier, Firefly's Wee Willie, owned by Gladys Miller of Washington.

Best non-sporting, Ch. Tophill Orsino, the show winner.

Royston Man To Stand Trial In Rifle Mishap

GOLD RIVER — Ronald Norman Mottishead of Royston, was committed for trial at the spring assizes in Nanaimo on a charge of criminal negligence in a hunting accident in which his stepson Edward LeBus was killed.

The accident occurred near here on Nov. 12.

Mottishead was committed for trial by Magistrate Eric Winch after a preliminary hearing in police court here.

RECENT CRISIS ADDS FUEL

Views Differ Sharply On TV 'Eyes' in House

One Mistake Meant Jail For Newsmen

ROME (Reuters) — A Rome court sentenced two Italian journalists to prison Friday for libel in an action brought by an Italian army general they accused of plotting a military coup d'etat.

Eugenio Scalfai, director of the weekly newspaper L'Espresso, was sentenced to one year and five months imprisonment and reporter Lino Januzzi to one year and four months.

The action was brought by a dismissed army chief-of-staff, Gen. Giovanni De Lorenzo, who was accused by the newspaper of heading a military plot to take over the government during a political crisis in 1964.

The trial, which turned into an investigation of De Lorenzo, a former head of the secret service, raised storms in parliament and nearly brought down the government.

Two weeks ago the public prosecutor, who can intervene in civil actions here, said the two journalist's should be acquitted because all their facts but one were correct.

OVERRULE PROSECUTOR

The court found both guilty with some extenuating circumstances.

The court also fined Scalfai 250,000 lire ($408) and Januzzi 200,000 lire ($321).

It also ordered the two men and the paper's publishers jointly to pay 750,000 lire ($1,200) in legal costs to each of the two officers who brought the action—De Lorenzo and Col. Mario Filippi—and awarded the officers an unspecified sum in damages.

The trial, one of the most sensational in Italian legal history, lasted four months.

The court heard allegations that the secret service prepared lists of "politically dangerous" persons who were to be arrested by the carabinieri (state police) and deported to special concentration camps when the coup was launched.

There were also allegations of secret meetings of high-ranking officers during the political crisis and of emergency security plans including the dispatch of a motorized army brigade from Milan to Rome.

By TOM MITCHELL

OTTAWA (CP) — The big eye of television should be in the House of Commons "free to roam, to go anywhere, to scan the empty seats and catch the MP behind his newspaper or comic book."

TV in the Commons would be an "affront to the chamber," would distort the institution and prevent it doing the job it should in legislating for the country.

The first opinion is that of Robert McCleave, 45-year-old lawyer-broadcaster and Conservative MP for Halifax. The second is held by Howard Johnston, 39, a former teacher and Social Credit MP for Okanagan-Revelstoke.

Their views point up the opposed sides in the debate on whether TV cameras should be allowed into the Commons chamber.

Discussion of the question got some added impetus in the parliamentary crisis that was resolved by a vote in the government's favor Wednesday.

In Corridors

At the height of the crisis much of the debate took place in the corridors outside the chamber.

Crews from the two TV networks set up camp in the hallway, collaring party leaders and other MPs as they emerged from the House.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux has said it would require unanimous consent of the members to allow a film crew in and there has not been such consent.

James E. Walker (L—York Centre), who favors TV coverage of Commons committees but not in the House itself, said the recent events had started him thinking.

If debate on the important questions continued to unfold before the corridor cameras instead of in the Commons, people would soon be saying: "Who cares what goes on in Parliament?"

Mr. Walker, former Liberal whip, said coverage of the Commons committees would show people their MPs at work.

He expressed fears about the editing of material from cameras in the Commons.

He feared the public would not understand that MPs leave the Commons chamber to attend to other work or that they may read a newspaper when they are hearing a speech that has been made several times before.

Expresses Worry

Robert Prittie (NDP—Burnaby-Richmond) a pro-TV man, also expressed the worry that TV viewers would not understand why there is often only a scattering of MPs in the chamber.

MPs had constituency problems to attend to and had to spend large segments of many working days at the committees on which they serve.

Mr. Prittie also wondered about the slips and stumbles made by MPs in the House. With only Hansard—the verbatim record of debates—to worry about, the MP had a chance to go over the first copy. But there would be no correction of an audio-visual record.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) said he feels it is far better for the public to see a debate in the Commons, conducted under the rules of the House, than it is for all the appeals to be made outside the chamber as they were during the recent crisis.

Mr. Knowles said the Commons committee on procedures will study the question of TV coverage in the House.

Robert Stanbury (L—York-Scarborough), chairman of the Commons broadcasting committee, said TV coverage is coming "one way or another." It would be better to have it inside the House than "outside in the corridor."

R. G. L. Fairweather (PC—Royal), another pro-TV member, agreed that the corridor performances of recent days will tend to advance the case for TV's debut within the chamber.

Don Jamieson (L—Burin-Burgeo), a Newfoundland broadcaster, said the crisis showed that "TV is here to stay" but it would be better if the cameras were recording events in the chamber instead of giving viewers a "rerun of Parliament out in the hall."

Electronic Hansard

He said TV cameras should make an "electronic Hansard" in the Commons in the same way as the verbatim record is made. Radio and TV stations would be able to pick film or voice clips from this record in the same way that newspaper reporters can use the written Hansard.

Mr. McCleave said Parliament is slower to move than most other bodies but TV coverage of House debates "is coming."

The cameras should record the MPs "warts and all" but they might occasionally "pan up to the press gallery" and show the sparse attendance there.

He was peeved about MPs being chastized about their attendance "by some journalist who spends one-quarter the time in the gallery that most MPs do in the House."

Mr. McCleave suggested there could be closed-circuit TV throughout the three main buildings on Parliament Hill. MPs could tune in and see what was going on in the House while handling work in their offices.

Edge of Wedge

Back to Mr. Johnston.

He is opposed to allowing the TV cameras into committees. In part, this is because he sees this as the thin edge of the wedge for entry to the Commons proper. He also sees committee TV coverage as an encouragement to committee members to "browbeat witnesses" and play to the TV grandstand.

But his main complaint is that TV is not the same as the print medium.

"The TV medium will distort the institution of Parliament. It won't cleanse it or purge it."

As sure as TV is allowed into the Commons, "there will be a demand that the Commons be made into better TV fare."

MPS no longer would talk to each other in an attempt to arrive at the best legislation for the country. They would go over the heads of their fellow MPs in an "appeal to the nation."

Mr. Johnston said he felt this kind of emotional appeal has no part in the parliamentary process.

"If we're making news, it's only incidental to the process of debating and legislating for the country. That is our main task. . . .

"The news aspect is secondary."

MILDLY RADIOACTIVE

Half Mile of Snow Scooped for Study

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Tons of mildly radioactive snow will be scooped from the frozen surface of North Star Bay in Greenland, where a U.S. B52 bomber carrying four hydrogen bombs crashed in January, Pentagon officials said Friday.

The snow, along with wreckage of the plane, will be stored in sealed containers at Thule air force base, 7½ miles from the crash site, until the summer thaw, when ships will be able to get in and take the containers away.

The U.S. government has not said what final disposal will be made of the containers.

A Pentagon spokesman said the decision to remove contaminated snow was made jointly by the U.S. and Denmark, which owns Greenland.

There was no estimate of how many tons would be removed. The crash left a blackened scar on the ice 2,175 feet long and 470 feet wide, and resulted in suspension of the practice of carrying nuclear weapons aboard B52 airborne-alert training flights.

The plane apparently exploded on impact, and the H-bombs were shattered to bits. The conventional explosives in one or more of them may have detonated, but there was no nuclear explosion.

The crash left the immediate area contaminated with alpha radiation, which does not penetrate human skin.

Both the U.S. and Danish governments have said the situation is not dangerous. However, in summer the ice will melt, the radioactivity will enter the water and it is considered wise to remove it now.

The U.S. has sent 500 extra personnel to Thule to gather up the plane wreckage. For an unexplained reason the operation has been titled Project Crested Ice.

Three Months For Driver

Hughie McIsaac, 31, of 708 Princess, was sentenced Friday to six months in jail for impaired driving and three months for driving while under suspension.

Central court was told he was stopped Dec. 22 by Colwood RCMP while driving erratically.

The sentences were to be served concurrently. His driver's licence was suspended.

Douglas Pearsall, 43, of 1255 Hastings was fined $150 for failing to remain at the scene of an accident and sentenced to 20 days in jail for impaired driving.

He had been involved in a hit and run accident Nov. 17.

Sneak Thief Case Remanded

A man who stole money from employees of two city firms was remanded a week for preparation of a pre-sentence and psychiatric report when he appeared in central court Friday.

Edwin Beggs, of 1018 McClure, pleaded guilty.

Court was told he took $98 from a purse in an employees' cloak room at the Canada Permanent Building, 1125 Douglas, Feb. 12. He also took $23 from a purse in the cloak room of the Woolworth's store Feb. 23.

RAF Seeks Old Timers On Island

Britain's Royal Air Force is looking for founder members on Vancouver Island—and elsewhere.

These are the men and women who formed the personnel of the Royal Air Force, the Women's Royal Air Force and the Royal Air Force Nursing Association when they were formed on April 1, 1918.

The RAF wants to invite them to various events being staged this year to mark the golden jubilee of the RAF. The invitation includes members of the Royal Flying Corps, founded in 1913, who transferred to the RAF and its sister services in 1918.

"At last count there were more than 100 RAF veterans living in the Victoria area," said F. T. S. Sehl, treasurer of the Air Force Officers' Association of Vancouver Island.

"Undoubtedly many more are living in other parts of the Island. "We want to be sure they have a chance to participate in the RAF celebrations."

Mr. Sehl said RAF veterans should write to the Ministry of Defence, S4c (Air) FM, Northumberland House, Northumberland Avenue, London, WC2. All ranks are welcome.

At the close of the First World War, he said, more than 20 per cent of Royal Air Force members were Canadians.

AT EDGE OF CHINTATOWN

First Major Renewal Plan

The first major renewal project in Victoria's Chinatown was announced Friday.

Target is a 56-year-old, three-storey brick building on Government between Herald and Chatham.

The face lifting will change the building into a spruced-up complex of stores, offices and apartments.

Harry Gladwell, president of International Holding Ltd., the local company behind the project, said the first phase will begin Monday.

"We plan to retain all of the building, because basically it's structurally sound," Mr. Gladwell said.

The facade will be cleaned and altered to accommodate 10 or 12 large stores on the ground floor. A central garden court about 45 feet wide will stretch four stories high to give the building an open, outside atmosphere.

The structure will be raised another storey with the addition of penthouses. These could eventually become town houses, Mr. Gladwell said.

Supporting the building are 13 solid brick walls which run from front to back walls and up to the roof.

Renovations merely entail knocking out ceiling joists between floors and adding brick archways through the dividing walls, Mr. Gladwell said.

Most of the original glass in the front of the building will be retained, although some store fronts may be altered to vary the plan, he said.

The completed building, expected about a year from now, will be known as International House.

The block is about 240 feet by 60 feet and offers 40,000 square feet of floor space.

The second floor will be broken up into 20 offices with floor space of 500 feet.

Mr. Gladwell indicated the floor could accommodate at least one restaurant, in place of some of the office space.

The third floor will house 10 luxury offices. A dozen penthouses have been planned for the roof, for use as office-residences, offices or residences.

City officials stress the importance of the project as the first venture in renewal of the district using private capital.

The building borders the 50-acre Wharf Street section currently under study as a possible urban renewal site.

GUEST SPEAKER at a local meeting Wednesday of the American Society for Metals will be Dr. William Koster, vice-president and director of Metallurgical Engineering of Metcut Research Associates Inc. The meeting is at 8 p.m. in the Dockyard Officers' Club at Esquimalt.

'Teachers Must Show Courage'

NANAIMO (CP) — The president of the B.C. Teachers' Federation says teachers of today have too much bone in their heads and not enough in their backs.

Federation president Robert Buzza was addressing 450 teachers at a workshop here Friday.

He said teachers must show courage and change their ways now, without waiting for the introduction of costly new buildings and equipment to aid them.

Mr. Buzza said that despite a so-called new look in education "there have not been any significant changes taking place in our schools."

He attributed this to a lack of courage on the part of teachers.

New Sawmill Opens

UCLUELET—A new sawmill opened at Ucluelet recently.

It is operated by Tona Forest Products and shipped its first lumber last week.

The Ucluelet Contracting Company will be in charge of trucking lumber to Port Alberni and Nanaimo.

Alberta, Sask. Budgets Reveal Tax Boosts Due

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Alberta and Saskatchewan brought down record budgets Friday as both provincial governments dug for additional sources of revenue to offset their rising costs.

Provincial Treasurer Dave Steuart of Saskatchewan sprinkled his presentation with far-reaching tax increases. A. O. Aalborg, his opposite number in Alberta, treated the taxpayers more gently but gave them fair warning that they would have to wait a year before he dropped the other shoe.

Faced with a deficit of $70,458,110 for the 1968-69 fiscal year, Mr. Aalborg said it would be met from liquid reserve funds, possibly supplemented by the first direct borrowing for operating income by an Alberta government since 1935.

He said "consideration must be given to introducing one or more new forms of taxation" in next year's budget.

Mr. Steuart budgeted for a modest surplus of $378,620 by increasing and broadening the base of the Saskatchewan sales tax and imposing a utilization fee under the province's hospital services and medical care insurance plans.

Both provincial treasurers made motorists a prime target, increasing gasoline taxes and licence fees.

Mr. Steuart both deepened and widened the Saskatchewan sales tax for health and education. He increased the rate to five from four per cent, effective immediately, and imposed it for the first time, starting April 1, on hotel and motel accommodation, commercial cabins and cottages, meals costing $2 or more and all forms of telecommunications, including telephones, telegrams, teletypes and private wires.

Commodities hitherto subject to the tax include tangible personal property, imported goods for personal use, beer, wine and liquor.

The medical care and hospital utilization fees—$1.50 for a visit to a physician: $2 for physicians' visits to homes, emergencies or outpatients and $2.50 a day for a hospital stay, decreasing to $1.50 after 30 days—will be absorbed by the government for needy subscribers.

SAVES $5,000,000

Mr. Steuart said the fees will bring a net saving of $5,000,000 and are intended to discourage abuse of the medical and hospital services.

Outside the house, he expressed confidence that the fees will not conflict with the federal medical care plan, in which Saskatchewan is scheduled to participate when it goes into operation July 1.

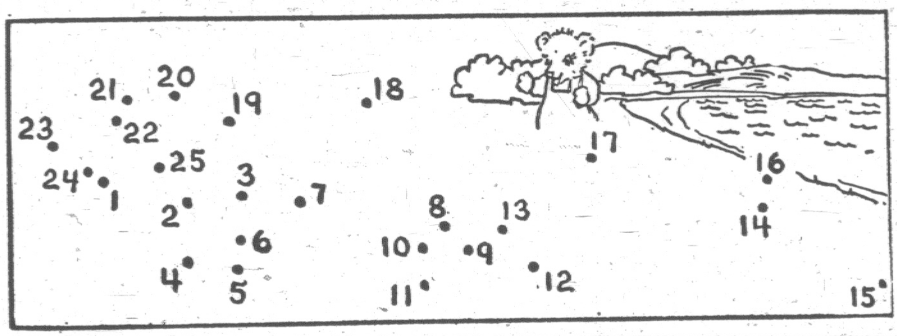
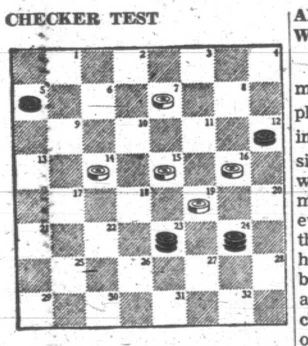
JUST AN EMPTY GESTURE?



Is the little bear in the scene above bidding someone a fond farewell? Is he offering to carry a package? Or is he comparing something's present size with what it was at a time in the past? If you can interpret his gesture, you may be able to guess the identity of the creature outlined in dots.

CHECKER TEST



Here's a neat little lesson in checker strategy. White side, moving up the board, to move first and win in five moves is the challenge. Can you meet it?

Long-time checker champion Millard Hopper tells how below, if you need the solution.

Solution: White 14-9, Black 5-14, White 15-10, Black 24-15-6, White 7-2, Black 12-19, White 2-9-18-27, etc.

ANYONE CAN BEAT WORLD'S CHAMPS

There is a very simple method via which anyone can play the two best chess players in the world (or checkers) simultaneously and never do worse than break even. You may tell this to your friends, even offer to make a bet, if they won't believe you. Here's how it's done: You set up two boards. You play Black on one and White on the other. In chess, White moves first. Your opponent having White makes the opening move. You make the same opening move on the other board. Then, when the second expert answers your opening move, you return to the first board and duplicate his reply. What you are doing is playing one board against the other so that you will have to break even!

DAD'S GIFT PROBLEM

Dad was given a pen and pencil set for his birthday. The pencil cost two dollars more than the package of spare leads in it, and the ballpoint pen cost three times as much as the pencil and leads together. The whole set cost ten dollars.

How much did each of the three items cost?

Answer: The pen cost seven fifty, the pencil two twenty-five and the leads twenty-five cents.

WATCH YOUR STEP IN THIS

Here's an oldie that's still a baffler: A man starts from a given point, If each time he takes two steps forward he must take one step backward, how many steps must he take to reach a point five steps ahead of his starting point?

Time yourself in finding the solution, then see if someone else can solve it faster.

Answer: He must take 11 steps in all.

ALL IN THE FAMILY

Two men were talking of unusual family relationships.

"I know a woman whose father is her husband's brother-in-law; and her husband's sister is her step-mother," said one.

How did such a strange relationship occur?

Answer: A father and his daughter were married in a double ceremony with the father wedding a sister of the daughter's bridegroom.

SUPPER TIMES?

Five married couples happened to meet at a ski resort, and one of the group proposed that they should sup together at the big round table in the dining room, with the wives in the same seats always, so long as each man could seat himself between two different females but never next to his wife. How many suppers could they have had?

Solution: They could have supper together under the stipulated conditions for thirteen nights.

LADDER WORDS

The odds are better than 2 to 1 that you can't change TWO to ONE in fewer than 11 steps. We're referring, of course, to the ladder word method of changing one letter each step and leaving a common word. Try it.

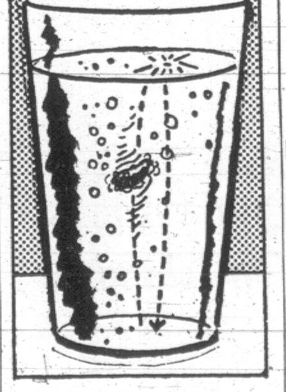
Solution: One way is TWO, too, ton, tin, sin, sir, air, awl, owe, ONE.

MINI-TESTS

He was a famous Scot. On one occasion he wrote under the pseudonym Herr Diogenes Teufelsdrockh. Who?

Answer: Thomas Carlyle.

PIT TRICK'S A BIG FIZZLE



Are you the possessor of mysterious magical powers, or are you just putting on an act? Friends can be made to mull this question over and over as you perform this trick for their edification. After dinner is a good time to perform.

The performer takes an apple or grape seed from fruit that is on the table. (Or, if none is available, takes the seed from his own pocket). Pouring a glass of ginger ale or soda water, he drops the seed into it, and it quickly sinks to the bottom. Now he commands the seed to rise and it does so immediately. The performer waves his hand downward and the seed sinks—only to rise to the surface again at the performer's command.

Actually this is just an act on the part of the trickster, for the seed sinks and rises to the surface of its own accord. This is because bubbles of gas adhere to it causing it to float; at the surface the bubbles burst and the seed sinks, rising again when it accumulates more bubbles.

Timing of commands to synchronize with seed's involuntary actions is vital, of course.

COMPENSATION ASKED

Loss of Fines Hurts Cities

By BRUCE YEMEN

The government's new motor vehicle legislation should be backed with a bill making up lost fine revenue to municipalities, the legislature was told Friday.

Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) said he supported fully the principle of the bill removing a variety of lesser traffic offences from magistrates' court jurisdiction and removing fines as a punishment.

But it isn't right to take away revenue from municipalities without providing companion legislation to restore it, he said, noting that Vancouver stands to lose $600,000 a year under the bill.

He said first concern should be for Vancouver Island municipalities where the new act would be tried out first.

Mr. Macdonald expressed fear that the superintendent of motor vehicles would be flooded with cases of drivers who were either losing their driving privileges or threatened with loss.

REVIEW BOARD?

"I don't think the machinery is adequate to look after those cases," he said. Referral of appeals to magistrates in the event of an overflow would only mean different sets of standards being applied to the same kind of appeal, he said.

He said the time is coming when a board of review consisting both of legal and lay people should be set up to handle suspension appeals in an informal way to insure justice for drivers.

The bill would give the superintendent of motor vehicles the right to suspend licences when a driver's record of violations indicated that step was necessary.

He said it was still going to be difficult for a motorist to know exactly what rules he must obey because traffic regulations are not found in a central, uniform code.

Attorney-General Bonner explained that the new approach to traffic violations puts emphasis on prevention instead of punishment and aims at making drivers aware that driving is a privilege that requires responsibility.

Ernie LeCours (SC—Richmond) said police must be more responsible if the bill is to be effective.

MORE DEBATE

Debate on second reading of the bill will be resumed later.

Second reading of Bill 9 to amend the assessment equalization act was given against opposition from the six Liberal MLAs'

The bill puts a 5 per cent annual maximum on increases in total assessment values of land and improvements in a school district, over the previous year's total.

It replaces a provision that limited assessment increases on individual properties to five per cent.

Robert Williams (NDP—Vancouver East) said the bill was a step forward because it provides scope for equalizing the tax load. The five per cent limit on individual properties tended to hurt the small property owner because it held down assessed values of big properties that underwent huge actual "overnight" value increases, he said.

He said, however, it would mean more headaches for assessors and wouldn't help the "average joe" to figure out if his property was being fairly assessed.

INEQUITIES

L. A. Williams (L—Vancouver-Howe Sound) said the inequities could still continue under the new bill and that complex disputes will arise in school districts where both municipalities and unorganized territories are included, for example.

Barrie Clark (L—Vancouver North) said the bill would be almost impossible for a school district to implement unless it owned a computer. Assessors will be so busy acting as bookkeepers, they won't have time to assess, he said.

The Liberals also opposed second reading of a bill to enable milk producers to contribute to an advertising fund for milk promotion.

Garde Gardom (L—Vancouver-Point Grey) said asking farmers to pay for milk promotion was like asking loggers to pay for lumber advertising. It's the responsibility of retailers and distributors, he said.

David Barrett (NDP—Coquitlam) said he was supporting the bill in the hope it would end the "strange cyclical pattern" that in the past has seen the government's farm products budget leap suddenly before elections and decline just as suddenly after them.

Agriculture Minister Frank Richter said the milk producers of B.C. asked for the amendment and stressed that an opting-out clause enabled farmers to stay out if they wanted.

SCHOOLS DEBATE DELAYED

The NDP Friday failed in an attempt to debate the education department's tough new rules restricting school construction.

Mrs. Eileen Dailly (NDP—Burnaby-North) introduced a motion to adjourn the Legislature's normal business "to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance."

She said the revelation Friday morning by school trustees that new clamps were placed on construction of classrooms, libraries and gymnasiums required an immediate debate.

But Speaker William Murray ruled it out of order on the grounds that Education Minister Peterson's estimates would come before the legislature in due course and that would be the appropriate time to debate the matter.

He cited authorities for his ruling and added he was not making a decision on the urgency of the subject but rather on the urgency of holding a debate that day.

'Hot' Totems Racket Ended

A man who sold three miniature totem poles after stealing them from a Victoria store was sentenced to three months in jail Friday.

Schandley Williams, 29, of Vancouver, received a concurrent term on a charge of attempting to steal two other totem poles. He pleaded guilty.

Det. Walter Calwell told the court Williams stole the totems, worth $75, from the English Sweet Shop. He then sold them to stores on Government St.

He was caught Feb. 23 trying to steal two model totem poles worth $41.96 from The Bay.

Jubilee Given Mental Unit?

New Bill Clears the Way For Merging Two Hospitals

By JOHN MIKA

A bill to amend the Mental Health Act would change the legal status of general hospital psychiatric wings from observation wards to full-fledged treatment wards equivalent to Riverview Mental Hospital.

It would also clear the way for "melding" the $6 million Eric Martin Institute with the operation of Royal Jubilee Hospital, Health Minister Wesley Black told reporters Friday after introducing the bill.

The amendments would enable a mental patient to be admitted to a psychiatric wing of any general hospital which applies for the status, instead of automatically requiring admission to the Riverview hospital at Essondale.

He said this would implement the government's announced policy of decentralizing mental health treatment services.

Mr. Black added talks are under way now to co-ordinate the Eric Martin Institute with RJH operations so that it could be used as the psychiatric unit of the general hospital.

"We certainly don't want to duplicate facilities 200 yards away," he said.

NO PROMISES

Mr. Black added he hoped the Eric Martin Institute would be opened by the end of this year but he could not promise it.

He said other provisions of the bill would increase the scope for making emergency admissions of mentally ill patients.

It would empower a policeman to put under custody anyone he believes has become mentally ill and is a danger to himself or someone else.

The policeman would take such persons to a doctor who's certificate would permit admission into a psychiatric unit as an emergency case. Similarly, a magistrate or judge could order someone sent quickly to a psychiatric unit.

But all such emergency admissions would have to be approved by the superintendent of the psychiatric unit and cannot be for longer than 72 hours wihout further authorization, either by a medical review board, voluntary admission by the patient himself or a member of his family.

AFFIRMATION

In other bills, introduced by Attorney-General Robert Bonner:

- Atheists and persons whose religion is not based on the Bible could make an "affirmation" to tell the truth in a trial instead of taking the customary oath on the Bible.
- Real estate promoters could be ordered to suspend dealings if they violate certain requirements in prospectuses.
- Strata Titles Act definition would be enlarged to cover row housing as well as high-rise buildings.

MLAs Fight For Teeth In 'Bug Law'

Social Credit backbencher Ernie LeCours bared his teeth at Attorney-General Robert Bonner again Friday.

He told the legislature Mr. Bonner's bill to stop invasion of privacy "is just another toothless tiger that protects no one."

Mr. LeCours agreed with opposition MLAs that the bill—which will delegate to the courts the definition of unlawful invasion of privacy—did not go far enough.

He said the bill should ban the use of "electronic surveillance" except for senior police officers acting under the specific authority of a judge.

Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver-East) said the bill would not outlaw any of the modern abuses of privacy invasion through electronic equipment.

He said an ancient British law outlawed eavesdropping but Mr. Bonner's law "will not go as far as our forefathers went in the 14th century. It is a very faltering forward step."

Tom Berger (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard) said it was wrong "to let the judges write the bill by deciding what is reasonable and what is not reasonable when it comes to invasion of privacy.

"The legislature should lay down the guidelines because the legislature is a law-making body and we should not abdicate that responsibility," he said.

He said the bill should say privacy is inviolate except in certain circumstances, such as police "bugging" under a court warrant.

This would define the law instead of leaving "it as it is now, totally uncertain."

David Barrett (NDP—Coquitlam) said the legislature's privacy was protected because its debates are not recorded.

"Surely the same principle that protects us . . . can be considered for protecting the little man the premier says he's so concerned about," he said.

Mr. Barrett said the government "has everything backwards—we want a Hansard here in the House and protection of privacy outside."

However, the bill passed second reading without a division.

SURVIVAL GEAR? Frilly gown, if salvaged from downed aircraft might make bandages or serve as a distress signal. Flying Club member Chris Anglin won't discard it. Downed flyers are learning to use whatever is at hand, in emergencies.

LIVE IN BRENTWOOD BUSH

Pilots Study Survival

Thirty-two Victoria pilots took to the woods this weekend to learn about survival in the wilderness.

They took only a handful of gear supposedly salvaged from a downed plane.

The exercise is part of a three-day training plan sponsored by the RCAF and the Victoria Flying Club to assist flyers who might be forced down in remote places.

Most of the action was to take place in the Brentwood area.

Veteran search and rescue experts Capt. Ralph Madden and Sgt. Ted Brainder of Vancouver were to give the instruction.

Starting today and continuing until Sunday afternoon, the course includes lectures, films and camp-out to simulate being forced down in the wilderness.

Flyers will be taught that things they should eat and what they should do to protect themselves under primitive conditions," a Victoria Flying Club spokesman said.

Sgt. Braidner is a veteran of 20 years in search and rescue operations.

"We hope most of the pilots attending the course will never become veterans in survival, but we want them to be prepared," he said. "And we hope they will carry the word back to other pilots so that many common practices can be changed."

LOWER FEES FOR CAMPERS UNDER STUDY

The government will study the possibility of reduced licence fees for camper trucks, Attorney-General Bonner told the legislature Friday.

He said there has been a rapid increase in numbers of small trucks used solely for family camping use and that a lesser non-commercial licence fee might be desirable.

But the government would have to be careful that the trucks weren't used later for commercial purposes, he said. His remarks were in reply to a question by Leo Nimsick (NDP—Kootenay).

Important Changes Due in Forests Act

Debate on second reading, approval in principle, to amendments to the Forests Act was adjourned Friday in the British Columbia legislature.

Debate was adjourned at the request of Dr. Pat McGeer (L—Vancouver-Point Grey) shortly after Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston explained the government's intentions and import of the legislation.

Mr. Williston said the bill, an act to amend the Forests Act, had two important changes, the first regarding licensing and the second regarding fire responsibility.

Changes in fire protection would allow the forest service to order crews to the scene as soon as fire was reported without undue delay in arguing with private operators about responsibility for fighting the fire. The question of responsibility could be settled later, Mr. Williston said.

"There's only one time to fight a fire and that's when the fire starts and that's no time to start arguing," Mr. Williston said.

MUST GIVE SOURCE

The licensing provisions would ensure that no private sawmill or pulp mill operator would be issued a timber permit until he had indicated where his source of supply of raw materials came from.

Mr. Williston said some areas of B.C. had heavy capital investment made or planned. He said anybody could still build whatever facilities he wished, but he would have to specify his source of materials.

House Notes Anniversary

The legislature Friday marked the 50th anniversary of granting of the franchise to women in B.C.

The provincial Council of Women unveiled a plaque in the rotunda of the Legislative Building to commemorate the event and MLAs read a copy of the original bill when they opened the afternoon sitting.

It was drawn to the legislature's attention that two MLAs had a connection with the original bill: Alex Macdonald's father Archibald, was the attorney-general who introduced the legislation; and Dr. Pat McGeer's grandmother was one of the women who fought for the legislation and was accorded the honor of sitting in the chamber when the bill was introduced.

Fined $400

Harold Pearsall, 1224 Pembroke, was fined $400 and had his licence suspended when he pleaded guilty in central court Friday to impaired driving.

Agriculture Policies Criticized in Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal agriculture policies came under sharp attack from the opposition and received a few jabs from a Liberal when the Commons debated agriculture department supplementary spending estimates Friday.

Harold Danforth (PC—Kent), a farmer, said his party will question every aspect of government farm policy before approving the $33,000,000 in additional expenses for the fiscal year ending March 31.

Opposition Leader Stanfield will enter the debate to outline the Conservative farm program, he said.

Ontario and Quebec MPs criticized dairy and vegetable policies. B.C. members complained of poor protection for the fruit industry.

Mr. Danforth said the farming industry was going steadily downhill under the Pearson administration. Canadian farmers had sunk $800,000,000 deeper in debt in the last 10 years.

Last year's protest march on Parliament Hill, tractor demonstrations in Ontario and Quebec, protest meetings, and the closing of creameries, sugar refineries and food-processing plants "on a scale never dreamed possible in Canada" were symptoms of farm troubles.

CUTS SUBSIDIES

Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) said the new dairy policy, which cuts off subsidies for small farmers, will create large farms and eventually lead to higher consumer prices because of scarcities.

Mr. Peters called for a revision of succession duties laws to encourage farms to remain as family units. The high price of land often forced a family to sell its farm to meet estate taxes.

Agriculture Minister Greene sat quietly as the debate continued. He declined to make an opening statement saying he would answer questions later.

Charles-Arthur Gauthier (Creditiste-Roberval) said a national farm policy is unworkable. Agricultural problems required regional study.

Mr. Gauthier said he could not imagine a dairy policy that "would satisfy one province, let alone the whole country."

UNDERSELL PEACHES

David Pugh (PC—Okanagan-Boundary) and Howard Johnston (SC—Okanagan-Revelstoke) both criticized the government for allowing canned peaches, pears and fruit cocktail from Australia to undersell Canadian produce.

Mr. Pugh said the Australian government levies an excise tax on home consumption to subsidize exports. Australian canned peaches sold for less in Toronto than in Australia.

James Byrne (L—Kootenay East) countered that Canada was too big an exporter to criticize imports. But, he added, imports sold with the assistance of subsidies or rebates "should be frowned upon."

Russell Honey (L—Durham) sympathized with the fruit growers' concern, but also stressed Canada must "keep in mind all the ramifications of world trade."

H. W. Herridge (NDP—Kootenay West) said farmers would gladly stay on the land if they could be assured incomes similar to what they could earn in the cities.

Warner Jorgenson (PC—Provencher), a Manitoba grain farmer, said he hoped the government would not cry "filibuster" when the opposition took time to point out the farmer's plight.

The debate continues Monday.

Mirror Grants Wish

James Hagen, 21, of 2531 Government, wanted to get put in jail Thursday night, so he broke a glass mirror over a shuffleboard game in the Century Inn.

He pleaded guilty in central court Friday to wilful damage and got 30 days.

Court was told Hagen had had a fight with his girl friend and wanted to get picked up by police.

Press Ban Power Taken by Tanzania

DAR ES SALAAM (Reuters) — The Tanzanian government today announced draft legislation empowering the president to ban any newspaper or other publication when such a move considered in the interests of peace and good order.

Under a bill published in the official gazette maximum penalty for continuing publication after a ban would be a fine of 20,000 Tanzanian shillings (about $3,000) or five years' imprisonment.

The official gazette also gave three months' notice of the cancellation of the registration of the Tanzania Co-operative Press Ltd., whose weekly Swahili paper Ulimwengu was banned in December with the detention of editor Otini Kambona.

Kambona is a brother of former Tanzanian foreign minister Oscar Kambona, who now is in self-imposed exile.

SPARKED BY TAX BILL CRISIS

Attendance Habits of MPs Studied

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP) — Absence of 95 members of Parliament from the vote last week in which an income tax bill was defeated, creating a parliamentary crisis, has renewed concern over Commons attendance habits.

Technically, MPs are required to be on hand for all sittings of the Commons. In practice, duties outside the House make it impossible and there are certain allowances for this in the rules of attendance.

But it's no secret many stretch the rules to suit their personal convenience. This has been increasingly evident in recent years with parliamentary sessions becoming year-round affairs.

Each MP is allowed 21 days of absence for personal reasons in each session. In addition, illness and the requirements of "public or official business" may be accepted as excuses for non-attendance.

Beyond this, the MP is subject to a fine of $60 a day, deducted from his or her annual $18,000 which is made up of a $12,000 salary plus $6,000 tax-free for expenses. Certain additional travel expenses also are paid.

DISCLOSE IN REPORT

Such deductions are disclosed once a year in the auditor-general's report on the public accounts. The report for the 1966-67 fiscal year shows only three MPs did not draw their full amount—John Addison (L—York North), Davie Fulton (PC—Kamloops and Walter Gordon, president of the Privy Council.

Mr. Addison gave up $120, Mr. Fulton $240 and Mr. Gordon $11,280—the equivalent in Mr. Gordon's case to 188 days absent without cause. He was not in the cabinet during the period involved.

The printed record of the occasional roll-call votes in the House is the closest thing to an attendance report but even this is not accurate.

Only once in Canadian parliamentary history has every MP taken part in a recorded vote. That was on Oct. 2, 1962, when the minority Conservative government elected in June of that year faced its first non-confidence motion.

One of the factors in last week's absenteeism on the tax bill vote, in which 186 MPs took part, was that it was held on a Monday night. There has been a loose agreement that important votes will not be held on Mondays or Fridays, the most popular days for absenteeism, if they can be avoided.

This has led to development of the "T-to-T Club," a reference to the significant group of MPs who are in Ottawa from Tuesday to Thursday and then head home for four days. Most of the club members are from Ontario and Quebec ridings.

Two years ago MPs were given the right to free airline tickets in addition to their traditional railway passes. They are entitled to one weekly return air trip to their home constituencies.

Some people contend an MP should be in Ottawa at all times to merit his $18,000 annual pay.

On the other side, it can be argued that part of an MP's job is to keep in touch with opinion at home and this cannot always be done by week-end trips.

The Commons sits only 27 hours a week but there are frequent committee meetings that add to the schedule.

Some MPs work on a system of spending four or five weeks in Ottawa on constituents' problems, then two weeks in their home ridings attending to local affairs.

Her Day in Court 'Complete Farce, Waste of Tax Money'

DUNCAN — Mrs. Patty-Anne McMillan today described her treatment in court for an alleged parking meter offence as "a complete farce and waste of taxpayers' money."

She was convicted of a parking meter violation and fined $15 or one day in jail.

Mrs. McMillan said, "I was so mad I refused to pay the fine and said I would go to jail.

"If I had paid the fine it would have been accepting an abortion of justice.

"But the RCMP didn't know what to do with me and I never did spend any time in a cell. It was a real kangaroo court."

* * *

Mrs. McMillan has now written to Attorney-General Bonner and Opposition Leader Strachan asking for an investigation of the Duncan city bylaw regarding parking meters.

She said today the meter attendant testified at her trial he had no experience or training in the mechanics of the meters but was responsible for their maintenance.

Mrs. McMillan said, "This is a matter of primary concern to me. The bylaw says the car owner must pay a parking ticket whether or not the meter is defective.

"Is the driver supposed to overhaul the meter himself?"

Mrs. McMillan said her alleged offence took place Dec. 19 when the temperature in Duncan was 22 degrees.

She said towns in the northern Interior disregard meters in cold weather because the timing mechanism is affected.

Mrs. McMillan said, "My defence on these grounds was perfectly plausible but was disregarded.

* * *

"Many visitors to Duncan leave the city with a sour taste in their mouths after being wrongly ticketed."

She claimed the Station Street meter was still out of order this week, registering from 3 to 18 minutes for a penny which is supposed to give 12 minutes.

Mrs. McMillan said in her letter to Mr. Bonner she also asked for an investigation of the court procedures which require a person to make at least two appearances.

She said, "Often a working person has to take two days off work and simply can't afford justice."

OIL TRUCK CRASH

Family Forced Out of Home

NORTH COWICHAN — — A Gibbins Road family had to evacuate its home Friday afternoon after fuel oil got into its domestic water supply.

A fuel truck had toppled over Menzies creek bridge and crashed 30 feet into the creek, which the family uses for its source of water.

Realtor John Keserich moved his family into his father's home until the oil could be flushed from his water tank and lines.

Driver John Allen of Duncan is in "satisfactory" condition in hospital today after suffering leg injuries.

Some of the truck's load of oil had to be dumped into the creek to lighten the truck before it could be pulled clear.

Mr. Keserich, only domestic user south of the creek which runs into the Cowichan River, said, "You could smell the oil as soon as you entered my driveway. There's oil in our tank and pipes."

Municipal works supervisor Perry Ross said this morning, "The oil won't lie long and will be washed out to the saltchuk by tonight. The bigger part of it has gone already.

"In the summer with no runoff there would have been a heck of a mess."

He said the Keserichs will have to have their water system pumped clean.

Mr. Ross said, "I don't know how much might stick in the pipes and bends."

Fortunately the city standby pumping station on the Cowichan River is not in use because there is sufficient water in the McKinstry Street well.

Chief engineer Jack Efford of B.C. Forest Products Ltd. said any oil which got into the Crofton Mill supply would be taken out by the filter system.

The company has a pumping station on the river.

'Thought They Could Walk Back'

"I thought they could walk ashore.

"I also thought the pilot would come back and pick them up, but instead he just took-off without looking back."

This is how a mining company president this morning described a harrowing 15-minute experience after two prospectors were stranded on a sandbar about 20 miles southeast of Alert Bay.

George Millburn, president of the Malaspina Mining Co., said his employees, James Coyne, 25, and Clayton Collum, 19, both of White Rock, were up to their armpits in water from the incoming tide when they were picked up by an RCAF search and rescue aircraft.

COPTER CALLED IN

Two para-rescue men wearing skin suits swam out from the search plane to the stranded prospectors. A helicopter was called to airlift himself and the two men to Alert Bay.

"But for the timely arrival of the RCAF rescue craft, they could easily have been drowned," Mr. Coyne said.

Mr. Milluburn said he and the two prospectors with their gear, were flown to the area from Kelsey Bay by a chartered plane. They planned to stay about a week.

On the second run, he said, the plane picked up himself and the first load of gear, from where he was set down earlier, to take all three men to another part of the shore.

UNLOADED GEAR

On its way, the plane grounded on a sandbar, so he and Mr. Collum got out some gear while the lightened plane continued to shore to unload Mr. Coyne and the rest of the gear.

Mr. Millburn said he swam 50 yards to shore. The tide was coming in fast, so Mr. Coyne swam out to the sandbar to bring back Mr. Collum, a non-swimmer, but decided not to risk the return trip.

About 15 minutes later, he said, the two stranded men were spotted by the RACF search plane, which was searching for Robert Perrault, 45, and his son, Robert Jr., missing for two days in a 14-foot outboard boat.

(The boat was found adrift Wednesday, but no trace of the Perraults could be found).

Mr. Millburn said the search plane was unable to get close to the sandbar, so two para-rescue men swam to the stranded men and stayed there until a helicopter was brought to the scene to puck them up.

"It was a miracle the plane came along when it did," he said.

Mr. Coyne and Mr. Collum returned to their homes in White Rock today after treatment for shock and exposure at Alert Bay Hospital.

MLA Calls Own Meeting On Labor Bill

A disagreement between Dr. Howard McDiarmid, MLA for Alberni, and the Port Alberni District Labor Council has resulted in the MLA hiring his own hall for a public meeting Sunday in Port Alberni.

The meeting at 8 p.m. will discuss the controversial compulsory arbitration legistation new before the legislature.

A meeting had previously been scheduled between Dr. McDiarmid and the labor group but he declined to attend when he learned it was not to be public.

"It is not that I'm afraid to meet the trade unionists", he said. "It is just that I feel there is a public interest here which has to be recognized.

"I agreed to meet the public and they (the labor council) changed the ground rules".

The meeting will be in Port Alberni Senior Secondary School auditorium.

"I feel I owe it to every constituent to discuss this thing," Mr. McDiarmid said.

Sawmill Again Closed Down

PORT ALBERNI—MacMillan Bloedel Ltd.'s Somass sawmill was closed down Friday following a labor dispute involving carrier drivers and forklift operators.

Company officials said the drivers stopped work in a dispute over management rights to direct the working force.

The mill was closed for about three hours Thursday night and then closed again Friday when the dispute broke out again.

Daddy Is A Dandy

LONDON (AP) — Even Carnaby Street was taken aback today by Lord Snowdon's latest fashion fancy—a vivid, striped suit that made him look like a regency dandy with accents from the era of Bonnie and Clyde.

For every designer who said "smashing," there was one to mutter "shocking."

●

One called the suit a nightmare, but kinder souls said Snowdon certainly was a snappy dresser.

Princess Margaret's 37-year-old husband was turned out in his symphony in stripes at Heathrow Airport Friday when the royal couple flew out for a vacation on the Caribbean isle of Barbados.

●

The outfit consisted of a tight-waisted, knee-length brown frock coat with broad gangster-style white stripes running up through a "highwayman's collar." Trousers, of course, matched. And under the coat was a green and orange striped shirt.

●

"Wham," said London's Daily Sketch. "The outfit hit passengers straight between the eyes."

Fashion writer Hardy Clarke called it "the most daring outfit Lord Snowdon has ever worn in public."

WAR INTENSIFIED IN 3 NATIONS

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — North Vietnamese troops and Communist guerrillas were reported today to have stepped up fighting in Laos, Cambodia and Burma.

In Vientiane, Gen. Udone Shananikone, Laotian armed forces chief of staff, reported North Vietnamese forces used Soviet-made rockets against a government post for the first time.

Cambodian government officials in Phnom Penh said today that at least five provinces have been placed on "war footing" because of the threat from roving bands of Communist guerrillas.

Burma's Gen. Ne Win in Rangoon disclosed an upsurge in fighting between government troops and insurgents who take sanctuary across the border in China.

Thailand also has reported increased Communist guerrilla activities recently along its Mekong River border with Laos.

RING TIGHTENS

Reds Tunnel To Khe Sanh

Times News Services

SAIGON — North Vietnamese troops today were tightening the ring around the key U.S. Marine bastion of Khe Sanh despite Friday's abortive raid in a bid to cut through the barbed wire perimeter.

North Viet troops have built zig-zag trenches and tunnels within 100 yards of the wire fences as a base to launch new ground attacks.

The U.S. is responding with air power.

In the area of one of the battles, in which South Vietnamese rangers at Khe Sanh reported killing 70 North Vietnamese Friday, U.S. B-52 bombers and smaller fighter-bombers kept up what has become the biggest air campaign of the war.

The B-52s aimed 750 tons of bombs in 10 raids Friday and today at North Vietnamese troops tunnelling toward the Khe Sanh combat base.

CLASH CLAIMS 203

In a clash on the Can Viet River, government forces reported killing 203 and said eight South Vietnamese were killed and 25 wounded.

A U.S. marine force, that came ashore from boats in the South China Sea more than a month ago for its operation in the Viet Cong stronghold area, ran into heavy fire Friday. Spokesmen said 36 guerrillas and 22 marines were killed in the day-long battle.

Just to the west of the Cau Viet Delta, U.S. marines reported killing 21 guerrillas with artillery after a Communist force of unknown size was spotted moving in the open two miles north of Con Thien.

In air raids on North Vietnam, navy Intruders attacked one of four vital highway bridges in the key port city of Haiphong and a cargo transfer and storage complex on the Red River, two miles southeast of the centre of Hanoi.

The Haiphong bridge attacked Friday is only one mile west of the centre of the city. Earlier this week, the Intruders attacked a yard in Haiphong, just west of the bridge.

Pilots followed radar to their targets in Friday's raids. They reported their bombs were on target but that darkness and overcast skies prevented a damage assessment.

Snoopers To Check Sleepers

TORONTO (CP) — A housing standards enforcement bylaw that would enable inspectors to check on who is sleeping in whose bedroom, was passed without argument Friday night by Toronto city council.

It allows city inspectors to check homes for long grass, torn linoleum flooring and a variety of required repairs.

One clause prohibits two unmarried persons of different sexes who are more than 10 years of age from sleeping in the same room.

June Rowlands, vice-president of the Association of Women Electors, who has urged the city for nine years to enforce housing standards, said common sense is essential to the bylaw's application.

She said the bylaw is designed to prevent overcrowding in low income homes and to force "slum landlords" to keep their properties neat.

"I think it is just about right," she said. "I'm sure the bylaw won't result in invasions of privacy."

Alderman Helen Johnston, who arrived at the meeting too late to vote on the bylaw, said in an interview that "it goes absolutely too far."

Taking particular exception to the bedroom clause, Mrs. Johnston said the bylaw was "unnecessary" and some of its provisions were "ridiculous."

The penalty for contravening any section of the new law can result in a $500 fine.

Harbor Board Won't Run Port: Bennett

'Ottawa Welcome As a Partner'

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

The Roberts Bank super-port will be an all-B.C. effort if Ottawa doesn't want to share it, Premier Bennett said Friday.

"I want to make it clear we are going to develop and run the port," the premier said in reaction to an Ottawa report that Transport Minister Hellyer had proposed the federal government do the job.

"We'll be glad to have them in as a partner," said Mr. Bennett. "And that includes the railroad into the port and everything."

The Ottawa report said Mr. Hellyer had proposed in a letter to the B.C. government that the National Harbors Board finance and operate the proposed port which is needed by 1970 to fufil a $650,000,000 coal contract with Japanese interests.

Mr. Bennett wouldn't say he had received such a letter but said he had been in correspondence with a number of federal ministers.

"As far as we're concerned the provincial government is going to develop Roberts Bank Port either on its own or preferably with the federal government as a partner," the premier said.

Act Not Yet Proclaimed

An act establishing a provincial harbor authority with power to borrow $25,000,000 was passed by the legislature last year but has not been proclaimed.

Mr. Bennett said Mr. Hellyer has shown interest in the port project where the previous transport minister Jack Pickersgill, did not.

The premier has said the province is willing to put $5,000,000 into a joint federal-provincial fund to get the port project started.

The coal deal was recently signed between Kaiser Steel Corporation and Japanese interests. Kaiser has taken over Crows Nest Industries Ltd. of Fernie, B.C., from where the coal will would be shipped to Japanese steel plants.

REPORTS from Paris indicate that Egyptian President Nasser is ready to negotiate with Israel, indirectly through a UN representative, in a bid to get talks rolling following the Middle East war.

BARROW, Alaska (AP) — A four-man British trans-Arctic expedition was reported in difficulty Friday on Arctic Ocean ice, which is breaking up about 60 miles northeast of this northern Alaska community.

Executions Are Murder, Britain Warns Rhodesia

LONDON (CP) — Britain warned Rhodesia in effect today that executioners of African prisoners will be regarded as murderers.

The Commonwealth office delivered the warnings in the light of a judicial ruling in Rhodesia that Ian Smith's minority government may hang more than 100 persons now under sentence of death in Rhodesian prisons.

Because of legal uncertainties there have been no executions in Rhodesia since the colony declared its independence from Britain in November, 1965, rather than give majority rule to the Negroes.

Three Rhodesian appeal judges Friday rejected an application by three Negroes, condemned to death for murder, to postpone their execution for fur months, while they appealed to the Privy Council in London.

They were convicted in 1965, before Rhodesia broke away, for a gasoline bomb attack on a car in which a white farmer was killed.

DROP MANY A-BOMBS —OR NONE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A leading nuclear expert said today any use of battlefield atomic weapons at Khe Sanh in South Vietnam would be ineffective unless employed in large numbers.

"Legislators and retired military officers who advocate the use of tactical nuclear weapons to save Khe Sanh are apparently unaware of the limited utility of these weapons in the Khe Sanh situation," said Dr. Ralph E. Lapp, former Manhattan Project scientist who now is a consultant in Washington.

BLAIBERG STILL MAKES PROGRESS

CAPE TOWN (Reuters) — Dentist Philip Blaiberg was still making good progress in Groota Schuur Hospital today, two months after his historic heart transplant operation.

"Phil's full of beans," his wife Eileen said today. "We are just waiting for the day when he can come home."

A decision whether Blaiberg can leave the hospital probably will be given soon after heart surgeon Professor Chris Barnard returns later this month from his present world tour.

ROME (AP)—Some 1,000 survivors of the Sicilian earthquake disaster besieged the Italian Parliament today, demanding more relief funds. The earthquake Jan. 15 killed 264 persons.

Romanians to Cut Red Ties If Soviet Attacks Pressed

BUDAPEST (CP) — Romanian sources warned today that if the Soviet Union and its followers continue criticizing Romania and China, Bucharest may refuse to co-operate with some Communist nations altogether.

The Romanian Communist party's central committee linked the walkout of the Romanian delegates from the world Communist meeting in the Hungarian capital Thursday to a threat that Romania might boycott a Soviet-bloc summit meeting in Sofia, Bulgaria, next week.

However, the sources suggested that if Romania attended the meeting it would again tell Communist leaders that it could brook no more internal criticism.

Zoltan Komocsin, chief of the host Hungarian delegation, apparently ignored the Romanian warning. He assailed both China and Romania in a speech today by charging that they are deviating from the policy of "proletarian internationalism."

He said this was the main reason "for the crumbling of unity" in the world Communist movement.

Komoscin, in turning to Roumania, called it unacceptable for a Communist party "to present its anti-Soviet attitude as a piece of evidence for its own independence."

An editorial in the official Hungarian Communist party newspaper today said "the interests of unity . . . require that the Romanian party revise its attitude and return to the joint work."

Romanian delegate Paul Niculescu-Mizil stalked out of the Budapest meeting charging that Soviet party ideologist Mikhail A. Suslov was trying to force the Kremlin's views on other delegates.

Niculescu-Mizil and other Romanians also were incensed by the meeting's refusal to disavow the Syrian Communist party's charge that Romania was pro-Israel, and by attacks on China.

Endorsing the walkout of its delegates, the Romanian party said that "continued participation in the consultative meeting would have meant accepting the promotion of practices and methods of condemning other parties, or imposing the will of some parties on other parties."

LOLLIPOPS COME IN THE MAIL

(See story Page 39.)

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — A wrapped lollipop accompanied each letter to 262 members of Parliament, chiding MPs for their conduct during the defeat of the government tax bill on Feb. 19 and this week's vote of confidence in the Pearson administration.

Peter Wilhelmson, head of the history department at St. Catharines Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, said Friday night he edited the letter, composed by Grade 13 students and took out some strong words.

But he said he felt the students should have a chance to express themselves.

The mimeographed letter read:

"We are writing as concerned young Canadians. The events beginning Feb. 19, 1968, clearly show that the behavior of many MPs leaves much to be desired.

"In a country where politics are generally viewed with contempt by youth, the latest activities of many of our elected representatives offer very few alternatives.

"We are disappointed in the extent of unwarranted absenteeism, the placing of party loyalties ahead of loyalty to the people of Canada and a general lack of responsible conduct leading to a misinterpretation of the mood of the Canadian people.

"We are worried about the great number of personal attacks that have unfortunately been too much a part of the latest crisis.

"We hope in our way that our little gift will help to overcome this situation which we realize often occurs out of emotion or party loyalty."

Randy Olling, a student, said 30 pupils drafted the letter. The idea to send it to MPs occurred during a history class. Stuart Beckett started the letter and other students voiced their opinions.

It cost $2 for envelopes and $2.20 for paper. Letters mailed to MPs are postage free.

Victoria Daily Times
VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, MARCH 2, 1968—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

This our home province has drawn a good many slurs and scoldings over its official attitude toward constitutional change, and though some of them are no doubt deserved, I for one am inclined to resent the toplofty tone in which they are uttered.

Here, for instance, is a letter received last week from a friend in Toronto, who wants to know "what on earth you people are up to out there?" He encloses a clipping of a wire-service story on last month's constitutional conference.

What we're doing is living our lives as best we can, keeping a sometimes-puzzled eye on the federal chop and change, and generally conducting ourselves in routine Canadian fashion.

Despite our premier's rather curious attitude toward Ottawa, I don't think enough of us to crowd one of our once-again-operative dogwood ferries would even remately consider opting out of Confederation.

Also, I find myself irked by the murky ignorance of the Canada beyond Lakehead that prompts the guy who wrote me to enclose a news story that came in word for word over our own efficient teletypes.

Just where and what does he think British Columbia is . . . an outpost cut off from modern communications?

Eventually, I hope, the gap in understanding that exists and has always existed between East and Far West will be very much narrower than it is today. But at our closest, I suspect that we will still retain certain differences imposed by our history and our environment.

★

Goegraphically, there is the fact of the mountains, the same mighty cordillera that makes the Californian an American of a different sort than the Bostonian or the New Yorker.

In terms of travel, the mountains no longer separate us so desperately as once they did from the East. It's an easy air-flip from the coast to Toronto or Montreal.

But whether as native or adopted British Columbians, we do live on the opposite side of the continental spine, in a land which a Canadian general just after Pearl Harbor saw as an expendable buffer stop between his Canada and the our then enemy.

We don't even do much holidaying in each other's preserves. How many California cars did you see last summer, and how many with Ontario, Quebec, or Maritime plates?

Another difference lies in British Columbia beginnings, and any Easterner who would begin to understand us should ponder this fact.

Our first-comers, and virtually all our subsequent population until a railway link with the East was completed in 1886, arrived by sea.

Had settlement been a leisurely extension from Upper and Lower Canada, the story might be different. But the East was, for a long time in our growing, remote almost as a distant star. Here in Victoria we were closer by far to the San Francisco through which B.C.'s first great population surge was funneled than we were to Toronto.

These newcomers brought many tongues with them, but no dual language problem.

To the East, we have always been a vague, rather unreal land.

"B.C.?" I can remember a denizen of the Canadian heartland asking me. "That's somewhere out past Saskatchewan, isn't it?"

An extreme case: but it mirrors the polite vagueness with which Easterners acknowledge the existence of this province. We have a tippling parrot that figured in a will, comical hairy giants in our hills, and Mr. Bennett.

I cannot in honesty deny that we are occasionally out of step with the rest of Canada. But the West is much more than an appendage loosely attached to the Eastern civilization, and the frequent suspicion that we are so regarded does nothing to help strengthen our accord.

I do not offer this explanation as an excuse for insularism, but to point out that understanding between East and West is a two-way street.

'We'll Use Force To End Sit-In' At Legislature

By PETE LOUDON

A proposed "sit-in" at the Legislative Buildings by a group of mothers on welfare would be met by force, Public Works Minister W. N. Chant said today.

"I am not making any threats, but we would call on the police to remove them and lay charges if necessary," he said.

W. N. CHANT
. . . 'no threat; but'

The minister, who represents Victoria constituency, was commenting following the announced decision of the Victoria Low Income Group to protest welfare rates, in the B.C. House.

At a Friday meeting, the group, mostly deserted wives and mothers, said they would quietly converge on the legislative chambers and demand consideration of their situation.

They said they would refuse to leave until their demands are met.

"We'll sit there all night and if we're ejected, then we'll sit in the corridors," one member was quoted as stating.

"We're prepared if necessary, to go to jail to get a decent life for our children."

Mr. Chant said any attempt by the women to remain in the buildings beyond the hours when they are open to the public would constitute trespass.

He said the city police would be asked to evict them and charges would be laid "if they acted in a manner contrary to the welfare of the public."

Mr. Chant added, "There is no great problem about it. The law is quite simple."

Mr. Chant's department has charge of construction, maintenance and operation of all provincial government buildings.

MRS. DONNA LANGSTAFF
. . . 'all been active'

'. . . The Mothers Are Desperate'

Reg Clarkson, executive secretary to the organized welfare family group, said he had not favored a "sit-in" but held that picketing would be useful.

"But the mothers are so desperate, they are determined to bring their case home."

He said the women's reaction to Mr. Chant's statement concerning eviction and charges is "That's okay with us. We'll stand all night on the steps if we have to."

The group will meet at First United Church hall Tuesday at 8 p.m. to plan the demonstration. MLAs are being invited.

Tentative date for the demonstration is March 15, said Mr. Clarkson.

He said the welfare mothers main aim is establishment by the government of an independent board of arbitration to review present welfare rates.

"The failure of the administration to even consult outside experts on the minimum needs of these people is one of the most damning commentaries.

"Welfare Minister Campbell doesn't have on his staff one technical employee trained to determine the income level required for normal, healthy living."

Mrs. Donna Langstaff, president of the group of angry mothers said government nutritionist in the health department has set $30.14 as the minimum amount needed to feed a boy of 13 for a month.

Teen-Agers Robbed of Opportunities

"We get $25 a month for each child," she added.

Mr. Clarkson, who is a professional welfare worker, said a study in Los Angeles showed that teen-age welfare cases facing similar lacks don't progress as they should in school and often are drop-outs. Inadequate rates rob them of academic opportunities, he said.

The Friday meeting considered, then shelved plans to picket churches which, it was felt, have failed to meet their Christian responsibility toward those on welfare. Another proposal which was set aside would have seen members picketing homes of persons responsible for setting rates.

Mr. Clarkson said the meeting showed how desperate the welfare mothers have become and how hard is the task of trying to educate the public to the situation.

"How can we show people how the poor are forced to live?" he asked.

Mrs. Langstaff said some members had feared that demonstrations might cost members of the group the little they now receive. But she felt the opposite was true.

"We've all been active and we've made demands and been listened to and received consideration."

Pilot 'Deadsticks' Into Highway Traffic

For Campbell River pilot Jim Higginson it was just one thing after another Friday night.

The weather forecast was good when he and passenger Gordon Benner of Nanaimo left Campbell River on their way to Nanaimo and Anacortes.

But clouds and fog crept up behind the Piper PA-12 Super Cruiser and for two hours the little plane circled near Courtenay while the pilot tried to spot where he was.

"It was sort of nerve-wracking," Higginson, 22, said today. "They were pretty long hours."

With his fuel almost gone he sent out a "mayday" call and Comox airbase tried to guide him in.

●

"That's when my radio started acting up, of all things."

The pilot could transmit but he couldn't hear through the static.

Then he had the brightly-lit airbase in sight and was headed that way when the plane's gas ran out, the engine coughed and died.

"The highway was right below me but there were cars coming my way."

So he banked the plane around and glided to a "deadstick" landing ahead of the traffic.

There was no damage and no one was hurt but Higginson did admit his nerves were a bit worn by then.

●

It proved a longer night still while the pilot's brother drove to join him from Port Alberni, he went to the RCAF station to file a report and then had to chase around for a supply of fuel.

Higginson got airborne this morning with RCMP officers holding back traffic at one end of his makeshift runway and a firetruck at the other.

But his passenger completed the journey to Nanaimo by car.

Higginson is an engineer with MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. in Campbell River but is moving to the U.S. where he hopes to become a commercial airline pilot.

Ask The Times

Q. Which is Canada's national sport, lacrosse or hockey? D.T.

A. The matter has never been resolved. Reports in Hansard, the record of Parliament, indicate that a bill introduced by R. W. Prittie, member for Burnaby-Richmond, disappeared after second reading June 21, 1965. On Jan. 16, 1967, Mr. Prittie directed a question to Prime Minister Lester Pearson, asking if the government had any intention of bringing in a centennial-year bill to decide the national sport. Mr. Pearson replied: "I think we should have a national summer game and a national winter game." And that appears to be the last mention of the topic.

Ottawa Asked To Help East Indians

Victoria presbytery of the United Church of Canada has called on the federal government to ease restrictions on the immigration of East Indians from Kenya to Canada.

Presbytery passed a resolution to this effect after discussing the plight of East Indians living in Kenya who are being replaced in business and industry by Kenyans under the goverment's new nationalistic policies.

Many East Indians have sought refuge in Britain, but entry is now restricted under the new Commonwealth Immigration Act, which became law Friday.

United Church clergymen attending a special meeting of the Victoria presbytery agreed unanimously the Canadian government should assist East Indians in Kenya by admitting them to Canada.

(The new British Immigration Act had a stormy passage through both Houses of Parliament in London.)

OVERHEAD LINES DEAD

Gorge Parkway Wiring Now Fully Underground

The underground wiring project on the Gorge parkway has reached its final stages.

Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis said installations are almost complete between Gorgeview and Admirals — a distance of almost one mile.

Overhead wires were deenergized and old wooden poles will be coming down "shortly," said the reeve. They are being replaced by modern metal poles bearing mercury vapor lamps.

The project cost about $105,000 and was paid for by government funds under the Capital Improvement District Commission.

New Car Park Opens Tuesday

The city's newest parking lot will open Tuesday.

The lot, with an 84-car capacity, will open on the north side of Johnson Street, between Douglas and Blanshard.

City traffic engineer David Campbell said Friday work had progressed faster than expected and the lot will open a month ahead of schedule.

Esquimalt Water Hopes Down the Drain

Reeve Misses His Big Chance

Esquimalt missed its big chance to get into the water distribution business Friday afternoon.

It was only a small matter financially, but with Victoria the lone bidder for the right to serve the old View Royal Panhandle with domestic water it was no trouble for the Greater Victoria Water District Board to arrive at a decision.

Panhandle residents recently voted in favor of becoming part of the municipality of Esquimalt.

UP FOR GRABS

As a result the water district, by law, can no longer be responsible for the sale of domestic water to residents.

The small part of the over-all system was put up for the grabs Friday with the bidding open to Victoria (which retails water to Esquimalt) or Esquimalt council.

The board agreed to transfer the distribution system to Victoria after Mayor Hugh Stephen had asked if any other municipality had asked for the right to provide the service.

REEVE ABSENT

It has long been a bone of contention that Esquimalt alone among the four core municipalities of Oak Bay, Saanich, Victoria and Esquimalt makes no profit from retail water sales.

Reeve Ray Bryant was absent from the meeting.

In a report to the board prior to the vote chief water commissioner Ron Upward pointed out the change in administration in the Panhandle prevented the district from continuing to supply water.

"So the district must transfer the water distribution system in this area either to the city of Victoria or the municipality of Esquimalt," Mr. Upward stated in a written report.

Total cost of transfer, which Victoria will now pay to the district, is $3,711.

The area involved lies between Craigflower Road and the Gorge waters, Admirals Road and Shirley Road.

'NORMAL SATURDAY' ON FERRIES

B.C. Ferries reported a "normal Saturday" this morning, with no overloads.

Salt Spring Island ferry was busy, but once again no one was left behind on any trip.

When the 20-ship fleet resumed operations Friday after a 13-day strike, traffic was so heavy that 17 cars and 14 trucks were left behind on the first mainland sailing.

WARMER, SUNNIER, DRIER

Nothing Normal About February

All that sun in the past few weeks hasn't been fooling you — February was warmer, drier, sunnier and less windy than normal.

The weatherman's beneficial hindsight also tells us the mean temperature for the month was 4.4 degrees above normal, at 45.8 degrees.

And the 27th of the month saw a record 61.2. The highest previous temperature was 60.1 on Feb. 8 of 1943.

The minimum of 33.9 degrees on the 16th was 6.7 above normal for the month.

No snow fell, making the recorded snowfall 2.3 inches less than usual and the rainfall was .29 inches less than the normal rate at 2.70 inches.

And we had almost 2½ days more sun than expected — 64.6 hours above normal at 161.3 hours.

(SUN)DAY PROMISED FOR A LITTLE WHILE

Victoria should see some sun by Sunday morning.

A clearing trend this afternoon and evening will get rid of the cloud cover—but only long enough to get off to church or out in the boat.

For another disturbance predicted by weatherman Allan McQuarrie will bring clouds over the area again late Sunday.

Some showers are expected Sunday night and Monday. Temperatures will remain mild—43 tonight and 52 Sunday—and winds will be light, about 15 mph from the southeast.

THIS IS A TYPICAL SCHOOL DROP-OUT

'Frank, Happy-Go-Lucky; Non-Conforming'

By DON VIPOND

What sort of people are school drop-outs?

An American educator told local guidance teachers here Friday that research shows youngsters who leave school early are not necessarily short on brains.

Conan S. Edwards, director of secondary education in Madison, Wisconsin, was one of 59 speakers in the Professional Day program presented by Greater Victoria's 1,200 teachers.

He told a workshop at Oak Bay senior secondary school that a University of Wisconsin survey of 21,000 drop-outs showed 60 per cent had IQs average or above.

"So the feeling the drop-out is of poor ability is over-simplified at least," he said.

Research at the University of Pennsylvania which compared a group of drop-outs with a group of youngsters who stayed in school showed there was no major difference in such things as ego, ability to meet people or parents' occupations.

Studies show the drop-out tends towards a frank, happy-go-lucky nature, a person who is deliberately non-conforming but definitely not disinterested.

Across the U.S. the drop-out rate averages 30 per cent, said Mr. Edwards. A variety of supplementary training programs at Madison have cut the rate there to 2½ per cent.

Guidance, said the speaker, means any and all efforts to help the youngster find himself.

Students are the product of their heritage and of their environment and teacher councillors should concentrate on environment.

Children at school face pressures from parents to do well, from the economy to earn the accepted qualifications for a job and from society on a number of revolutionary issues, he said.

If teachers crush a student's ego, he loses his self-possession and in turn can become a loss to society.

Mr. Edwards and several participants were unanimous in condemning parents' misguided efforts in directing many unsuited children into the academic education stream.

Research shows four children out of five are not going to enter a profession, said Mr. Edwards.

Yet many children are pushed down the wrong academic path for them because their parents are convinced of social standing value.

Hubby Is A Dandy

LONDON (AP) — Even Carnaby Street was taken aback today by Lord Snowdon's latest fashion fancy—a vivid, striped suit that made him look like a regency dandy with accents from the era of Bonnie and Clyde.

For every designer who said "smashing," there was one to mutter "shocking."

•

One called the suit a nightmare, but kinder souls said Snowdon certainly was a snappy dresser.

Princess Margaret's 37-year-old husband was turned out in his symphony in stripes at Heathrow Airport Friday when the royal couple flew out for a vacation on the Caribbean isle of Barbados.

•

The outfit consisted of a tight-waisted, knee-length brown frock coat with broad gangster-style white stripes running up through a "highwayman's collar." Trousers, of course, matched. And under the coat was a green and orange striped shirt.

•

"Wham," said London's Daily Sketch. "The outfit hit passengers straight between the eyes."

Fashion writer Hardy Clarke called it "the most daring outfit Lord Snowdon has ever worn in public."

WAR INTENSIFIED IN 3 NATIONS

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — North Vietnamese troops and Communist guerrillas were reported today to have stepped up fighting in Laos, Cambodia and Burma.

In Vientiane, Gen. Udone Shananikone, Laotian armed forces chief of staff, reported North Vietnamese forces used Soviet-made rockets against a government post for the first time.

Cambodian government officials in Phnom Penh said today that at least five provinces have been placed on "war footing" because of the threat from roving bands of Communist guerrillas.

Burma's Gen. Ne Win in Rangoon disclosed an upsurge in fighting between government troops and insurgents who take sanctuary across the border in China.

Thailand also has reported increased Communist guerrilla activities recently along its Mekong River border with Laos.

RING TIGHTENS

Reds Tunnel To Khe Sanh

Times News Services

SAIGON — North Vietnamese troops today were tightening the ring around the key U.S. Marine bastion of Khe Sanh despite Friday's abortive raid in a bid to cut through the barbed wire perimeter.

North Viet troops have built zig-zag trenches and tunnels within 100 yards of the wire fences as a base to launch new ground attacks.

The U.S. is responding with air power.

In the area of one of the battles, in which South Vietnamese rangers at Khe Sanh reported killing 70 North Vietnamese Friday, U.S. B-52 bombers and smaller fighter-bombers kept up what has become the biggest air campaign of the war.

The B-52s aimed 750 tons of bombs in 10 raids Friday and today at North Vietnamese troops tunnelling toward the Khe Sanh combat base.

CLASH CLAIMS 203

In a clash on the Can Viet River, government forces reported killing 203 and said eight South Vietnamese were killed and 25 wounded.

A U.S. marine force, that came ashore from boats in the South China Sea more than a month ago for its operation in the Viet Cong stronghold area, ran into heavy fire Friday. Spokesmen said 36 guerrillas and 22 marines were killed in the day-long battle.

Just to the west of the Cau Viet Delta, U.S. marines reported killing 21 guerrillas with artillery after a Communist force of unknown size was spotted moving in the open two miles north of Con Thien.

In air raids on North Vietnam, navy Intruders attacked one of four vital highway bridges in the key port city of Haiphong and a cargo transfer and storage complex on the Red River, two miles southeast of the centre of Hanoi.

The Haiphong bridge attacked Friday is only one mile west of the centre of the city. Earlier this week, the Intruders attacked a yard in Haiphong, just west of the bridge.

Pilots followed radar to their targets in Friday's raids. They reported their bombs were on target but that darkness and overcast skies prevented a damage assessment.

Snoopers To Check Sleepers

TORONTO (CP) — A housing standards enforcement bylaw that would enable inspectors to check on who is sleeping in whose bedroom, was passed without argument Friday night by Toronto city council.

It allows city inspectors to check homes for long grass, torn linoleum flooring and a variety of required repairs.

One clause prohibits two unmarried persons of different sexes who are more than 10 years of age from sleeping in the same room.

June Rowlands, vice-president of the Association of Women Electors, who has urged the city for nine years to enforce housing standards, said common sense is essential to the bylaw's application.

She said the bylaw is designed to prevent overcrowding in low income homes and to force "slum landlords" to keep their properties neat.

"I think it is just about right," she said. "I'm sure the bylaw won't result in invasions of privacy."

Alderman Helen Johnston, who arrived at the meeting too late to vote on the bylaw, said in an interview that "it goes absolutely too far."

Taking particular exception to the bedroom clause, Mrs. Johnston said the bylaw was "unnecessary" and some of its provisions were "ridiculous."

The penalty for contravening any section of the new law can result in a $500 fine.

Harbor Board Won't Run Port: Bennett

'Ottawa Welcome As a Partner'

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

The Roberts Bank super-port will be an all-B.C. effort if Ottawa doesn't want to share it, Premier Bennett said Friday.

"I want to make it clear we are going to develop and run the port," the premier said in reaction to an Ottawa report that Transport Minister Hellyer had proposed the federal government do the job.

"We'll be glad to have them in as a partner," said Mr. Bennett. "And that includes the railroad into the port and everything."

The Ottawa report said Mr. Hellyer had proposed in a letter to the B.C. government that the National Harbors Board finance and operate the proposed port which is needed by 1970 to fufil a $650,000,000 coal contract with Japanese interests.

Mr. Bennett wouldn't say he had received such a letter but said he had been in correspondence with a number of federal ministers.

"As far as we're concerned the provincial government is going to develop Roberts Bank Port either on its own or preferably with the federal government as a partner," the premier said.

Act Not Yet Proclaimed

An act establishing a provincial harbor authority with power to borrow $25,000,000 was passed by the legislature last year but has not been proclaimed.

Mr. Bennett said Mr. Hellyer has shown interest in the port project where the previous transport minister Jack Pickersgill, did not.

The premier has said the province is willing to put $5,000,000 into a joint federal-provincial fund to get the port project started.

The coal deal was recently signed between Kaiser Steel Corporation and Japanese interests. Kaiser has taken over Crows Nest Industries Ltd. of Fernie, B.C., from where the coal will would be shipped to Japanese steel plants.

REPORTS from Paris indicate that Egyptian President Nasser is ready to negotiate with Israel, indirectly through a UN representative, in a bid to get talks rolling following the Middle East war.

BARROW, Alaska (AP) — A four-man British trans-Arctic expedition was reported in difficulty Friday on Arctic Ocean ice, which is breaking up about 60 miles northeast of this northern Alaska community.

Executions Are Murder, Britain Warns Rhodesia

LONDON (CP) — Britain warned Rhodesia in effect today that executioners of African prisoners will be regarded as murderers.

The Commonwealth office delivered the warnings in the light of a judicial ruling in Rhodesia that Ian Smith's minority government may hang more than 100 persons now under sentence of death in Rhodesian prisons.

Because of legal uncertainties there have been no executions in Rhodesia since the colony declared its independence from Britain in November, 1965, rather than give majority rule to the Negroes.

Three Rhodesian appeal judges Friday rejected an application by three Negroes, condemned to death for murder, to postpone their execution for four months, while they appealed to the Privy Council in London.

They were convicted in 1965, before Rhodesia broke away, for a gasoline bomb attack on a car in which a white farmer was killed.

DROP MANY A-BOMBS —OR NONE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A leading nuclear expert said today any use of battlefield atomic weapons at Khe Sanh in South Vietnam would be ineffective unless employed in large numbers.

"Legislators and retired military officers who advocate the use of tactical nuclear weapons to save Khe Sanh are apparently unaware of the limited utility of these weapons in the Khe Sanh situation," said Dr. Ralph E. Lapp, former Manhattan Project scientist who now is a consultant in Washington.

BLAIBERG STILL MAKES PROGRESS

CAPE TOWN (Reuters) — Dentist Philip Blaiberg was still making good progress in Groota Schuur Hospital today, two months after his historic heart transplant operation.

"Phil's full of beans," his wife Eileen said today. "We are just waiting for the day when he can come home."

A decision whether Blaiberg can leave the hospital probably will be given soon after heart surgeon Professor Chris Barnard returns later this month from his present world tour.

Romanians to Cut Red Ties If Soviet Attacks Pressed

BUDAPEST (CP) — Romanian sources warned today that if the Soviet Union and its followers continue criticizing Romania and China, Bucharest may refuse to co-operate with some Communist nations altogether.

The Romanian Communist party's central committee linked the walkout of the Romanian delegates from the world Communist meeting in the Hungarian capital Thursday to a threat that Romania might boycott a Soviet-bloc summit meeting in Sofia, Bulgaria, next week.

However, the sources suggested that if Romania attended the meeting it would again tell Communist leaders that it could brook no more internal criticism.

Zoltan Komocsin, chief of the host Hungarian delegation, apparently ignored the Romanian warning. He assailed both China and Romania in a speech today by charging that they are deviating from the policy of "proletarian internationalism."

He said this was the main reason "for the crumbling of unity" in the world Communist movement.

Komoscin, in turning to Roumania, called it unacceptable for a Communist party "to present its anti-Soviet attitude as a piece of evidence for its own independence."

An editorial in the official Hungarian Communist party newspaper today said "the interests of unity . . . require that the Romanian party revise its attitude and return to the joint work."

Romanian delegate Paul Niculescu-Mizil stalked out of the Budapest meeting charging that Soviet party ideologist Mikhail A. Suslov was trying to force the Kremlin's views on other delegates.

Niculescu-Mizil and other Romanians also were incensed by the meeting's refusal to disavow the Syrian Communist party's charge that Romania was pro-Israel, and by attacks on China.

Endorsing the walkout of its delegates, the Romanian party said that "continued participation in the consultative meeting would have meant accepting the promotion of practices and methods of condemning other parties, or imposing the will of some parties on other parties."

LOLLIPOPS COME IN THE MAIL

(See story Page 39.)

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — A wrapped lollipop accompanied each letter to 262 members of Parliament, chiding MPs for their conduct during the defeat of the government tax bill on Feb. 19 and this week's vote of confidence in the Pearson administration.

Peter Wilhelmson, head of the history department at St. Catharines Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, said Friday night he edited the letter, composed by Grade 13 students and took out some strong words.

But he said he felt the students should have a chance to express themselves.

The mimeographed letter read:

"We are writing as concerned young Canadians. The events beginning Feb. 19, 1968, clearly show that the behavior of many MPs leaves much to be desired.

"In a country where politics are generally viewed with contempt by youth, the latest activities of many of our elected representatives offer very few alternatives.

"We are disappointed in the extent of unwarranted absenteeism, the placing of party loyalties ahead of loyalty to the people of Canada and a general lack of responsible conduct leading to a misinterpretation of the mood of the Canadian people.

"We are worried about the great number of personal attacks that have unfortunately been too much a part of the latest crisis.

"We hope in our way that our little gift will help to overcome this situation which we realize often occurs out of emotion or party loyalty."

Randy Olling, a student, said 30 pupils drafted the letter. The idea to send it to MPs occurred during a history class. Stuart Beckett started the letter and other students voiced their opinions.

It cost $2 for envelopes and $2.20 for paper. Letters mailed to MPs are postage free.

MB Shows 15% Drop In Profits

MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., Canada's largest integrated forest company, today reported 1967 income was up about 13 per cent at $540,600,000 but reported a drop in profit of 15 per cent to $36,200,000.

The interim report confirmed the estimate made in a Jan. 24 letter to shareholders, announcing a cut in the dividend rate to 25 cents from 30 cents.

At that time, J. V. H. Clyne, chairman and chief executive officer, estimated profits would be $36,000,000, down from $42,460,000 in 1966.

The per-share earnings were $1.74 as compared with $2.04 the previous year.

Mr. Clyne said the reason for decreased profits was the uncertainty of markets and heavy interest charges on projects not yet contributing to earnings.

He said the annual report will be ready about mid-April.

LAND FOR LEASE—20 ACRES
UNIVERSITY OF VICTORIA

The University of Victoria will consider offers from persons interested in leasing approximately 26 acres of land for a period not exceeding three years. The lease may or may not be renewed, depending upon the need for University expansion or other purposes.

The site offered is the former CJVI property bounded by Cedar Hill Cross Road to the South, Crestview Road to the east, the Municipal Boundary to the north and Haro Road to the west. The lands offered for lease do not include the buildings, yard, gardens or the apple orchard.

This is not a formal tender; consideration will be given to the proposed use of the lands, lease rental and other factors which may be compatible with the surrounding area. The highest or any offer not necessarily accepted.

Applicants are requested to give full details on proposed use, lease rental payments and other related information.

Written submissions should be made not later than March 12th, 1968, and forwarded to:

BUSINESS VIEWS

Back to School For Sales Staff

By AB KENT
Business Editor

School bells are ringing again for a local investment firm, thanks to its new alliance with the New York Stock Exchange.

Kent

This is the Victoria branch of Nesbitt Thomson and Co. Ltd., which with other branches of the company across Canada, has sent its manager and sales staff back to the books to bone up on American securities law, customs of trading on the Big Board and the rules and regulations of NYSE.

Nesbitt Thomson recently became the first Canadian investment firm in more than 30 years to qualify for a seat on the New York exchange, for which it paid $450,000.

As a member in good standing, the firm must govern its trading in U.S. securities according to the standards and bylaws of the exchange, and within the framework of U.S. Securities Exchange Commission regulations.

So the salesmen—already qualified for dealing in Canadian securities by virtue of courses set by the Canadian Investment Dealers' Association, and licensed by provincial securities commissions—must add to their knowledge and qualifications by studying NYSE texts.

Some will have little additional study to do, being familiar with trading U.S. securities through American brokers.

★ ★ ★

In any case they get six months to become re-accredited, little enough time, some think, to digest the volumes of material sent to them.

For branch managers the course may be much tougher, being oriented somewhat differently, and only about one month's study has been allowed.

NYSE exams cover such areas as odd lot trading procedure, commodity trading, puts and calls trading (a variation of futures trading), capital gains, short sales and taxation factors.

"The IDA courses are pretty comprehensive," said Nesbitt Thomson manager Warren McFadyan. "They give a concentrated knowledge of the financial community in Canada.

"The difference is in the size and breadth of the U.S. financial community, and the greater volume of activity," he said.

The quality of marine service stations is taking a turn for the better, as the photo right demonstrates.

Farmer Construction Ltd. is building a 60-foot ranch style building with cedar plank siding and hand-split shake roof for B-A Oil Co. at Van Isle Marina, where it will be towed on its scow foundation in a few weeks.

Waterfront watchers have followed its progress with interest, aroused by the appearance of what looks for all the world like a modern urban bungalow at the end of CPR wharves on Belleville Street.

The image is heightened by sliding glass doors enclosing a sales and customer area which fronts living quarters for an attendant.

The $50,000 station will be moored in a year-round location and be open for service 24 hours a day. From shore-based storage connected by pipelines, boats will be able to get diesel oil, gasoline, outboard mix and stove oil. Greases and lubricating oils will be stored aboard.

Besides public washrooms the features will include showers, bait, ice and tackle sales, a small workshop and 180-degree access.

To provide finances for improvement of three vessels, Harbor Ferries Ltd., of Vancouver, is offering units of two classes of capital stock.

The company is making available 50,000 A shares and 50,000 B shares in units consisting of one of each at a price of $10 per unit, subject to a 70-cent commission.

This will net $465,000 if all are subscribed, the money to be used for:

Improvements to the vessels Hollyburn, Harbor Princess and Scenic ($100,000), work on the first two given to McKay-Cormack shipyard. Hollyburn is nearly finished and Harbor Princess is to arrive here next week. Where Scenic will be handled has not been decided;

Retirement of term debt for the purchase of vessels ($209,144); retirement of bank loan ($40,439); working capital and funds for securing new capital assets ($115,417).

Formal closing of the coking coal deal between Crows Nest Industries and Kaiser Coal Ltd. was completed in Vancouver Thursday. Kaiser expects to operate the mines at Michel and Natal at about the current rate of production.

Concurrently, Kaiser will develop the coal properties to prepare for long-term commitment of 45 million tons of coal for Japan. By fall 1969 it is hoped to have stripping advanced to 200,000 tons a month, building up to 4 million tons a year by April, 1970.

Record Year For Cargoes At Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP — Foreign shipments through the Port of Vancouver during 1967 reached a record 13,125,413 tons, it has been reported.

Exports totalled 11,153,269 tons, imports 1,972,144 tons.

The annual shipping report of the Vancouver Merchants' Exchange said the number of deepsea vessels entering port totalled 1,693, based on one call per voyage, but not including return calls by the same ship in the same voyage.

Total number of all vessels, deepsea and coastal, was 21,015.

Grain shipments in 1967 reached 194,189,096 bushels, including 122,500,000 bushels to the Orient and 24,700,000 to Europe.

Canada Cuts Losses In Foreign Reserves

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's foreign exchange reserves cut their losses in February as speculation against the Canadian dollar weakened.

A month-end statement Friday revealed that support for the dollar cost the reserves $113,400,000 during the month, which was described by Finance Minister Sharp as "quite a modest reduction." The loss was $350,000,000 in January.

There is official hope here the exchange market will soon turn around in the dollar's favor, given a successful new revenue measure in Parliament and an improved seasonal swing in Canada's balance of payments.

At first glance Canada's reserve position actually appeared stronger on Feb. 29 than on Jan. 31 because of this week's repatriation of assets Canada held in the International Monetary Fund.

The total at Feb. 29 was announced as $2,490,000,000 in U.S. funds. The comparable total Jan. 31 was $2,418,400,000, representing reserves of gold and U.S. dollars plus Canada's creditor position in the fund.

The Feb. 29 figure, however, includes $185,000,000 representing a drawing from the fund equivalent to Canada's gold quota in the IMF. It is a net addition to the reserves and is repayable in three to five years.

Without this boost, Canada would have had $2,305,000,000 in the reserves, which is $113,400,000 less than the comparable total of $2,418,400,000 a month earlier.

Past statistics show that the first three months of the year are usaully times of weakness in Canada's transactions with other countries, involving some loss of reserves.

In each of the last two years, for example, the reserves showed losses of about $55,000,000 at the end of February, or about half this year's reduction.

The exchange reserves, made up of gold and U.S. dollars, perform a balancing function when demand for Canadian dollars cnnnot be met by the supply at a price close to the official exchange rate of 92½ cents in terms of U.S. funds.

The kind of speculation evident in January and February is a selling pressure anticipating that the dollar cannot be maintained at its existing rate.

Neither the government, nor Parliament, should take any action that would weaken confidence in the Canadian economy, said Mr. Sharp.

Parliament would soon be tested on this responsibility, the finance minister said in an apparent reference to tax measures he hopes to bring in to replace revenue lost by the Feb. 19 defeat of his earlier tax bill.

Reuther Calls Labor 'Summit'

DETROIT (AP) — Auto Workers President Walter Reuther has called a private caucus to lay before other union chiefs his bitter charges against AFL-CIO President George Meany's leadership of American labor.

For more than a year, Reuther has been describing that leadership as "undemocratic," "complacent," "vegetating" and "stagnant."

"I want to talk with you about the difference between the Auto Workers and the AFL-CIO," Reuther said in telegrams inviting several union presidents to the caucus in New York March 8.

Reuther appears nearing a decision on whether to pull his 1,500,000-member Auto Workers Union out of the 14,000,000-member AFL-CIO in what would be a major schism in labor's ranks.

Reuther and his Auto Workers Executive Board are meeting this weekend in Detroit, where union sources say Reuther may demand a special AFL-CIO convention or a meeting of the presidents of its 128 affiliated unions to discuss his demands for reform and "revitalization" of the labor federation.

The New York caucus called by Reuther mystified many labor leaders, and some union presidents were notable for their absence on Reuther's invitation list.

Some speculated Reuther was calling a caucus of former unions of the CIO, which Reuther headed before the merger with Meany's AFL.

PRECEDES CONVENTION

The New York meeting precedes the March 11 opening of the convention in Washington of the AFL-CIO's Industrial Union Department, Reuther's last power base in the federation. He resigned as an AFL-CIO vice-president and all other federation posts more than a year ago.

The Industrial Union Department the last year virtually liquidated long-standing reserves of more than $2,000,000.

The money has gone for organizing drives and strike assistance to other unions while the Auto Workers cut off their once substantial financial contributions to the department.

'High Rates Discourage Home Buying'

MONTREAL (CP) — Frank E. Case, president of Montreal Trust Co., has warned that mortgage rates of 8½ to 9 per cent are discouraging young families from buying homes.

"With the total population in the 20-35 age group increasing in Canada, this is a matter of real concern to trust companies where much fiduciary work involves the real estate business," he told the company's annual meeting.

Mr. Case also made reference to revisions of the Bank Act, saying it put chartered banks in a position to compete more actively for term deposits and savings accounts. It also gave them a foothold into mortgage lending.

Asked how long interest rates would remain at present levels, he replied: "When investors are satisfied that labor and management can co-operate to keep productivity and wages within some reasonable relationship, and are also convicned that governments at all levels are operating according to sound fiscal principles, only then will interest rates show any marked decline."

$27.6 MILLION DEFICIT REPORTED BY OTTAWA

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government ran up a deficit of $27,600,000 in its January financial operations, bringing the deficit for the first 10 months of the fiscal year to $141,200,000, Finance Minister Sharp said Friday in his monthly report.

A year ago the government had a 10-month surplus of $134,600,000.

Mr. Sharp has forecast a total deficit for the current fiscal year of $785,000,000. But that was last November, and doesn't take into account the $25,000,000 revenue lost when the Commons rejected a tax bill.

Mrs. Kory Regan, the second woman to become the president of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association, discusses the aims of the association and its plans for Education Week.

STILL FINDS TIME TO TEACH AT HIGH SCHOOL

Women Teacher Heads Active Association

By JOANNA DREWRY

What is education?

For the student it is the process of learning. For teachers it is a demanding profession.

There is no one more aware of the demands of the present-day educational system than Mrs. R. H. (Kory) Regan, president of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association. She believes that education needs the participation of the entire community. "This must come," she says, "not only through the payment of tax dollars but by suggestions for changes, improvements and reforms that will benefit both the educational system and society as a whole."

During Education Week—the first week of March—an opportunity is provided for everyone to get a glimpse into the "inner workings" of Victoria's school system.

To translate the goal of community participation into action, the GVTA sponsored a public meeting at Oak Bay Junior Secondary School this Thursday. The topic for discussion was "How Children Learn," with Dr. Robert J. C. Harper, director of the Behavorial Sciences Foundation at Simon Fraser University, as guest speaker. A panel of "reactors" started the discussion rolling.

During the week of March 4 to 8 each school in the city will hold open house at specified hours. This is the best-known aspect of Education Week as it gives parents a chance to go to the schools and observe the system first-hand.

For the teachers, however, the big day was Friday, Professional Day. It was on that day that the teachers of all subjects at every level met to exchange information and ideas.

"This in-service training is most important," Mrs. Regan explains. "Teachers must keep up with the new trends in education. The changes in methods and teaching concepts occur very rapidly. Without this communication a teacher who studied 20 years ago would find her work completely outdated."

LIASON OFFICER

As head of the teachers' local professional organization (with an approximate membership of 1,200) it is Mrs. Regan's job to make certain that information on all aspects of education is provided to Victoria schools—a full-time job in itself. In the capacity of liaison officer, she must also keep in touch with the British Columbia Teachers' Federation, the 16 GVTA sub-associations and numerous GVTA committees.

This is just her afternoon work.

Holding down an executive job hasn't kept Mrs. Regan from the classroom. Every morning she can be found teaching geography, social studies or guidance at Victoria Senior Secondary School. And her students, far from being neglected, profit from her familiarity with numerous teaching techniques. Many of her geography students are engaged in a detailed independent study program on Europe that will give them an excellent background for college research methods.

"My having time free to do GVTA work is really an experiment," Mrs. Regan adds. "The school board gave its permission last year. I'm the first local president to have time specifically allotted for association work."

CAN BECOME DATED

Even if her calendar is solidly booked for the present, Mrs. Regan would like to continue her own education. "You can become dated so quickly if you don't expose yourself to new thoughts. That's why the main goal of the GVTA is to promote the professional growth of its members. We're so insistent on teachers receiving salary increases because, without money, it's almost impossible for a teacher to gain access to further university study. I know this well. I attended university winter, evening classes and summer sessions for over nine years to get my bachelor of education degree."

As GVTA president, Mrs. Regan is acutely aware of the present and future problems confronting Victoria schools, "Lack of classroom space, a shortage of library books and a need for building facilities that will make possible the introduction of co-ordinated teaching programs—there is so much that must be done.

"Part of the solution to our problems lies in meetings such as the one being held at the Red Lion Motor Inn on March 8 and 9. It's called 'Education 68: Community Meeting on Today's and Tomorrow's Schools.'

"Everybody's coming. Representatives from 90 local agencies and organizations have been invited. This meeting is really a follow-up to the 'Centennial Community Conference on Education' we held last year.

COMMUNITY CONTACT

"It is meetings of this nature that ensure that a regular and continuing liaison is established with the community. After all, it's the businessmen who must deal with the graduates of our schools. Without their personal involvement, we can't hope to have a basis for future planning."

With the energy and determination of Mrs. Regan in the forefront, the GVTA is assured of having not only a successful Education Week but of having its needs made known throughout the year by this actively concerned spokesman.

Royal Holiday In West Indies

LONDON (UPI — Princess Margaret and her husband Lord Snowdon flew from chilly London to the warm West Indies on Friday.

Margaret, recovering from a tonsil operation, and her husband will spend two weeks at the Barbados estate of theatrical designer Oliver Messel, Lord Snowdon's uncle and long-time friend of the royal family.

Margaret wore a smart pale orange two-piece suit and a multi-colored blouse under her mink coat as she stepped from the royal Rolls Royce limousine to the aircraft gangway. Her photographer husband, formerly society photographer Antony Armstrong Jones, was also in style, wearing a black-and-white striped overcoat and trousers to match, and a green and orange striped shirt with a necktie of the same material.

Their daughter, Lady Sarah Armstrong-Jones, came along to the airport to say goodbye to her parents.

The royal couple planned two weeks water skiing and swimming on Messel's estate before going on to New York.

Snowdon was expected to remain several more days in New York on business connected with his filming projects for American television.

Loretta Young Has New Career—Launches Into Bridal Business

NEW YORK (UPI) — Loretta Young, an admitted sentimentalist "I cry even at card tricks"), is launching Loretta Young into one of the most sentimental of all worlds.

The brunette actress is going into the bridal business. She will lend her name, fame and appearances to promote a personalized type of wedding planning aimed at eliminating bride and mother of the bride trauma.

"You're dealing with girls at such an emotional time in their lives," said the actress. "It should be such a happy time . . . and it can be so fraught and unhappy."

The weeks, the days before the bride walks down the aisle can be a worrying time for mother too, not to mention father who foots the bills.

NEEDED SECRETARIES

Miss Young recalled what it was like when she was a mother of a bride; when daughter Judy married, attended by a matron of honor and eight bridesmaids.

"The details!", said Miss Young, "I could have used 10 private secretaries. I'd sometimes think, 'why don't I just hand her the money and tell her to elope,' but I tried to handle the whole thing and that was a mistake."

This isn't the sole reason Miss Young is starting this new career. "Youth has always fascinated me," she said. "And this certainly is dealing with young people . . . many of them still in their teens."

(True, the bridal market is a young one, with the majority of brides under 20 years. And it's an ever growing one. The U.S. census bureau estimated there were 1.980 million marriages in 1967, that the total by 1970 will be 2.510 million. Various sources estimate that the average bride spends—or rather father spends—$1,500 on marriage preparations. The publication, Bride and Groom, estimated that the bridal market now totals $5 billion annually.)

BRIDAL SALONS

The project in which Miss Young is a participant is called "Brides Showcase International". It will be a franchising of bridal salons around the country, each of them a centre where the bride can choose wedding gown and accessories, bridesmaids' gowns, mother of the bride outfits and just about everything else connected with a wedding except flowers, church and minister.

The theory is that with most of the trappings under one roof, even to wedding bands, bride and parents are saved a lot of running from store to store.

NEVER WORE WHITE

Miss Young recalled a bit sadly that she'd never had a white wedding. She was 16 when she first married, a quick ceremony in Tijuana, Mexico. The marriage lasted less than a year, she said in an interview at her new New York headquarters. Her second marriage was to Tom Lewis, an advertising executive, and the bride wore blue. The Lewises have three children and two small grandchildren.

The actress, born Gretchen Young, was one of four sisters, three of whom had motion picture careers. The studio started billing her as Loretta—"I didn't know about the change until I read it in the papers."

All the girls were acting as children and Miss Young was four years old when she made her first movie. She was leading lady in so many motion pictures she's lost count, and copped an academy award for "The Farmer's Daughter". In the beginnings of television, she had her own Loretta Young show, and it too won several awards including three emmys.

When she quit television, she took off for a year's trip around the world—"I'd spent most of my life on a sound stage. I didn't know what was going on out there in the real world."

Now, settling into a consultant role, she admits to being still a movie buff. She recalled that in the new Spencer Tracy-Katherine Hepburn movie, "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner?" she cried throughout.

"But then," she said, "I cry even at card tricks."

A Beauty Hint

Margaret Merril advises that it is quite simple for every woman to promote an English countryside complexion. Her hint to gain a peaches-and-cream loveliness is to damp a cloth with cold water from your refrigerator and press it over your face for a few minutes once or twice a day. Then, to hold the good of the complexion-beautifying cold water, smooth on tropical oil of Olay. This oil is rather scarce and expensive, but your drug store should be able to get you a supply.

Inez Knows About:

SNAKES, POLLUTION AND RADAR

By JOANNA DREWRY

Radar-tracking, snakes and polluted water are the unique factors that brought Mrs. John (Inez) O'Reilly to Victoria.

"It all started in 1935," she explains, "when I went from my home in Ontario to train for radar-tracking in Orlando, Florida, for the Canadian Fighter Air Command. Florida may be some people's idea of paradise but it wasn't for me. What with snakes, moss and stagnant water I was glad to leave. Do you know that there are 30 lakes outside Orlando and they were all so polluted that we couldn't swim?

"When the training session was over I was sent to Ottawa and then out to Victoria. I fell in love with the place. It seems only natural that I'd come to live here eventually."

Since her introduction to the city, Inez O'Reilly has packed a number of careers into the intervening years. She has been homemaker and clubwoman, a private detective, managing director of a company, a Social Credit candidate for Burnaby and an amateur historian. It's this last career that occupies her now as she restores the historic Point Ellice house, the 100-year-old home of John O'Reilly.

While she was in Victoria during the war she met her first husband and, after living a short time in Edmonton, they moved back to the West Coast, to Vancouver.

For a while it looked like her life would be a round of PTA, Navy League, Cubs and Scouts, Toastmistress Club, Canadian Legion and church work.

"Then one night, a gentleman came to dinner. He was going to make a business trip to New York and asked me if I'd look after his office. He convinced me that my air force experience despatching planes would make an excellent background for despatching men on security jobs." The work was with the Marine Industrial Security Service. Several years later she was the company's managing director and a private detective, too.

"Anybody who goes into the private detective field is sure to run into a few snares. I think my worst assignment was escorting 11 Communist Chinese sailors, who had refused to return to their ship, to be deported. I had to take them, all by myself, from a hotel in Port Alberni to the Vancouver bus depot and then to the airport. What a ride! I'd bought them food on the ferry trip but some of them pushed it away. They decided to end their hunger strike when we got to the airport. I had to talk back to them in sign language and tell them they'd get fed on the plane. They'd had their chance.

"Another time I had to take a man dying of cancer across the country by train to New York and put him on the sailing ship, the Queen Frederika of Greece.

DETECTIVE DISGUISE

"One of my jobs was to check the bus lines to make sure that the drivers were taking the right fares. I used to do this in Victoria sometimes. I wore different clothes every time I did it—had to look and act like a completely different type of person every time."

When she ran on the Socred ticket in Burnaby in 1966 some rapid changes took place overnight. "I was fired. Do you know that I had 49 shares in the company, I'd sold one, and they fired me. Not only that, but my campaign manager, a doctor, was fired from Shaughnessy Hospital, too."

Mrs. John W. O'Reilly, the chatelaine of historic Point Ellice House, is seen in the morning room overlooking the garden. She has worked with her husband for several years, restoring the house and its original Victorian furnishings.

Maybe politics didn't pay but her bid for election gave her a brand new lease on life.

She was holidaying at Qualicum Beach and went down to the beach to watch the sunset. "My future husband, then a complete stranger, drove in at the lookout and we watched it together."

Adamantly, she adds, "The divorce laws should have been changed years ago. I met my present husband two years after I'd instituted divorce proceedings."

Her campaign to restore Point Ellice house began soon after this meeting. She recalls the first time she saw the house. "The CBC was here and they were going through some of the old things. They were going to push the place into the sea! I was furious. I knew it could be restored but nobody else thought so. It wasn't until six architecture students from UBC said it could be done that I had confirmation.

"One day I was visiting and I walked into the dining room. I suggested to John that we should get the curtains washed. That was the beginning of the restoration and we haven't looked back since.

"We never know what we're going to find," she laughs. "Heavens, we found a plank from a bed in the coal bin and the guard rail for the fireplace out in the shrubbery!"

A look at the immensity of Point Ellice house and its numerous treasures would assure most people that Inez O'Reilly has found a full-time occupation in cleaning and dusting alone.

Not at all. She's now embarking on a new stage in the gamut of her careers—gardening. She and her husband are transforming the two acres of O'Reilly land into a rainbow of spring flowers. "It keeps us busy," she says modestly.

SCHOOL FOR WORKING VOLUNTEERS

They Want You Where the Action Is

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

TORONTO — The kindly volunteer who takes an underprivileged child on an outing may have no idea of the ripples she is starting in society.

The person who says with a shrub, "What can I do?" might find out if she understood how her community works.

This is the general idea behind schools for citizenship being planned by the National Council of Jewish Women of Canada. They are intended to attract the woman who is apathetic because she doesn't know where to start. They want to teach the working volunteer how to look beyond her immediate action.

FACE TWO HANDICAPS

Mrs. N. I. Zemens and Mrs. David Kovitz of Calgary have been organizers of a blueprint for the proposed schools. It was presented as a curriculum blueprint at a seminar for representatives of the council's local branches which, it was hoped, will organize schools in their sections.

One premise on which the curriculum is based is that an individual can work most effectively through an organization, even when working for the cause of individual rights and liberties.

Mrs. Zemens says the two major difficulties are built right into a volunteer group's efforts to attract and hold membership.

"One is women's apathy toward participating in the problem of society. Women just don't want to be bothered.

"The other is that people are not knowledgeable enough about how a community functions to relate to it and help it function."

The curriculum background suggests a group must define its role and make sure its members understand what it is.

Mrs. Zemens says most people look for immediate satisfaction when they do volunteer work, without always being aware they are tampering with important things in society. She cites the council's work with underprivileged preschoolers as an example. A volunteer doing such work is affecting the child's values, the education system and personal and public economics.

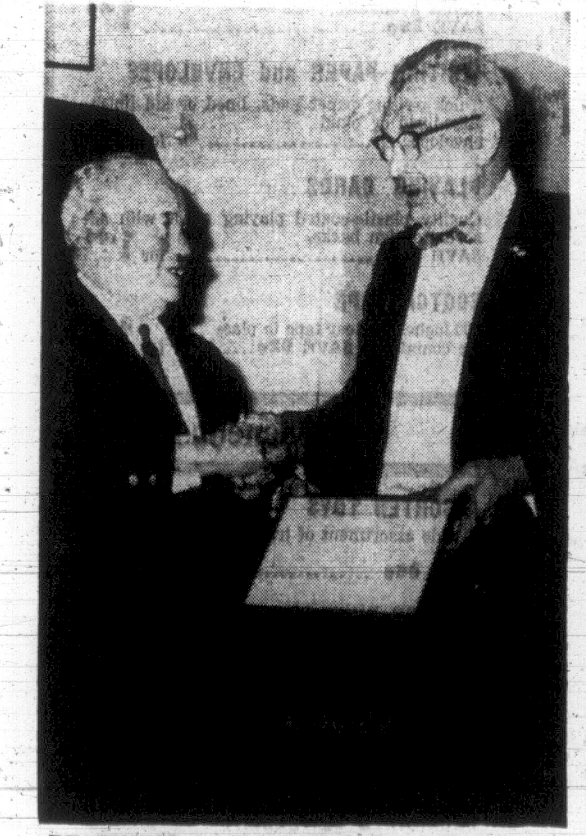
PROGRAM OUTLINED

"When people render a direct service they don't realize they are acting as change agents. In order for an organization to be valuable, members need this kind of understanding."

The suggested program for a council school involves a series of sessions dealing with social rights, the way a communtiy works, the place of the individual, the group, the volunteer. Each council section is to set up its own program with such speakers as social scientists, city planners, members of the Company of Young Canadians.

The curriculum framework recommends the talks be combined with member discussion, field trips, films and reports from members who have attended, for instance, city council meetings.

Mrs. Zemens says she hopes the schools will start next fall and would like to see them built into council activities, not offered for one year only.



RECEIVING the Fraternal Order of Eagles civic service award from past president Cecil Holt, is Archie McKinnon (left), a freeman of the city and retired physical director of the YMCA. The presentation was made at the Old Times Nite of the Victoria Aerie No. 12, F.O.E. A meritorious award was also presented to past provincial president Jim Wilmshurst.

COOKING CAN BE FUN

Lifting Leftovers To Company Status

By MARY MOORE

Croquettes lift leftovers from common to company status.

It is some time since I gave you the method for making chicken or turkey croquettes and with fowl in such good supply at reasonable price's it is time I made them again. I did. But I did not want to deep-fry them so I baked them.

Moore

Chicken (or turkey croquettes —baked (12 "logs" 3½" long x 1½" diameter—serves 4).

Two cups ground chicken (or turkey) well packed, 1 tablespoon green celery, including some tops; 1 tablespoon green onion; 3 tablespoons butter; 2 tablespoons flour, ¾ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon curry powder (optional), ¼ teaspoon accent, ¾ cup hot milk (see below), ¼ cup hot cereal cream (see below), 1 egg yolk; about 1 to 1½ cups fine breadcrumbs (preferably soft); 1 large egg, 1 tablespoon water, ¼ cup butter.

Put chicken through food grinder and follow it through with the celery and onion. Heat milk and cream (Note: If desired 1 cup hot milk may be used instead of ¾ cup milk and ¼ cup cream.)

In large saucepan melt the butter and stir in flour, salt, curry powder (if used) and accent until blended. Stir in hot milk and cream until thick. Remove from heat and stir in egg yolk and ground chicken and vegetables.

Chill in refrigerator by spreading out on large plate. When thoroughly cold this croquette mixture is easy to handle.

Have ready in a shallow dish the egg beaten with water and on a large shallow dish the crumbs. Also have ready a large shallow baking dish with the ¼ cup butter melted in bottom. With moistened palms shape croquette mixture into 12 logs, 1½" in diameter. Dip each in egg, drain a little, then roll in crumbs.

Transfer each to butter in baking dish, roll them over to coat with melted butter on all sides. They should not touch. Chill again to retain shape.

Bake at 375 deg. F. 25 to 30 minutes until golden. If these do not brown well enough on top, turn on top burner for a few minutes only, watching all the time, to brown them to your liking.

Serve with a yellow vegetable and a creamed green vegetable.

SEW SIMPLE

Fashion Goes to All Hem Lengths—Mini, Midi, Long.

Not since Dior dropped the hemlines in 1947, has the length of skirts been such a topic of conversation and confusion. I have gathered the following information from designers as well as a leading fashion trade paper. I hope this answers all of your questions once and for all.

Fashion has gone to all lengths, the mini, the midi, the long, and the just plain short (which is longer than the mini). There is no one length just as there is no one look.

The midi is causing all the controversy, and yet it's here to stay. Why the midi? There is a whole generation of young women (who were brought up with frozen food, television and outer space) who have never worn long skirts. It's perfectly natural that the longer skirt intrigues them.

As the young go, so goes fashion to a degree. It is perfectly logical for young women to want to wear something that they have never worn before. Just because some ladies remember when they wore long skirts in another era doesn't mean that they should dampen the enthusiasm of the current generation. To the young something old is new.

What about other lengths? The midi is not replacing a length; it's an additional length. Fashion today has variety, just as there is no one look. This is 1968, the age of the individual when you can go to all lengths to be yourself—long hair or short, ruffles or shirts, boots or shoes, capes or coats, pants or pajamas, knee socks or tights.

In this big wide wonderful fashion world today, how great it is to be able to make our clothes. It's bound to bring more women back to the sewing machine than any other factor. What might have seemed impractical and much too frivolous in the past can be ours because we take the time to make our clothes.

Years ago women had only basic black shoes to go with their basic black dresses. Today, women have a wardrobe of shoes in all styles and colors. It wasn't too long ago when we wore basic beige sheer stockings. Now we wear a variety such as tights, textured, sheer, colored or patterned.

Length is a mood. It's a matter of carefully analyzing and understanding your figure and your age and deciding what is most comfortable for you and gives you the most confidence. We all resist changes to a degree, but this is a changing world so we must gradually give in to the new or we are mentally old.

It's time for the midi to come home. What better place for the feminine, romantic and graceful midi than at home. Midis are perfect at home wear for informal entertaining or for your family when you want to be treated like a queen.

I hope after reading this you will have more confidence in yourself and realize that many lengths are possible. The new lengths will not replace the short skirts, but add new dimensions to your wardrobe. For daytime wear, let's continue to keep our skirts slightly above or just at the knees.

Blended Milk Gives Benefits

OTTAWA — At the conclusion of its quarterly executive meeting the Consumers' Association of Canada issued the following announcement concerning substitute milk products.

"Because of widespread consumer acceptance in the United States of blended and substitute milk products, and the fact that processors-distributors in Canada are now researching production and marketing techniques, the CAC believes these products should be made available to consumers in Canada.

"Both types of so-called milk replacements can retail at a lower price than fluid milk products but regulations now in force in Canada prohibit the blending of dairy and non-dairy foods.

"Although the nutritive value of substitute milk products has not been fully established, blended milks do supply the nutritive values normally associated with fluid milk."

Deaths Decline

Accidents caused about 112,000 deaths in the U.S. during 1967 —a decline of 1,000 from the previous year.

RECENT CRISIS ADDS FUEL

Views Differ Sharply On TV 'Eyes' in House

By TOM MITCHELL

OTTAWA (CP) — The big eye of television should be in the House of Commons "free to roam, to go anywhere, to scan the empty seats and catch the MP behind his newspaper or comic book."

TV in the Commons would be an "affront to the chamber," would distort the institution and prevent it doing the job it should in legislating for the country.

The first opinion is that of Robert McCleave, 45-year-old lawyer-broadcaster and Conservative MP for Halifax. The second is held by Howard Johnston, 39, a former teacher and Social Credit MP for Okanagan-Revelstoke.

Their views point up the opposed sides in the debate on whether TV cameras should be allowed into the Commons chamber.

Discussion of the question got some added impetus in the parliamentary crisis that was resolved by a vote in the government's favor Wednesday.

In Corridors

At the height of the crisis much of the debate took place in the corridors outside the chamber.

Crews from the two TV networks set up camp in the hallway, collaring party leaders and other MPs as they emerged from the House.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux has said it would require unanimous consent of the members to allow a film crew in and there has not been such consent.

James E. Walker (L—York Centre), who favors TV coverage of Commons committees but not in the House itself, said the recent events had started him thinking.

If debate on the important questions continued to unfold before the corridor cameras instead of in the Commons, people would soon be saying: "Who cares what goes on in Parliament?"

Mr. Walker, former Liberal whip, said coverage of the Commons committees would show people their MPs at work.

He expressed fears about the editing of material from cameras in the Commons.

He feared the public would not understand that MPs leave the Commons chamber to attend to other work or that they may read a newspaper when they are hearing a speech that has been made several times before.

Expresses Worry

Robert Prittie (NDP—Burnaby-Richmond) a pro-TV man, also expressed the worry that TV viewers would not understand why there is often only a scattering of MPs in the chamber.

MPs had constituency problems to attend to and had to spend large segments of many working days at the committees on which they serve.

Mr. Prittie also wondered about the slips and stumbles made by MPs in the House. With only Hansard—the verbatim record of debates—to worry about, the MP had a chance to go over the first copy. But there would be no correction of an audio-visual record.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) said he feels it is far better for the public to see a debate in the Commons, conducted under the rules of the House, than it is for all the appeals to be made outside the chamber as they were during the recent crisis.

Mr. Knowles said the Commons committee on procedures will study the question of TV coverage in the House.

Robert Stanbury (L—York-Scarborough), chairman of the Commons broadcasting committee, said TV coverage is coming "one way or another." It would be better to have it inside the House than "outside in the corridor."

R. G. L. Fairweather (PC—Royal), another pro-TV member, agreed that the corridor performances of recent days will tend to advance the case for TV's debut within the chamber.

Don Jamieson (L—Burin-Burgeo), a Newfoundland broadcaster, said the crisis showed that "TV is here to stay" but it would be better if the cameras were recording events in the chamber instead of giving viewers a "rerun of Parliament out in the hall."

Electronic Hansard

He said TV cameras should make an "electronic Hansard" in the Commons in the same way as the verbatim record is made. Radio and TV stations would be able to pick film or voice clips from this record in the same way that newspaper reporters can use the written Hansard.

Mr. McCleave said Parliament is slower to move than most other bodies but TV coverage of House debates "is coming."

The cameras should record the MPs "warts and all" but they might occasionally "pan up to the press gallery" and show the sparse attendance there.

He was peeved about MPs being chastized about their attendance "by some journalist who spends one-quarter the time in the gallery that most MPs do in the House."

Mr. McCleave suggested there could be closed-circuit TV throughout the three main buildings on Parliament Hill. MPs could tune in and see what was going on in the House while handling work in their offices.

Edge of Wedge

Back to Mr. Johnston.

He is opposed to allowing the TV cameras into committees. In part, this is because he sees this as the thin edge of the wedge for entry to the Commons proper. He also sees committee TV coverage as an encouragement to committee members to "browbeat witnesses" and play to the TV grandstand.

But his main complaint is that TV is not the same as the print medium.

"The TV medium will distort the institution of Parliament. It won't cleanse it or purge it."

As sure as TV is allowed into the Commons, "there will be a demand that the Commons be made into better TV fare."

MPS no longer would talk to each other in an attempt to arrive at the best legislation for the country. They would go over the heads of their fellow MPs in an "appeal to the nation."

Mr. Johnston said he felt this kind of emotional appeal has no part in the parliamentary process.

"If we're making news, it's only incidental to the process of debating and legislating for the country. That is our main task.

"The news aspect is secondary."

AT EDGE OF CHINATOWN

First Major Renewal Plan

GUEST SPEAKER at a local meeting Wednesday of the American Society for Metals will be Dr. William Koster, vice-president and director of Metallurgical Engineering of Metcut Research Associates Inc. The meeting is at 8 p.m. in the Dockyard Officers' Club at Esquimalt.

The first major renewal project in Victoria's Chinatown was announced Friday.

Target is a 56-year-old, three-storey brick building on Government between Herald and Chatham.

The face lifting will change the building into a spruced-up complex of stores, offices and apartments.

Harry Gladwell, president of International Holding Ltd., the local company behind the project, said the first phase will begin Monday.

"We plan to retain all of the building, because basically it's structurally sound," Mr. Gladwell said.

The facade will be cleaned and altered to accommodate 10 or 12 large stores on the ground floor. A central garden court about 45 feet wide will stretch four stories high to give the building an open, outside atmosphere.

The structure will be raised another storey with the addition of penthouses. These could eventually become town houses, Mr. Gladwell said.

Supporting the building are 13 solid brick walls which run from front to back walls and up to the roof.

Renovations merely entail knocking out ceiling joists between floors and adding brick archways through the dividing walls, Mr. Gladwell said.

Most of the original glass in the front of the building will be retained, although some store fronts may be altered to vary the plan, he said.

The completed building, expected about a year from now, will be known as International House.

The block is about 240 feet by 60 feet and offers 40,000 square feet of floor space.

The second floor will be broken up into 20 offices with floor space of 500 feet.

Mr. Gladwell indicated the floor could accommodate at least one restaurant, in place of some of the office space.

The third floor will house 10 luxury offices. A dozen penthouses have been planned for the roof, for use as office-residences, offices or residences.

City officials stress the importance of the project as the first venture in renewal of the district using private capital.

The building borders the 50-acre Wharf Street section currently under study as a possible urban renewal site.

IN RHODESIA

Cautious Moves Against 'Smithy'

By DENNIS LEE ROYLE

SMITH
. . . retains popularity

SALISBURY (AP) — "Good old Smithy—keep in there fighting, we're right behind you," shouted the man in the crowd. A hundred bystanders applauded.

Old Smithy is Rhodesia's prime minister Ian Smith. He grabbed independence from Britain more than two years ago, and looks as though he will retain his popularity among the whites of Rhodesia for a long time to come.

Sanctions, which British Prime Minister Wilson decreed would topple the illegal Smith regime in weeks, have failed to bring the rebel government to its knees.

On the surface, the man in the street appears hardly troubled. Liquor, cigarettes, clothing and food are in plentiful supply, although more expensive. Rhodesia's white-ruled ally, South Africa, pours essential goods, including fuel, into the country.

CRITICAL TIMES

But in financial circles and among the ranks of the country's big farmers, rumblings of discontentment are heard.

Tobacco farmers, who once supplied Rhodesia's largest export, have been forced to reduce their acreage. Huge stocks of tobacco remain unsold.

Cautious stirrings are also being heard on the political front where some of the country's 230,000 whites are talking of a new political party to oppose the Smith regime.

They aim to fight the ruling Rhodesian Front party, using the Rhodesian-British political stalemate as the party manifesto.

Testing its popularity among whites, the new party—the Rhodesian Constitutional Association—sent out questionaires to three key white constituencies.

Voters were asked if they wanted an honorable settlement with Britain based on a Wilson plan—a settlement which would eventually give majority rule to Rhodesia's 4,500,000 blacks.

"The results speak for themaging," said one association official.

Of 5,047 questionaires, only 1,260 were returned. A scant 680 people stated any desire for a prompt settlement with Britain.

"Such campaigns against the government, and suggestions that peace proposals be re-started with Britain, merely undermine Rhodesia," said a Rhodesian government official.

"These campaigns serve only as an excuse for the Wilson government to surmise that Rhodesians are beginning to crack under the pressure of sanctions."

While many white Rhodesians appear to back the government and its policy of white domination, others see danger that the country is heading toward an apartheid state, based on the racial framework of South Africa.

New legislation gives local councils a free hand if they wish to introduce separate facilities and segregation among the different racial groups.

Robin James, Salisbury's member of Parliament, has taken another view.

"Separate development is the answer to the problems facing Rhodesia," he says. "This year should see its implementation in this country.

"Africans here do not want their rights and heritages. What they want is either to return to their 19th-century barbarism, or take over everything created for them by the Europeans."

Some Rhodesians resent censorship on radio, television and in newspapers, which often appear with large blanks on front pages. Methodist leaders have urged followers to ponder "unhealthy trends" in Rhodesia.

Rhodesia's gravest threat, however, seems to come from her militant black neighbor Zambia. Rhodesian authorities say black "freedom fighters" are poised there for terrorist campaigns against the whites of Rhodesia.

Miniature Poodle Judged Best

Tophill Orsino, a Miniature Poodle owned by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Osborne of Vancouver, was judged best of close to 300 dogs Friday in a show presented by the Victoria City Kennel Club.

Best Canadian-bred dog in the show at Sanscha Hall at Sidney was an English Cocker Spaniel, Ch. Willowbrook's George Blue, owned by Mrs. Peter Bennett of Vancouver.

Judged best Canadian-bred puppy was a Shih Tzu, Khazana Yul Chan, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stewart of Port Alberni.

Judges at Friday's and today's show are Percy Roberts of Noroton Heights, Conn., and W. A. Jacob of Edmonton.

Group winners Friday:

Best sporting dog, an English Springer Spaniel, Ch. Muller's Blazing Kane.

Best hound, an Afghan, Camri's High Society, owned by Kaye Peterson and Doris Hillen of Portland, Ore.

Best working dog, a German Shepherd, Elttek's Adonis, owned by Bertine Pigott of Seattle.

Best terrier, a Wire Fox Terrier, Ch. Roxville Royal Gem, owned by R. C. Newby of North Surrey.

Best toy, a Yorkshire Terrier, Firefly's Wee Willie, owned by Gladys Miller of Washington.

Best non-sporting, Ch. Tophill Orsino, the show winner.

One Mistake Meant Jail For Newsmen

ROME (Reuters) — A Rome court sentenced two Italian journalists to prison Friday for libel in an action brought by an Italian army general they accused of plotting a military coup d'etat.

Eugenio Scalfai, director of the weekly newspaper L'Espresso, was sentenced to one year and five months imprisonment and reporter Lino Januzzi to one year and four months.

The action was brought by a dismissed army chief-of-staff, Gen. Giovanni De Lorenzo, who was accused by the newspaper of heading a military plot to take over the government during a political crisis in 1964.

The trial, which turned into an investigation of De Lorenzo, a former head of the secret service, raised storms in parliament and nearly brought down the government.

Two weeks ago the public prosecutor, who can intervene in civil actions here, said the two journalist's should be acquitted because all their facts but one were correct.

OVERRULE PROSECUTOR

The court found both guilty with some extenuating circumstances.

The court also fined Scalfai 250,000 lire ($408) and Januzzi 200,000 lire ($321).

It also ordered the two men and the paper's publishers jointly to pay 750,000 lire ($1,200) in legal costs to each of the two officers who brought the action—De Lorenzo and Col. Mario Filippi—and awarded the officers an unspecified sum in damages.

The trial, one of the most sensational in Italian legal history, lasted four months.

The court heard allegations that the secret service prepared lists of "politically dangerous" persons who were to be arrested by the carabinieri (state police) and deported to special concentration camps when the coup was launched.

There were also allegations of secret meetings of high-ranking officers during the political crisis and of emergency security plans including the dispatch of a motorized army brigade from Milan to Rome.

Royston Man To Stand Trial In Rifle Mishap

GOLD RIVER — Ronald Norman Mottishead of Royston, was committed for trial at the spring assizes in Nanaimo on a charge of criminal negligence in a hunting accident in which his stepson Edward LeBus was killed.

The accident occurred near here on Nov. 12.

Mottishead was committed for trial by Magistrate Eric Winch after a preliminary hearing in police court here.

MILDLY RADIOACTIVE

Half Mile of Snow Scooped for Study

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Tons of mildly radioactive snow will be scooped from the frozen surface of North Star Bay in Greenland, where a U.S. B52 bomber carrying four hydrogen bombs crashed in January, Pentagon officials said Friday.

The snow, along with wreckage of the plane, will be stored in sealed containers at Thule air force base, 7½ miles from the crash site, until the summer thaw, when ships will be able to get in and take the containers away.

The U.S. government has not said what final disposal will be made of the containers.

A Pentagon spokesman said the decision to remove contaminated snow was made jointly by the U.S. and Denmark, which owns Greenland.

There was no estimate of how many tons would be removed. The crash left a blackened scar on the ice 2,175 feet long and 470 feet wide, and resulted in suspension of the practice of carrying nuclear weapons aboard B52 airborne-alert training flights.

The plane apparently exploded on impact, and the H-bombs were shattered to bits. The conventional explosives in one or more of them may have detonated, but there was no nuclear explosion.

The crash left the immediate area contaminated with alpha radiation, which does not penetrate human skin.

Both the U.S. and Danish governments have said the situation is not dangerous. However, in summer the ice will melt, the radioactivity will enter the water and it is considered wise to remove it now.

The U.S. has sent 500 extra personnel to Thule to gather up the plane wreckage. For an unexplained reason the operation has been titled Project Crested Ice.

Three Months For Driver

Hughie McIsaac, 31, of 708 Princess, was sentenced Friday to six months in jail for impaired driving and three months for driving while under suspension.

Central court was told he was stopped Dec. 22 by Colwood RCMP while driving erratically.

The sentences were to be served concurrently. His driver's licence was suspended.

Douglas Pearsall, 43, of 1255 Hastings was fined $150 for failing to remain at the scene of an accident and sentenced to 20 days in jail for impaired driving.

He had been involved in a hit and run accident Nov. 17.

Sneak Thief Case Remanded

A man who stole money from employees of two city firms was remanded a week for preparation of a pre-sentence and psychiatric report when he appeared in central court Friday.

Edwin Beggs, of 1018 McClure, pleaded guilty.

Court was told he took $98 from a purse in an employees' cloak room at the Canada Permanent Building, 1125 Douglas, Feb. 12. He also took $23 from a purse in the cloak room of the Woolworth's store Feb. 23.

RAF Seeks Old Timers On Island

Britain's Royal Air Force is looking for founder members on Vancouver Island—and elsewhere.

These are the men and women who formed the personnel of the Royal Air Force, the Women's Royal Air Force and the Royal Air Force Nursing Association when they were formed on April 1, 1918.

The RAF wants to invite them to various events being staged this year to mark the golden jubilee of the RAF. The invitation includes members of the Royal Flying Corps, founded in 1913, who transferred to the RAF and its sister services in 1918.

"At last count there were more than 100 RAF veterans living in the Victoria area," said F. T. S. Sehl, treasurer of the Air Force Officers' Association of Vancouver Island.

"Undoubtedly many more are living in other parts of the Island. "We want to be sure they have a chance to participate in the RAF celebrations."

Mr. Sehl said RAF veterans should write to the Ministry of Defence, S4c (Air) FM, Northumberland House, Northumberland Avenue, London, WC2. All ranks are welcome.

At the close of the First World War, he said, more than 20 per cent of Royal Air Force members were Canadians.

'Teachers Must Show Courage'

NANAIMO (CP) — The president of the B.C. Teachers' Federation says teachers of today have too much bone in their heads and not enough in their backs.

Federation president Robert Buzza was addressing 450 teachers at a workshop here Friday.

He said teachers must show courage and change their ways now, without waiting for the introduction of costly new buildings and equipment to aid them.

Mr. Buzza said that despite a so-called new look in education "there have not been any significant changes taking place in our schools."

He attributed this to a lack of courage on the part of teachers.

New Sawmill Opens

UCLUELET—A new sawmill opened at Ucluelet recently.

It is operated by Tona Forest Products and shipped its first lumber last week.

The Ucluelet Contracting Company will be in charge of trucking lumber to Port Alberni and Nanaimo.

Alberta, Sask. Budgets Reveal Tax Boosts Due

By ED SIMON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Alberta and Saskatchewan brought down record budgets Friday as both provincial governments dug for additional sources of revenue to offset their rising costs.

Provincial Treasurer Dave Steuart of Saskatchewan sprinkled his presentation with far-reaching tax increases. A. O. Aalborg, his opposite number in Alberta, treated the taxpayers more gently but gave them fair warning that they would have to wait a year before he dropped the other shoe.

Faced with a deficit of $70,458,110 for the 1968-69 fiscal year, Mr. Aalborg said it would be met from liquid reserve funds, possibly supplemented by the first direct borrowing for operating income by an Alberta government since 1935.

He said "consideration must be given to introducing one or more new forms of taxation" in next year's budget.

Mr. Steuart budgeted for a modest surplus of $378,620 by increasing and broadening the base of the Saskatchewan sales tax and imposing a utilization fee under the province's hospital services and medical care insurance plans.

Both provincial treasurers made motorists a prime target, increasing gasoline taxes and licence fees.

Mr. Steuart both deepened and widened the Saskatchewan sales tax for health and education. He increased the rate to five from four per cent, effective immediately, and imposed it for the first time, starting April 1, on hotel and motel accommodation, commercial cabins and cottages, meals costing $2 or more and all forms of telecommunications, including telephones, telegrams, teletypes and private wires.

Commodities hitherto subject to the tax include tangible personal property, imported goods for personal use, beer, wine and liquor.

The medical care and hospital utilization fees—$1.50 for a visit to a physician: $2 for physicians' visits to homes, emergencies or outpatients and $2.50 a day for a hospital stay, decreasing to $1.50 after 30 days—will be absorbed by the government for needy subscribers.

SAVES $5,000,000

Mr. Steuart said the fees will bring a net saving of $5,000,000 and are intended to discourage abuse of the medical and hospital services.

Outside the house, he expressed confidence that the fees will not conflict with the federal medical care plan, in which Saskatchewan is scheduled to participate when it goes into operation July 1.

'Offered Marijuana' Three Girls Testify

NANAIMO — Three teen-aged girls said in magistrate's court Friday they had been offered marijuana by a 19-year-old Nanaimo youth.

The girls, two aged 15 and the other 16, were testifying at the preliminary hearing into charges of possession of marijuana of Lawrence Bryson, 1480 Townsite, and Rick Evans, 623 Nicol.

They said they had picked the two up in their car in downtown Nanaimo.

Police later made a routine check of the car, which bore Alberta licence plates, and saw two plastic bags flying out of the windows.

The two bags were taken to Vancouver, where the contents were analysed as marijuana.

The girls testified they had toured the town earlier, then gone to the area near Evans' home before returning to the city centre.

Police testified they entered an apartment at 623 Nicol and found a small envelope in a jacket. The contents of the envelope was later found to be marijuana.

The two men were remanded until Monday, with bail discontinued, when the hearing will continue.
